

THE NEWS - RECORD

BILL STANTON'S excellent display of graphic arts, wood carvings, reproductions, oil paintings and other items are pictured above in the windows of the building between First Union Bank and ShadySide Florists here. The display, admired by hundreds, will remain throughout this month.

Stanton's Display Here Draws Praise From Public

By JIM STORY
Madison County is indeed fortunate in having as one of its residents an expert graphic artist and painter. His name is William C. Stanton, whose pen name is "Brother Rat".

Bill Stanton is not an ordinary artist. He has had two I. C. S. courses, one in commercial art and one in blue printing, and many of his works are considered superb. He is a gifted sculptor and his wood carvings are so realistic that they cannot be distinguished from "the real thing". Numerous religious statues carved by Stanton are in several large churches in the nation.

Having resided in many places, Stanton, his wife, and four of their nine children moved to Madison County from Asheville in June, 1970.

The Stantons located on the Barnard Road a short distance from Walnut where he followed his favorite hobby and profession. His studio is also located near his residence where he cordially welcomes lovers and admirers of truly fine art. His work at times becomes hard, due to an ailment which hampers his arms and hands. Nevertheless, he loves his work and has "the patience of Job" when he is doing intricate carving out of wood or charcoal or oil paintings.

His lifelike reproductions from photographs are uncanny and his steady hands which do expert lettering of all kinds has brought him many requests from persons who want products at their best. Most of the orders he receives are for custom-made products with unique and appropriate figures and designs which give the product a special significance and attractiveness.

In addition to illustrated sign, "Brother Rat" is talented in about all fields and is ready to serve you at all times.

In order that the citizens of this county and nearby counties can see samples of his work, Mr. Stanton has a display in the windows of the building adjacent to First Union Bank on Main Street here. This display will remain throughout September and although the window has just been decorated (last Monday) hundreds of persons have stopped to admire the various pictures, signs, paintings, articles and many other attractive items made from the careful and talented hands of William C. Stanton.

The next time you are in Marshall, stop by to see the work of "Brother Rat". You'll be glad you did.

Historical Group To Discuss Old Hospital

The old White Rock Hospital and the history of medicine in Madison County will be discussed at an open meeting of the Madison County Historical Society at 2 p. m. Saturday (Sept. 16) in the Presbyterian Church at White Rock in the Laurel section of the county.

The 30-bed hospital opened in 1919 and had a peak staff of four doctors and 12 nurses before it closed in 1942 according to Dr. Evelyn Underwood, president of the society and history department chairman at Mars Hill College.

She said the still standing as well as the manual which your organization uses. Copies of the WMU Year book will be on sale for 50c each.

We urge each leader to take advantage of the unusual opportunity to get leadership training from our state WMU Staff. We urge each church to send at least two Baptist Young Women whether you have organized mission work or not. Representatives from any of our churches are welcome to attend any of these conferences. Pastors are always welcome to attend any of our meetings. At the present time WMU work can begin in any church with one officer—a WMU Director working with the pastor. The emphasis now in WMU work is in using the minimum organization necessary to get the job done.

Per pupil instructional expenditures find four school systems in Western North Carolina ranking in the top 10 systems in the state.

High-ranking systems in the mountains, announced in a North Carolina Association of Educators survey, include the Tryon city schools, No. 3 in the state with expenditures per pupil of $589.73; Hendersonville city schools, No. 4, $574.79; Jackson County schools, No. 5, $568.28; and Madison County schools, No. 10, $555.25.

The Buncombe County school system, with expenditures of $395.50 per pupil in the 1970-71 school year, ranked fourth from the bottom in the state. The statewide average for the year was $478.24.

This spending for instruction and administration per student shows Buncombe #1 behind the Asheville city system. The Asheville figure is $525.84—approximately $30 less than the Madison County total.

Dr. A. C. Dawson, NCAE executive secretary, said in releasing the survey that while it would be expected that urban school systems would show higher spendings than rural systems, there were several instances where this was not the case.

Junk Cars At Industrial Site Here

Announcement was made this week that junk cars to be crushed soon will be located on the Marshall Industrial Site on the by-pass.

It was first announced that they would be on the Kermit Cody Used Car lot on Redmon Road but due to the large number of junkers on this lot, it was necessary to change the "crushing site" to the by-pass.

Owners of junkers who wish them taken from their property may contact:

Expelled Opportunity Corp. Members Reappointed By County Board

The Madison County Board of Commissioners has renamed R. L. Edwards, superintendent of Madison County Schools, Harold Anderson, a Hot Springs alderman, and Zeno Ponder, Madison County businessman and farmer, as its three members on the board of directors of the Opportunity Corp. of Madison-Buncombe Counties.

R. Bruce Sams, chairman of the board of commissioners, said the resolution of reappointment, in the form of a letter to the Rev. Robert E. Boggan, chairman of the Opportunity Corp., was initiated by the two other county commissioners, W. C. Moore and Ervin Adams.

