Robert Lacey Is District Court Judge

Governor Jim Holshouser today announced the appointment of Robert Howard Lacey, an Avery County lawyer, as District Court Judge in the 24th Judicial District.

Lacey replaces Bruce B. Briggs, who resigned to become Resident Superior Court Judge for the 24th judicial district.

The 24th district includes Avery, Madison, Mitchell, Watauga and Yancey Counties. Judge Lacey's term will expire December 6, 1976.

Lacey is a graduate of Appalachian State University and received his LL. B. degree from the Wake Forest University School of Law. He began his private law practice in Avery County in 1949, and served for three years in the Office of the General Counsel of the U. S. Department of Agriculture in Raleigh.

Lacey attends the First Baptist Church of Newland, where he is Sunday School Superintendent.

He and his wife, the former Mao Faith Gibson, have two daughters and one son.

Sing, Lunch This Sunday At Red Oak

The Red Oak 7th grade is sponsoring a gospel singing and ham lunch this Sunday at the Red Oak school gymnasium.

The lunch will be served from 12:30-2:30 and singing will begin at 2:30 o'clock.

Groups expected at the singing include The Soul Seekers, The Friendly Five, Little Ivy Singers, Mount Bethel Youth Choir, Oak Ridge Youth Choir and Jupiter Baptist Youth Choir.

Admission: Lunch $1-$1.50; singing, $1.50. Combination lunch and singing, $2.00.

Sandra Hollon To Get Degree

Sandra Sizemore Hollon is one of 71 mid-year graduates of Berea College who receive degrees this month. The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Toie Sizemore of Route 1, Mars Hill, she graduates with the Bachelor of Arts degree in elementary education.

Berea College is a private liberal arts school also offering B.S. degrees in nursing, business administration, home economics, industrial arts and agriculture.

The college provides tuition free education to its students, 80 percent from the Southern Appalachian region. Instead of tuition all students work at least ten hours a week for the college.

RALEIGH REPORT

By ERNEST MESSER

The differences between Craig Phillips, State Superintendent of Public Instruction, and Dallas Herring, Chairman of the State Board of Education, seem to go deeper than a mere disagreement over educational policies and procedures.

The latest hassle between the two officials arose last week over a Department of Public Instruction report on the progress of third graders who had first entered the State's new kindergarten program, as compared with third graders who did not attend kindergarten. Herring accused Phillips of falsifying the report to make the kindergarten pupils show up better than they were. The exchange between the two educational leaders became bitter at times.

Differences between the two men date back more than two years. It surfaced first when Herring criticized Phillips for too many innovations in teaching methods and for deemphasizing the teaching of the three R's.

In January an abortive attempt was made to oust Herring from the Chairmanship of the Board of Education.

The power-struggle showdown will probably come in next year's elections, when Superintendent Phillips will certainly have strong opposition in the Democratic primary and, if he wins in the primary, in the general election.

Meanwhile, North Carolina's schools may suffer from the struggle.

Roy McCampbell's sudden resignation as head of the State Division of Motor Vehicles Enforcement and Theft Bureau, and his subsequent arrest for making a false claim of $9,230 against an insurance company, has revived a move which started last year to move the Enforcement and Theft Bureau out of the Department of Motor Vehicles.

McCampbell is accused of falsely claiming the loss by theft of $9,230 worth of guns and household equipment for which he collected from an insurance company.

McCampbell's resignation and arrest have caused the SH and the Department of Motor Vehicles to begin an investigation of his activities while he was an employee of the department.

The Enforcement and Theft Bureau has been under fire for almost the entire duration of the Holshouser administration. Early in the administration, the Bureau was accused of purchasing "bugging" equipment, and later, both Robert Morgan and Rufus Edmisten accused the Bureau of making illegal investigations for political purposes.

The Senate has passed a bill to prohibit the adding of fuel charges to electric bills without approval of the Utilities Commission. The Senate bill also repealed the use of future cost estimates in setting electric rates, and increased the Utility Commission from five to nine members. The bill now comes to the House for further action.

After lengthy debate, the Senate also passed a bill to increase the membership of the Milk Commission from seven to ten, and reduced the Governor's appointments to two members. The Governor now appoints all seven members.

The General Assembly has enacted a bill which prohibits more than 18 percent of the Highway Patrol from being promoted to supervisory positions. Of the 1161 members of the patrol, 204 (18.6 percent) are supervisors. It is the intent of the General Assembly that more patrolmen stay on the highways and less in offices.

Proposals to repeal the manufacturers inventory tax and legalize industrial revenue bonds have been made by the Department of Natural and Economic Resources.

Repeal of the inventory tax has been proposed during several past legislative sessions, but it has failed to pass. Twice the General Assembly authorized the issuance of industrial revenue bonds, and twice the Supreme Court declared them unconstitutional. Last year the voters rejected a constitutional amendment that would have authorized revenue bonds.

There will be warfare in Raleigh until the ERA issue is settled, which appears now to be several weeks off.

