Tomato Spray Important

Failure to maintain a good spray program on tomatoes can be expensive. Early blight fungus was allowed to become established in some of the tomato plant beds in Madison County. Failure to follow the suggested spray program resulted in injury which produced "collor rot" and has caused a number of plants to break off at the soil level.

Tomato fruit worm have been found in a number of tomato fields in Madison County. One small worm hole in a tomato causes the tomato to be culled on the market. Good insecticides are on the market; they will really work if they are used properly.

Profit or loss from tomatoes can be determined by the spray program. A good spray program on tomatoes includes the following: 1. Using the correct materials; 2. Following the time schedule; 3. Obtaining good coverage of foliage, stems and fruit; 4. Using correct amount of chemicals to control insects and diseases.

* KICKING MULES *

There was an interesting case before the Supreme Court of North Carolina in 1926 involving a kicking mule. It is the case of Rector v. Southern Coal Company, 192 N.C. 804.

An employee had been told to get eggs laid by hens in a stall where a mule was kept. He was kicked by the mule and seriously injured. There was no evidence that this particular mule was more vicious than mules generally or that the owner was aware of its being more than ordinarily vicious.

Although the jury rendered a judgment of six hundred dollars in favor of the injured plaintiff, the Supreme Court would not permit the judgment to stand. It said the judgment was contrary to law. A portion of the court's opinion is as follows:

"A mule is a melancholy creature. It is a nullius filius in the animal kingdom. It has been said that a mule has neither 'pride of ancestry nor hope of posterity.' John Billings remarked that if he had to preach the funeral of a mule he would stand on its head. Men love and pet horses, dogs, cats and lambs. These domestic animals have found their way in literature. Shakespeare said of a horse: 'I will not change my horse with any that treads out on four pasterns, when I bestride him I soar, I am a hawk, he trots the air; the earth sings when he touches

BE SELECTIVE ABOUT SUNNING

Although Old Man Sol lives 93 million miles away, he's a mighty powerful fellow. That's why, if you're a paleface seeking a coppery tan, you can profit by being selective about your sunning.

According to Dr. Archie Black, Ph.D., Research Director of the Coppertone Corporation, there's a suntan product made especially for your skin type whether you are gray, blonde, brunette, or redhead. That's why it pays to:

Select your lotion, cream, or oil carefully—remembering that people with dark complexions are much better able to cope with sunlight than individuals with blue eyes and fair complexion.

Select the place for your sunbaths carefully. Your own back yard is most convenient because of easy access to your sunning accessories.

Select the time of day that's the safest. The sun's rays are most intense from 11 a.m. to 2 p.m.—not only on sunny days but on hazy ones as well.

Select the areas of your body you want to tan and dress accordingly—sun dress, playsuit, swimsuit, bikini.

Select the length of sunning time. Start with 5 to 15 minutes the first day and gradually increase the time. Use caution. Don't try to get a deep tan in a day or two.

"DON'T YOU JOIN ME?"—The friendly smile of Diane Baker extends that invitation as she basks in the sun. She aspires to a smooth, rich, deep tan. Diane leads her charges as the co-star in Alfred Hitchcock's "Marnie," a Universal Release.