Ponder, Anderson, Edwards and a fourth member, Cornell Proctor of Asheville, were voted off the board Aug. 24 after being charged with absenteeism from board meetings.

In the letter, the commissioners wrote in part: "We were informed and believed that we had, under the Green Amendment, passed by the U. S. Congress, the responsibility of naming three public representatives to the Buncombe-Madison County Office of Economic Opportunity board of directors."

The letter listed Ponder, Edwards and Anderson, adding that "we believe these three men demonstrated most clearly their interest and concern for all of the people; the poor, the middle class and upper class, but above all, the hard-hit, little-appreciated taxpayer."

"We believe so firmly that we named the three most capable civic-minded leaders that we are now with a great deal of pride naming these three men back on the board." Boggan, when the board took action, said the board "by every stretch of the imagination had been more than lenient, more than hopeful that the four would resume their responsibilities on the board."

Wildcats Trounce Blue Devils

Once-beaten Mars Hill hammered Hot Springs 48-0 Friday night in an Appalachian Conference game. The win was Mars Hill's third of the year. Mars Hill sprinted to a 28-0 halftime lead behind the passing of quarterback Monty Reese and the receiving and running of Mike Osteen. Osteen scored the games first touchdown on a four-yard run. Later in the first quarter, Osteen caught a 54-yard pass from Reese for another score.

Osteen and David Price scored second quarter, TDs. Osteen tallied on a 30-yard run. Jim Price added the extra point on a halfback pass to Jim Roberts. Minutes later, Price ran 20 yards for another score.

Mars Hill scored 20 points in the second half on a one-yard run by Gary McMahan, a 13-yard run by Gary Buckner and John Freeman's seven-yard burst. The halfback pass from Price to Roberts worked again for the extra point on the McMahan score.

Rosenstock Cited Over WWNC Sunday

Rosenstock and Company of Mars Hill was featured on the radio program PROFILE over Station WWNC in Asheville, Sunday, September 10, at 6:15 p. m.

James M. Rosenstock, Gen. Mgr., and Part Owner of Rosenstock and Company was interviewed by Fred Brown, WWNC staff announcer, on the 15-minute program.

Following the broadcast, Rosenstock and Company received a Profile Award from WWNC and North Carolina Blue Cross and Blue Shield, Inc., sponsor of the program, for its outstanding contribution to the industrial growth and development of North Carolina. The citation was signed by John Alexander McMahon, president of North Carolina Blue Cross and Blue Shield, Inc., and by Robert Bunnelle, president of Citizen-Times Publishing Company.

The Profile Award was presented to Rosenstock and Company by David Luckadoo, North Carolina Blue Cross and Blue Shield's representative in the Asheville District Office.

The purpose of the broadcast is to assist in the campaign to attract new industry to North Carolina and to develop greater public appreciation of business and industry already located in the State.

County Man Fined $2,000 In Tax Case

Ziska F. Ingle, 62, Mars Hill merchant, was convicted Thursday in Western U. S. District Court of willful failure to file federal tax returns and received a suspended two-year sentence and a fine of $2,000.

Ingle pleaded guilty to charges in connection with unreported income of $39,557.73.

The money was earned over a period of four years between 1965 and 1968, according to the indictments.

A breakdown of unlisted income by year was as follows: 1965, $11,911.08; 1966, $6,853.78; 1967, $10,927.08; 1968, $9,865.79.

The prosecution told the court that the tax due amounts of $5,758.93.

Ingle, operator of a combination service station, cafe, and grocery store in Mars Hill, was sentenced by U. S. District Court Judge Woodrow Jones during a special sessions court here.

Investigation of the charges was conducted by the intelligence division of the IRS. Agents had probed the case for several months before charging Ingle, a spokesman said.

Several GOP candidates on the state level as well as local candidates will attend. Price per plate is $5.

Ramsey Heads Nixon Drive In County

Sherman C. Ramsey of Route 1, Marshall, has been tapped to head the Nixon-for-President Committee in Madison County, according to Joe I. Morgan, who has so informed James T. Myers of Bryson City, and Dean Christensen of Burnsville, the Co-Chairman of the Nixon drive in the 11th Congressional District. Charles H. Jones, Jr., of Charlotte is the State leader of the Re-election of the President Committee.

Ramsey is successful farmer and former employee of the Federal Government. He has pledged to enthusiastically mark on the county level for a second term for Richard Nixon. He said that "It is my firm conviction that it is in the best interest of America that President Nixon be re-elected so that he may continue the positive programs in both the domestic and foreign spheres which he initiated in 1969. Let us not change horses in mid-stream." Ramsey concluded, "we need firm leadership."

SHOWN ABOVE is the display of Indian Relics now in the library window on Main Street here. There are approximately 400 pieces in the collection of Mr. and Mrs. Olen Chandler of Madison County.
