

Clarke-Hendon Debate

 proposed by President Reagan would be enormous. Hendon, however, said that he supports the idea.

Neither Hendon or Clarke would support a tax increase to balance the federal deficit. Clarke called for trimming the defense budget by closing obsolete bases and improving procurement procedures. Hendon would also trim the defense budget by stretching out delivery of expensive weapons systems such as the MX missile and B-1 bomber.

Clarke has attempted to put some distance between himself and the tax increase promises raised by Walter Mondale. Clarke told us, "I don't subscribe to any tax increase plan. I'm unclear about what Mondale has suggested and I'm not committed to any one plan."

Hendon called for a balanced budget amendment to the Constitution, saying, "There's no discipline in Congress when it comes to spending. We must impose discipline."

Both Hendon and Clarke pledged their support for the Appalachian Regional Commission.

The two also pledged to support the tobacco price support program in Congress.

Clarke and Hendon also agreed in their opposition to tuition tax credits, a move supported by President Reagan. Hendon said he opposed the president because, "Tuition tax credits would have a devastating effect on our public schools."

Clarke said he is opposed to a school prayer amendment, saying, "There are so many diverse groups, any organized prayer could be dangerous. Hendon said he supports a school prayer amendment."

If re-elected, Clarke said he would seek a seat on the House Agriculture Committee and would ask to retain his seat on the Interior Committee.

Hendon said he would seek seats on the Interior, Select Committee on Aging and Veterans' Affairs Committee. He would also seek to sit on the POW-MIA Task Force.

Tar Heel Towns Have Colorful Names

Why not, North Carolina... it's not only a question, it's the name of a community in Randolph County, one of many communities in the state with names that really say something. It's just one of the many communities here with names that stand for a lot more than simply a spot on North Carolina's map.

One can stand Erect in Randolph County, for example, or be Alert in Franklin. There's Relief to be found in Mitchell County, and Trust abounds in Madison.

Those searching for Truth need look no further than Chatham County, and lovers of Charity will find it in Duplin. The cautious will discover Thrift in Mecklenburg County.

Those who've been down at heart are in Luck in Madison County. They can also find Delight available in Cleveland County, Joy in Burke and Friendship is there for the asking in Guilford County. Over in Ashe County, you'll find things are just Dandy.

Folks who Needmore can find it in both Rowan and Swain Counties. Intelligence is found in the heart of Rockingham County, but Perfection is to be found in Craven. One can Prosper in Columbus County.

For those intrigued by romance, there's Bachelor in Craven County and Matrimony in Rockingham.

Politicians can feel right at home in North Carolina, too. There's Liberty in both Randolph and Rowan Counties. Radical is in Wilkes. There's a Republican in Bertie County and a Democrat in Buncombe.

Those longing for far away places need look no further than North Carolina. Honolulu is to be found in Craven, Houston is in Union, Minneapolis is in Avery County, Quebec is found in Transylvania, California is in Dare, along with Maine and Nebraska can be found in Hyde County. It's not a mile high, but Denver can be found in Lincoln County.

For Irishmen longing for the old sod, there's Dublin in Bladen County and Belfast in Wayne.

Animal lovers aren't forgotten, either. Those who like rabbits can find Hare in Alleghany. Turkey is located in Sampson, while Falcon flies in Cumberland. Alligator is in Tyrrell and Duck is plentiful in Dare. Eagle soars in Iradell County.

Bug Hill swarms in Columbus County, while Frog Level rests melodiously in Rutherford. Those wanting animals in their natural habitat will find Bee Log in Yancey, Bat Cave in Henderson, Wolf Mountain in Jackson, Beargrass in Martin, Buffalo City in Dare County, Hog Quarter in Currituck, Goose Hollow in Columbus and Swanquarter in Hyde.

Many plants and trees have native homes in North Carolina, too. Hickory looms large in Catawba, Hollow Poplar stands in Bertie and Magnolia blossomed in Duplin County. Rose sweetens life in Wayne County, Waterlily floats in Currituck and Azalea spans Buncombe and New Hanover. Cranberry decorates Avery, Fig flourishes in Ashe County and Grapevine grows here in Madison while Bamboo blossoms in Watauga.

Fish are also well represented. For example, you can catch Bass Crossroads in Nash, Gull is open in Vance, Roe hatches in Carteret and Perch simmers in Surry. Rockfish is snared in Hoke County and Spot can be sighted in Currituck. Trout glistens in Ashe County.

North Carolina is a name place...so Whynot (Randolph County) Trust (Madison) yourself to a Few (Durham) days of Bales (Madison), Delight (Cleveland), Joy (Burke) and Friendship (Guilford).

The Tar Heel State can be a great place for the Cactus (Guilford) of a great vacation.

ALL C.D.'S PAY MORE OR LESS.

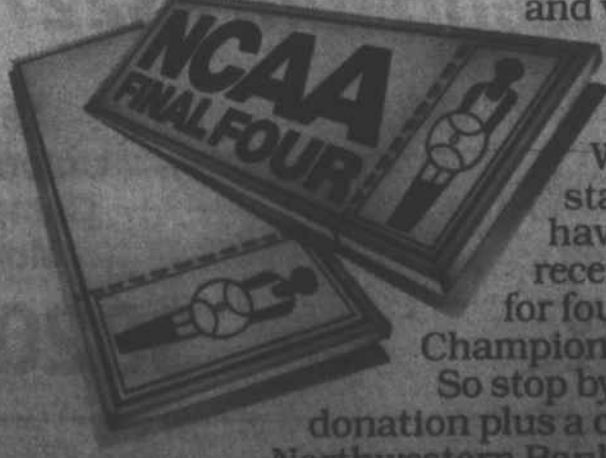

IF YOU'RE LOOKING FOR MORE, LOOK TO NORTHWESTERN: FOR TOUGH-TO-BEAT RATES PLUS A BONUS FOR YOUR FAVORITE SCHOOL. There's more and more clamor about Certificates of Deposit these days. Seems every bank's trying to get you to invest in its C.D.'s. So how do you choose? Simple. Check the yield. Start with the interest rates. Does the bank you're considering make its rates public — and clear? Northwestern does. Just check our chart.

Next, find out how long you have to leave your money in to get a special rate. (At Northwestern, we offer exceptionally high rates on both our short- and long-term C.D.'s.) Finally, see how often they compound their interest. (On C.D.'s of one year or more, Northwestern compounds its interest daily.)

Once you've checked out all the banks' C.D.'s, we think you'll choose Northwestern.

But, just in case you need some extra persuasion, we'll add a little something.

Open a C.D. at Northwestern during October or November, and we'll donate up to $50 to the college of your choice.

And, on top of that, we'll enter you in our "Win Your Way to the Final Four" sweepstakes. On December 11 we'll have a drawing. The winner receives an all-expense-paid trip for four to the N.C.A.A. Basketball Championship in Lexington, Kentucky.

So stop by and ask about Northwestern's Three-Point Play: high yield, college donation plus a chance to go to the N.C.A.A. Final Four. Northwestern Bank. Where you'll find high rates — plus a whole lot more.
