County REAP Modified

Due to the lateness in getting the Rural Environmental Assistance Program under way within the county and the bottle-necks encountered in taking and following soil tests on certain farm practices, some modifications have been made and approved in this years' program, according to Emory Robinson, chairman of the County ASC Committee. This program known as REAP takes the place of the former Agricultural Conservation Program (ACP).

Mr. Robinson explained that the approved change will enable farmers to use specified amounts of different analysis of fertilizer and lime in establishing or improving vegetative covers of grasses and legumes in the absence of a recent soil test. He said that ASCS will continue to encourage farmers to take and follow soil testing on these practices but that they will not continue to be made mandatory during the remainder of the spring season. Some of the problems encountered with soil test recommendations were: the delays in receiving reports, the short supply of some of the nutrients recommended by the test, and the lack of ready mixed fertilizer to meet the fertilizer sugested in soil test reports. Robinson stated that the statewide County ASC Committee, who regulations and standards are assigned the responsibility exists for uniform control of of administering the Rural the problem of solid waste Environmental Assistance Program, requested and secured approval to not make soil testing mandatory on these practices in order to have a sound county program. He also said that the REAP for future years will likely demand that farmers take and follow soil test recommendations in determining the plant nutrients needs for assistance on these practices. In conclusion, Robinson urged farmers with farm problems which they feel can be solved by the use of the smaller than usual assistance through the County REAP to t the ASCS office at trahall for the program istails and the filing of their

Pre-Easter Services Are Planned Here

There is much talk today of Ecumenism, a phrase which as used refers to churches getting together.

Four churches in Marshall have solved this in a very practical way. Four times a year there is a Fifth Sunday union service at which the ministers and members of the Baptist, Methodist and Presbyterian, along with Ponder's Chapel, worship together.

During the week before Easter, that time which the Christian church holds especially sacred, they join for special services at one of the churches.

Next Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday evenings at 7:30 o'clock it will be the turn of the Baptists to be hosts. All four ministers will participate each evening. These are the Rev. Clark, Pedew, Williams and Wood. Mr. Wood, the host pastor will speak and lead in Maundy Thursday the communion service on that evening.

The public is urged to attend.

Regulations aimed at replacing all open garbage dumps with sanitary landfills or other acceptable facilities have been established by the State Board of Health. By July 1, 1971, proposed operators of new sites for solid waste disposal must have a location and operating plan approved by the State Board of Health according to Sidney Usry, chief of the Solid Waste and Vector Control section of the State Board of Health Sanitary Engineering Division.

Usry revealed that a survey of municipalities with ilations in excess of 2,500 pot disclosed 479 solid waste disposal areas with 23 fills. The disposal areas on served were municipally operated and did not include indiscriminate dumping.

The survey also indicated that North Carolinians throw away garbage at the rate of one ton per person per year. About four and one-half million tons end up in open dumps with the oher million cluttering yards, woodlands, streams, beaches and high-Wavs.

Operators of land disposal areas already in existence will be given until July 1, 1972, to submit plans for the sanitary become effective no later than July 1, 1974. The regulations are the outgrowth of a survey of all the state's 100 counties conducted to determine the extent of our solid waste disposal program, Usry said. The regulations specify that solid waste disposal operators will have to obtain approval from the State Board of Health in the form of a free permit. Approval will be based on a careful review of plans submitted for implementing the landfill or other acceptable programs.

Regulations include requirements for site selection, adequate drainage, compacting and covering solid waste to specifications. "This would eliminate," Usry said, 'health hazards of dumps
