1973 REAP Program Is Announced

The U. S. Department of Agriculture has announced a 1973 Rural Environmental Assistance Program (REAP) that will strengthen conservation and diminish air and water pollution according to Emory Robinson, Chairman of the Madison County Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Committee.

Robinson explained that through the REAP the Federal Government shares with farmers the cost (usually on a 50-50 basis) of carrying out needed conservation and environmental protection measures on their farms. Practices emphasized are those which help to provide long-range preservation of the environment and return greater benefits to the public.

The initial funding level for 1973 will be $140 million, the same as the initial funding for the 1972 program. The $140 million level reflects an $85 million reduction from the $225 million authorized funding by the Congress for the 1973 REAP and reflects the effort of the administration to hold down Federal spending to help control inflation.

Farmers will receive Federal Cost-Sharing for the following new practices: (1) installation of excess water management systems where they are essential to combat adverse environmental conditions such as water pollution from contaminated water runoff caused by high water table, or incomplete recycling of animal or human waste, sedimentation, salinity or alkalinity; and (2) use of conservation tillage on a demonstration basis to reduce soil loss from land devoted to intertilled (row) crops.

Also, the 1973 REAP expands the authority for cost-sharing on practices to solve agriculture-related air pollution problems. In the past, cost-sharing for pollution abatement was limited to those practices with soil and water conservation benefits.

The following conservation and environmental protection practices will receive high priority during the coming year, Robinson said: establishing a permanent vegetative cover; improving or protecting permanent vegetative cover; developing facilities for livestock water; water impoundment reservoirs; constructing terrace systems; ditching or dikes; permanent wildlife habitat; animal waste storage and diversion facilities; sediment retentions, disposal pits for solid waste and sediment or chemical runoff measures.

In conclusion Robinson said that the County ASC Committee with the assistance of other members of the county development group will in the near future formulate the county's 1973 REAP within the National program guidelines to best fit the county needs.

1,504 Fall Enrollment Sets Record At Mars Hill College

A 4 percent increase of students from western North Carolina helped boost fall enrollment at Mars Hill College to a record-setting 1,504 according to figures released this week by college officials.

The enrollment is 37 more than last year's fall enrollment of 1,467, or a 2.52 percent increase, and 10 more than the previous high of 1,494 set in the fall of 1970.

Students from the area comprise 36.8 percent of the total enrollment. There are 553 from the 19 western-most counties of the state, which is 21 more than last year.

Robert R. Chapman, associate dean for academic affairs and registrar, attributed the gain to an intensive recruiting campaign and to the popularity of "special" academic programs unique in the region. He listed such programs as allied health for nursing and technical school graduates, Career Opportunities Program (COP) for teachers' aides, Head Start, and training program, an in-service guidance program for ministerial students and the Lions Win Over G-W.

Mars Hill scored a touchdown and two-point conversion with just 37 seconds left in the game to earn a come-from-behind 18-17 victory over Gardner Webb Saturday at Bowling Springs.

The Lions cut the deficit to 17-16 when quarterback, Danny Robinson hit Hooper Sartin with a 12-yard TD pass with time running out. Then Mars Hill elected to go for the win by running for the conversion. The strategy proved correct as Jeff Davis barreled over for two points and the victory.

"I'm super-glad we came from behind the way we did," said Mars Hill Coach Harold Taylor. "This just shows what great spirit the team has. That last drive which enabled us to win was the kind of thrill the guys really needed."

The score was knotted 10-10 at the half. Mars Hill scored in the first period on a safety when Gardner Webb snapped the ball out of the end zone on a punt attempt. The Lions got their first TD in the second quarter on a 37-yard pass from Jeff Conner to Jeff Davis and added a two-point conversion run by Conner.

Gardner Webb's first half points came on a 42-yard field goal by Mike Stephens and a 10-yard pass from Ken Reid to Ray Hannon.

The Bulldogs took a 17-10 lead in the third quarter when Hannon threw a 58-yard scoring bomb to John Malory. Stephens successfully kicked his second PAT.

