State Board

 in evidence when the oath was administered — either for himself or the other two officials. Dean Ledford was the Democratic Judge and Robert Ballard the Republican judge, he said.
 J. G. Gardner, Democratic precinct chairman and member of the county school board of which Ponder is chairman, testified that he spent part of election day in a room closer than 50 feet to the polling place, but added that "the door was closed."
 The hearing was recessed early Wednesday when Ted R. Russell, the new chairman of the Madison County Board of Elections, was called to testify and Ponder's attorney objects to evidence prepared from the Middle Fork registration book.
 They demanded, and were finally granted, an equal opportunity to study the book.
 Much time was also spent Wednesday on the conduct of Robert Ballard, substitute Republican judge, who replaced Orville Roberts, when Roberts didn't show up.
 Gerald Young, a poll watcher, testified that more votes were counted than there were voters. The small notebook in which Young said he maintained a head count came up for considerable discussion as to its color and what type of advertisement was printed on the small book.
 Young also testified that Ballard "had very evidently been drinking". Clyde Ray and Lloyd Thomas also testified that Ballard was drinking. On the other hand, Kelley Ledford and J. G. Gardner, when asked about Ballard's conduct, said as far as they could tell he was not intoxicated, nor could they smell intoxicants on his breath.
 "Is Mr. Robert Ballard what you refer to up here as a "Sweetheart Republican," Hiram Ward, a Republican member of the state board, asked Young.
 Young said he didn't know. "I never heard of him before being connected with politics."
 Woodrow Boone also stayed on the stand for a long period telling of his devotion to the Democratic Party and how for years he had hauled voters to the polls.

 "We also appreciate the people who came to Marshall on the 4th and enjoyed the day's activities", Chief Crowe said.

 and hitting in spots but for the most part, erratic and careless play.
 The children enjoyed pony rides during both games. The ponies were furnished by the Clyde M. Roberts stables and proceeds were turned over to the Marshall Volunteer Fire Dept., which sponsored most of the day's events.
 The $50 Savings Bond sponsored by the VFW and American Legion, was won by James Penland, and D. M. Robinson won the hot dogger.

Ballots Show

caused by the weight of a pencil used to mark one ballot while another ballot was lying directly under it.
 All the ballots with the indentations come from four ballot boxes used in the Mars Hill precinct. They have been under study by the SBI since the N. C. Board of Elections began an investigation of vote-fraud charges in Madison a month ago.
 A partial report of the SBI examination was delivered to state election-board chairman William Joslin here Wednesday.
 Joslin is expected to have the report read into the record of the board's investigation, along with expert testimony from the SBI, sometime this week—possibly today.

GOP Convention

 who would vote for him until the end, regardless of whether they are instructed or not.
 Scranton's visit to North Carolina and his continued wooing of N. C. delegates apparently has made no dent in that first ballot strength.
 Some of his supporters do think that after the first ballot or after the second as many as four to six might start to waiver away from Goldwater.
 If the balloting continues on, convention pressures, the persuasiveness of Scranton and his friends and of Goldwater and his friends, will determine the outcome.
 As far as can be learned, there is no one from Madison County planning to attend the Convention.