Just A Woman's Observation

By DOROTHY BRIGMAN SHUPE

I didn't realize that I hadn't written this column until a few minutes ago when I checked to see just what I had written about the last time! It was the last week in January and here we are about to the Ides of March! When I got up this morning and saw all that snow - well, it was so pretty that I just turned back to bed and slept some more. But I believe the rains tonight will wash the snow away and we'll be back in school by the time this gets out Wednesday afternoon. If not, I'll just kill another day eating things I shouldn't while watching TV or listening to the radio!

Are you used to the new time yet? It still seems very early to leave just as it is getting daylight. I get to bed pretty good on the new time, but the other morning I had a funny experience. I got up about 6 o'clock, put on my two eggs to boil, went back to bed for TWENTY minutes, went back to sleep and awakened again when I heard popping going on all over the kitchen! It had been an hour since I put the eggs on and the water had boiled dry and the eggs had popped all about!

Another morning lately, when I awakened, the oil furnace wasn't working. Well, our delivery service usually works real well. So we called "Hart" Crowtoome to fix the thing for us. He came and fixed something, somehow, and turned the furnace on, and no fire! WE HAD NO OIL! So Shupe called Gregory and said, if he and Ruth didn't want two guests that night, he'd better get us some oil! The house was warm when I got home that afternoon. I'm not sure if they didn't want us, or if Greg thought he ought to get his best credit customer fixed up so the visitation wouldn't last too long.

If you missed hearing our new band's concert, you missed having a delightful afternoon. Those students, many of them new to the music world - played just marvelously! I could just see great admiration for all those kiddies in the eyes of those there. Mr. Stell has a knack with children, and the friendship of all of the members that I've seen only once before - back when John Lackey was directing the bands at both Marshall and Mars Hill. I thought that was a wonderful thing the Mars Hill ladies did in giving the band $500 last week.

OBSERVED - Congratulations to Melame Wyatt for being our new Betty Crocker of Tomorrow - I believe the name is something different this year, but she won it anyway. Also congrats to our Bicentennial Committee for receiving all the honors they did recently - Dr. Underwood and her committee have done a great job and continue to be on the lookout for improving our county and working toward a great celebration next summer - Sorry about Dean Shields' wreck, didn't even know about it til I saw the picture in The News-Record - Was nice the sorority honored him as their "Sweetheart" - Congrats to Katherine Boone for being selected "Outstanding Girl for 1975" - And to the others for their climbing up degrees - And wasn't it grand that Al Rice was named Outstanding wrestler of the year during our first team's existence at the conference tourney at Owen High recently - Gee, a lot of good things have happened since January 30, haven't they? Have a good day!

Mrs. Gray In Recital At Mars Hill

Mrs. May Jo Gray, assistant professor of music at Mars Hill College, will present a piano and violin recital Friday, at 8:15 p.m., in the college's Moore Auditorium. Mrs. Gray will be accompanied by Donna Nagey Robertson, associate professor of music at the Baptist related college.

Among the selections to be performed by Mrs. Gray will be the piano sonata in F sharp minor by Brahms. This is the second piano sonata that Brahms wrote as a young man when he was dedicated to Madame Clara Schumann. The sonata is in four movements and will comprise the first half of the program.

The second half of the program Mrs. Gray will play violin selections including an unaccompanied Sonatine by Jean Martinon, a contemporary French composer. Mrs. Gray studied the work in Salzburg under the renowned French violinist Jean Foureure. Also included will be the Variations in F Minor by Joseph Joachim. This place for violin and orchestra was found by Mrs. Gray while she was researching the compositions of Joachim in Europe. She is preparing a catalogue of Joachim's original compositions which is the first such catalog to be attempted.

Mrs. Gray earned her bachelor's degree in violin at the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill and her Master of Music degree in piano and violin at Converse College. She has also studied piano with Mrs. Grace Patter Carroll and violin with Hans Letz at Juillard.

Sneak Snow Hits WNC With Punch

An aging Old Man Winter delivered a sneak, 14th round punch Monday, knocking out school schedules throughout most of Western North Carolina and belting the area with up to a foot of snow.

But by noon, the surprise snow gave way to expected rain as temperatures moderated, and road conditions improved, as did chances of schools reopening Tuesday.

The State Highway Patrol reported Monday night that highways throughout Troop G weren't hazardous except in Avery County, although chains or snow tires weren't required for travel there.

It was a different story along U.S. 44 from Cherokee to Gatlinburg, Tenn., through the Great Smokies National Park. The highway was closed Monday morning as six inches of snow fell at the Cherokee entrance.

Snow plows were put in service and the highway was reopened later in the day. But as temperatures dropped below freezing at nightfall, chains were required and there was the possibility the road might again be closed overnight.

The 12-inch snow accumulation was recorded at Newfound Gap in the Smokies. The Spring Creek section in Madison County also had about a foot of snow.

Elsewhere, accumulations of from three to seven inches were reported to the west and north of Asheville, with four to seven inches in Graham County, five to six inches in Swain and Jackson counties, six inches in Avery county, four to five inches in Mars Hill, three to four inches in Canton and three inches in Asheville.

Schools were reopened in Buncombe County on Tuesday as most of the snow was washed away by rain Monday afternoon.