Mars Hill's winning drive in the fourth quarter was a sustained effort of 60 yards. Danny Robinson's passing sparked the march.

Conner and Robinson split the quarterbacking duties for Mars Hill in the first half.

The leading ground-gaining for the Lions was freshman Ronny Reeves, who piled up 85 yards in 12 carries. He had a sprint of 49 yards in the second quarter.

Mars Hill boosted its record to 3-5, while Gardner Webb fell to 3-4.

Cutshall Motion Amended

Judge Sam Ervin III of Morganton allowed a motion in the L. H. Cutshall trial to be amended here Thursday of last week and ordered that Ronald Howell, Cutshall's attorney, be permitted to see all evidence possessed by the prosecution.

Howell's motion for a new trial on grounds of indifferences in the selection of a jury in Cutshall's third trial last year, pending since the September Superior Court term here, was amended to ask another trial on grounds of new evidence in the case.

Cutshall, now serving a life sentence for the shooting death of Richard Jack Reeves in the Bellvue section Jan. 30, 1970, was ordered returned to state prison in Raleigh Nov. 1 and is to be brought back to Madison County Jail for a hearing on the motion Nov. 27.

His son, Dewayne Cutshall, 26, told Sheriff E. Y. Ponder and SBI agents the last of September that he shot Reeves and allegedly pointed out where a rifle had been discarded in the woods.

Howell is seeking a fourth trial for Cutshall on the basis of his son's confession.

No charges have been filed against the younger Cutshall, however, Solicitor Clyde Roberts and SBI spokesmen report the investigation is not yet completed.

The first trial ended in a mistrial and the second was thrown out by the N. C. Supreme Court which ordered the third trial on the grounds of evidence introduced which should not have been used.

L. H. Cushman has pleaded not guilty at all of the trials.

FHA Staff Attends Meeting

Employees of the Farmers Home Administration met at the Sheraton Motor Inn at Asheville, on October 25-26, for a two day workshop on methods for implementing a greatly expanding Farmers Home Administration program.

Attending the meeting from Madison County were W. E. Hill, County Supervisor, Vernon H. Rankin, Assistant County Supervisor, Barbara C. Allen, County Office Clerk, and Miriam E. Zink, Assistant County Office Clerk.

State Director James T. Johnson addressed the meeting and praised the employees for making the North Carolina FHA program one of the largest programs in the nation. He stated that Farmers Home Administration last year provided some 150 million dollars to farmers, rural residents and communities in North Carolina.

Johnson said that Farmers Home Administration in North Carolina had the best overall program in the Nation. He cited several "first" for the State FHA, such as having the first solid waste disposal project in the nation, being first in total number of solid waste projects and having the largest dollar volume for rural housing loans of any state in the nation.

Johnson compared the agency's program over the last three years and said that in 1969, FHA loaned 65 million dollars in North Carolina. In 1970, it increased to 81 million dollars. In 1971, it went to 123 million dollars and in 1972, to a record 150 million dollars for North Carolina. This year's programs are projected to exceed 180 million dollars or triple that of three years ago.

These services have provided thousands of North Carolinians decent homes, improved rural communities by providing central water and sewer systems and assisting rural areas in cleaning up the countryside by providing county-wide waste disposal systems to some 50 North Carolina Counties. In addition, thousands of farmers received financial assistance for real estate and operating type loans in a farm loan program that doubled over the three year period.

Johnson pointed out that these increases have been made with only a slight increase in personnel and praised the employees for their increased production and efficiency.

Employees received information on new lending authorities provided FHA by the new Rural Development Act, which extends FHA services for essential community facilities, broadens the rural housing program, provides loans to young farmers or rural youths, and authorized Farmers Home Administration to make business and industrial loans in places to 50,000 population.

Johnson said that existing and new authorities now give the agency the opportunity to provide financial assistance to the total rural sector in administrative efforts to make rural development a reality and is expected to double the present volume over the next few years.
