ELEANOR TRANSFERRED

The Asheville Area Chapter, American Red Cross, of which Madison County is associated, and Mrs. Eleanor Penley are synonymous. When you speak of the Red Cross in our county you immediately think of Eleanor.

Long before our county became a part of the Asheville Area Chapter and often when the sledding became tough, there were two faithful and devoted Red Cross officials who were our loyal friends — Miss Ruth Lockman and Mrs. Eleanor Penley. Regardless of our problems they would come to Marshall and help us in every way possible.

Only last week we learned that Eleanor is being transferred to San Antonio, Texas where she will be casework supervisor for military families. Her departure from the Asheville headquarters will be soon after September 6.

She joined the Asheville offices in 1935 as director of blood recruitment and Junior Red Cross and in 1959 was a case worker until 1961 when she became director of service to military families, succeeding Miss Rosemary Engelbert, who was transferred.

She has been staff representative for Madison County as well as being active in the Disaster program. In fact, Marshall Upton, Chapter Manager, refers to Eleanor as "my right-hand girl." She often acts as manager when Mr. Upton is away on business.

It is with profound regret that we are losing such a capable and devoted friend but, as the old saying goes, "Our loss is San Antonio's gain."

We wish for Eleanor every success in her new location.

Three Bedrooms Included In Design Of Modest Home

A plan for people who need a modest home. This is house plan No. 88 developed by extension engineers at North Carolina State University.

The design is clear and efficient in appearance. Included are better living within budget range as many who are unaware that the necessary characteristics for they can afford to live better.

Three bedrooms in a house with a total heated area of 732 square feet are rare, yet no room here has less than about 100 square feet.

Modest size, contemporary style and the use of modern labor-saving building materials make this plan very popular.

Working drawing of this plan, No. 88, are available through your county agricultural extension or some economic extension agent or from Agricultural Engineering extension, N. C. State University, Raleigh.

TODAYS MEDITATION

Read Exodus 34:29-35; Hebrews 3:1-6

Moses did not know that the skin of his face shone because he had been talking with God.

—(Exodus 34:29, RSV)
As a small child, I attended a rural church which had only one room for all its activities. We had our class in the choir seats at the front. When the class ended we stayed in our places until Sunday School had been closed with prayer by one of the older people.

One Sunday during the closing prayer, I was looking around instead of bowing my head as I should. My attention was caught by the face of the elderly man who was praying. His face shone with radiance as he was talking with God.

It was perhaps twenty years later that I was reading the Bible through for the first time and came to this passage in Exodus. The face of the old man praying in church came to mind. I think I understood how Moses must have looked to the people who saw him. The God who illumined the face of Moses can illumine the faces of others as he did the old man in my home church.

PEGGY JO SMITH, J. G. KESSARIS EXCHANGE VOW

A ceremony in Mars Hill Baptist Church conducted on Aug. 20 by the Rev. Elmer S. West Jr., D. D., united Miss Peggy Jo Smith and James George Kessariss in marriage. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward B. Smith and he is the son of Mr. and Mrs. George Kessariss of Charlotte.

The couple will live in Chapel Hill. The bride and bridegroom, each having attended Mars Hill College, will be students at University of North Carolina.

A reception in the church fellowship hall followed. Mrs. Pierce S. Bradley Jr., and Mrs. Herschel W. Holcombe were hostesses assisted by Mrs. Robert Chapman and Mrs. Don Henderson.

Mr. Smith gave his daughter in marriage. She wore a dress of peau de soie with high fitted bodice and flared skirt. Her veil was attached to a coronet of pearls. Her attendants wore dresses in shades of pink in Empire style, and carried nosegays.

Miss Margaret Harden of Eastman, Ga., was maid of honor and bridesmaids were Mrs. W. G. Werth III, sister of the bridegroom, Miss Becky Holt of Greenville, N. C., Miss Ann Peebles of Candler, and Miss Debbie Bradley of Marion.

Mr. Kessariss was his son's best man and ushers were Tommy Carrier, Billy Lipscomb, Joe Hodges, and Ralph Pearey, all of Charlotte.
