COUNTY LIBRARY GENERAL DELIVERY MARSHALL NC

15c Per Copy

Incumben	ts	Easily
Dominate	P	rimary

By NICHOLAS HANCOCK Editor

Democratic incumbents fared well in Tuesday's primary election in Madison County with few serious challenges coming from other candidates within the party's ranks.

Incumbent county commissioners, school board members and the current clerk of Superior Court easily garnered majority votes which will insure them a place on the ballot in the November general election. The only question regarding that insurance came in the commissioners' race where Robert G. Capps and Reese Steen, both of Mars Hill, trailed incumbent Ervin Adams by 50 and 158 votes, respectively.

Virginia Anderson of Hot Springs led the party's nomination in the commissioners' contest with 1,632 votes. Current commission chairman James T. Ledford of Mars Hill polled the second highest number of votes for one of the three available seats with 1,560. Adams received 1,289 votes.

Capps, owner of Capps Funeral Home in Mars Hill, obtained 1,239 votes. Contacted late Tuesday night, Capps said he had not made up his mind about calling for a run-off election against Adams.

"Right now, I don't know about a runoff," Capps said. "I want to do some checking around before I decide if it would be wise to do that.

Capps said he would announce his plans by Thursday or Friday concerning the run-off.

Carol M. Anderson, county supervisor of elections, said candidates would have until noon Tuesday, July 6, to call for a run-off election.

Steen, a Mars Hill dentist and farmer, came in fifth behind Capps with 1,131 votes. He said Tuesday night that he may consider calling for a runoff "if my people say they want to have a go for it. "I have nothing to lose, and it might be in the best interest of the Democratic party," Steen said.

Steen said he would be talking with his campaign workers and supporters in the next few days to find out their feelings about entering a run-off.

In the District II school board race, incumbents Ed Gentry, Bobby Ponder and Floyd Wallin captured the nomination by out-polling newcomer Michael Allen of Marshall Unofficial vote totals showed Gentry with 1,236 votes, Ponder with 1,299, and Wallin with 1,290. Allen's votes totaled 853 with his strongest support coming from the Walnut and South Marshall precincts in which he carried margins over all three incumbents. Clerk of Court Jim Cody defeated challenger Loyd Fowler with 1,845 votes to Fowler's 1,050. Fowler carried only two precincts, South Marshall and Walnut.

In the 11th District Congressional contest, James McClure Clarke of Fairview easily defeated John G. Kleibor 2,280 to 166 in the county. Clarke led by overwhelming margins in all 11

In spite of a local campaign to wrest the party nomination from incumbent State Senator Robert Swain, voters here gave Swain the lead in nine precincts and a total vote of 1,986.

Republican Primary

Only a handful of the county's 3,000-plus Republican voters turned out Tuesday to nominate GOP candidates for three offices in the November general election. Approximately 13 percent voted to sheriff, and a district court judge for the 24th judicial district.

Robert Phillips, Gary Sprinkle and Lester C. Wilde won the GOP nominations for board of commissioners with Phillips receiving 308 votes; Sprinkle, 305; and Wilde, 301. Thomas S. West received a total of 127 votes.

The winning trio led West in 10 of 11 precincts while West barely carried the Grapvine precinct with one vote over Phillips and Wilde, each.

In the contest for the Republican sheriff nomination, former Marshall police chief Bill Lisenbee easily defeated Lue Allon Silver, a Grapevine resinominate candidates for three dent, 267 to 115. Lisenbee led at all board of commissioners seats, a poles except in Silver's home

> Assistant District Attorney Forrest F. Ball of Newland won the party nomination for district court judgeship by defeating John W. Seegers 355 to 33. Ball carried all precincts and the absentee ballot by substantial margins.

> Lisenbee will now face veteran incumbent Sheriff E.Y. Ponder and Ball will square off against Charles Philip Ginn in the November elections.

Former Hot Springs Grocers Barred From Stamp Program

Virginia Justice and Linda Plemmons, formerly doing business as Carolina Grocery in Hot Springs, have been barred from the food stamp program for a year because of violations, the U.S. Department of Agriculture's Food and Nutrition Service reports. John Baskin, who is in charge of the Knoxville field office of the Food and Nutrition Service, said that Ms. Justice and Ms. Plemmons have recently sold the store and the new owners have been authorized to accept food stamps.

During the ownership of Ms. Justice and Ms. Plemmons, the store was charged with selling tobacco products, motor oil, health and beauty aids and other ineligible items for food

Baskin said food stamps, by law, can be used only to buy food. The only exceptions, he said, are garden seed and plants to be used to produce food.

Fire Tax Defeated

By NICHOLAS HANCOCK

Voters in the Spring Creek precinct turned down a West Madison fire district tax 166 to 48 in Tuesday's

The fire tax vote was put on the ballot in the Spring Creek Township after residents petitioned the Madison County commissioners and the county elections board to hold a referendum.
"I feel the people misunderstood the referendum." Fire Chief Stan McElroy valuation, "but some of the people I talked to tonight told me they thought it was going to be five to eight dollars on the hundred," he said.

"I don't think it was a vote against the fire department, only a vote against the fire department, only a vote against funding it with tax money." he added. The West Madison Fire Department was organized one and half years ago and since that time has grown to include 20 trained firemen, a truck and other equipment and construction on a building to house the equipment. Most of the financing has come from dona-tions and fund-raising events.
