SOUND THINKING

"More Promotions" was one of the principal topics at the Marshall Merchants Association meeting held here Tuesday night.

For years, we have contended that Marshall could be a "mecca for shoppers" if the merchants would realize that it is almost essential to have promotions and special events like other towns and cities. In this age of highly competitive attractions for shoppers, improved highways, shopping centers, attractive stores and abundant stocks, the merchant who doesn't advertise stands a good chance of decreased business and increased idleness.

Cooperation among local merchants in planning and executing at least four promotions a year would mean thousands of extra dollars to our town. If other towns can successfully conduct promotions, why can't Marshall? Many items are priced as low — and some lower — than in nearby cities BUT the public doesn't know it because the merchants don't advertise.

At present, Marshall has only ONE concerted effort or promotion — and that is the annual Christmas Promotion. This is good and should continue by all means. But wouldn't it seem logical that our merchants should get together on other similar promotions in the Spring, Summer and Fall?

The public is going to trade where it is convenient and where they can get merchandise they desire at prices which are in line with other localities. The only way to ATTRACT the shopper is to offer them bargains and let them KNOW what you have to sell.

One of the leading merchants in Marshall stated that Marshall is losing customers to nearby cities because of LACK OF COOPERATION AND ADVERTISING. It was also suggested that local stores should stay open on Friday nights — not one or two stores, but practically every store — so those who cannot shop due to employment during the day could shop at night. It was also pointed out that parking spaces would be more available at night, which would be a convenience to the public.

Others attending the meeting agreed that it is high time ALL the merchants of Marshall think seriously about this situation and unite to make Marshall an attractive place for the shopping public.

This is sound thinking and we earnestly hope that we can all "get on the ball" and regain our reputation of "having more business according to population than any other town in the United States," as Ripley once stated.

ment annuity system, based on premiums of 10 per cent of gross salary and (2) free tuition for children of faculty members.

For 1967-68 salaries again have been raised and several other fringe benefits have been added, including (1) major medical, disability and life insurance paid for entirely by the college, (2) moving expense payment for new faculty members, (3) financial assistance toward home construction, and (4) financial assistance for graduate study.

Dr. Fred Bentley, Mars Hill's energetic young president, will complete his first year at the helm of the 1400-student Baptist college on June 30. He says he will submit a budget to the board of trustees for 1968-69 which will boost the college to the C Average level on the AAUP scale. The improvements already achieved and those anticipated in the next year recently brought praise from Dr. Peggy Heim, associate secretary and economist for the AAUP.

"To advance from F to C in the minimum scale in two years is indeed an achievement," she wrote Bentley. "And to make the C average grade in all ranks one year later will be an even more outstanding feat. It shows how much the college is doing. It is most impressive."

The college's plans for the next 10 years are geared to a program entitled "Emphasis on Excellence." Upgrading of the faculty is the first goal.

"Competitive faculty compensation will help the college recruit the best qualified teachers available," Bentley said. It will help attract those with the necessary professional preparation and of the character we must have for a Christian college. A superior faculty, in turn, will develop a top-notch academic program and draw good students. Then we shall have an excellent college."

WAVE ON

In a kindergarten class, several flags were shown. "What flag is this?" asked the teacher.

"That is the flag of my country," answered a bright youngster.

"And what is the name of your country?"

"Tia of thee," replied the bright one.

"AMERICAN DREAM"

ACTIVITIES OF OUR RED CROSS IN MAY

Highlights of Red Cross activities in Madison County during the month of May have been reported by American Red Cross Headquarters in Asheville. Among these were six requests involving Madison County servicemen and veterans and their families. The Red Cross Service to Military Families program assisted with two emergency communications situations and with four requests involving reporting and assistance with government benefits.

During the month hospitalized county residents used eighteen units of blood supplied through the Red Cross Blood Program. Thirteen residents donated blood at Red Cross headquarters in Asheville.

Walnut Elementary School students filled 20 Friendship Boxes as a part of a Junior Red Cross project. Friendship Boxes contain small inexpensive items such as pencils, soap, combs, toothbrushes, etc. They are sent by the Red Cross to local children's hospitals, homes or to underprivileged children in foreign countries.

Two American Red Cross Nursing Services Instructor Courses will be offered at Asheville Area Red Cross Headquarters at 518 Kenilworth Road during July. The courses will be taught by Miss Annie Jo Hollifield, Red Cross Nursing Services Representative for Western North Carolina.

The Home Nursing Instructors Course will be taught July 10-14 from 1 p. m. to 5 p. m. The Mother and Baby Care Instructors Course will be held July 24-28, from 1 p. m. to 5 p. m.

Teachers, nurses and other persons interested in becoming instructors in these two courses are asked to contact Mrs. C. E. Mashburn in Marshall for further information.

Miss Emagene Ponder is attending the June 6-16 session of the American National Red Cross Aquatic School at Camp Blue Star in Hendersonville. She will participate in ten days of intensive training in swimming, life saving, first aid and small craft skills. Persons successfully completing the course are certified as Red Cross Water Safety Instructors.

There will be a decoration at the Shelton Cemetery near the Allanstand Presbyterian Church next Sunday at 2 p. m. All speakers, singers and the public are invited.

The decoration at the Garl Gahagan Cemetery last Sunday was not too well attended due to the inclement weather. Mr. Arthur Tweed did the speaking and after the service everyone was invited to Mrs. Garl Gahagan's home for a song service, which was enjoyed by everyone.

Mr. and Mrs. Donald Hensley of Candler returned home from a vacation at Myrtle Beach last Monday afternoon.

Mrs. Fred Shelton, Mrs. Magnolia Shelton, Mrs. Dorothy Cook and Mr. and Mrs. Donald Hensley and Miss Terry Lynn Cook attended a piano recital last Monday night in the new church near Greenville, Tenn. Miss Terry Lynn is a piano student of the teacher, Mrs. Walter Faulkner.

Mr. and Mrs. T. E. Trimble were in Greenville last Monday for a health checkup. Both have been under a doctor's care for many months.

Miss Gayle Isensee has been taking care of Mrs. Leslie Gahagan for the past week at nights. Mrs. John Gahagan cares for her during the day.

CARD OF THANKS

We would like to take this opportunity to thank our many friends and neighbors for their expressions of sympathy during the illness and following the passing of our husband, father and foster-father, Charlie L. Tipton. We also appreciate the beautiful floral offerings, the kindness of Bowman-Duckett Funeral Home and the consoling words of the minister.

SALVATION FOR ALL MEN

Memory Selection: "God our Saviour . . . will have all men to be saved, and to come unto the knowledge of the truth."

—(1 Timothy 2:3-4)
Lesson Text: Acts 9:32 to 11:18

Peter's telling ministry is the subject of today's lesson.

Peter, like Paul, believe that there were no boundaries of religion, creed or distinction between true believers in Christ.

Therefore, when the news that the Gentiles at Caesarea had received the word of God spread to the Apostles and their brethren in Judea, Peter had a fight on his hands — a fight which he met unafraid, in the tradition of his Master!

Peter was criticized for eating with the "uncircumcized;" he had — in the eyes of those Jews who clung tenaciously to ceremonial cleanliness and the material concepts of the Jewish religion — violated a tradition. This was a

Chandler

Wyatt

By DOROTHY B. SHUPE

Miss Jennie Lee Chandler is retiring from teaching school after 43 years in the classroom.

The last 25 years were at the Walnut school where she taught the fourth grade.

Her whole salary the first year was less than her last month's pay — $65 per month for a seven month term.

She was a member of the first graduating class at Marshall High School in 1923. A short teacher's course that summer qualified her for the teaching profession at that time.

Since then, she took summer school work and extension courses at the old Asheville Normal College and Western Carolina College, finally meeting requirements for an "A" certificate several years ago.

Her first school was in a frame building in the Laurel Community where she and her pupils kept warm by a pot-bellied stove and drank water from the common dipper from a nearby spring.

As the years progressed, "Miss Jennie Lee" taught in other Madison County Schools — Madison Seminary, Hot Springs, and Meadow Fork. Her only year out of Madison County was at Sedgewood Gardens in Forsyth County.

Her co-workers honored her last Tuesday night at the Madison Grill with a dinner party, carnation corsage, and a gift certificate at an Asheville store. Presentation was made by Auburn E. Wyatt, her principal for the past five years, who has only high praise for "Miss Jennie Lee."

Her retirement plans include a "lot of reading," several short trips with her sister, "Miss LuLu," who retired a few years ago, and possibly some substitute teaching.

She said she would miss her students because "they keep one young." She praised highly the Elementary and Secondary School Act program in Madison County "which has given us so many books and materials so badly needed."

An active Presbyterian, the educator had served in several offices in her church as well as I.T.A., Red Cross and all other civic organizations.

Walnut students will miss "Miss Jennie Lee" next fall.

cardinal sin in the eyes of those whose actions and lives were governed by ritual.

The Apostles, while not actively involved with the spreading of God's Word to the Gentiles, recognized the accomplishment of others; those devout Jews — who clung to their laws — were outraged!

Peter, nonetheless, firmly believing that God's decree (that no man or beast was unclean in His eyes) was equally unswerving in his belief that God's divine love for mankind was all-embracing.

Peter went to the home of Cornelius at the bidding of God. As a dedicated Christian, he had no other choice but to obey God's orders.

It is a matter of Biblical record that Peter was reluctant to perform this task, for it was necessary for him to experience this vision on three separate occasions.

We must realize, however, that the vision came to Peter not as a means to change his attitude towards the regimented laws of religious beliefs, but — rather — to change his attitude toward mankind.

Peter went to answer the call of a man who longed for salvation, and because of this unhesitating response, Cornelius and other Gentiles found the joys of salvation.

The underscoring truth in this incidence is the fact that the Holy Spirit can see no difference in persons; repentance (true repentance) brings with it the gift of salvation!

Christ . . . those thousands of years ago . . . commissioned his followers to "make disciples of all nations." Today — centuries later — He still accompanies us on our program of world evangelism, for He wants all men to be saved. It was for this He died! As Christians, we must accept those whom He accepts, for His wisdom is boundless, His boundaries less confined than ours!

Are we — like Peter — willing to dare preconceived notions of what is right, and what is wrong, if that defiance will further God's work?
