Marshall Book Club Meets

The Marshall Book Club met on March 11 at the home of Mrs. O.A. Gregory. Mrs. Walter Ramsey presented the program, reviewing two entertaining books, "Pieces Of My Mind" by Andy Rooney and "You-All Spoken Here" by Roy Wilder, Jr.

Some of Rooney's 'pieces' covered praise for farmers, comments on income taxes and his views on the Book of Ecclesiastes, which Rooney thinks needs some changes. Roy Wilder, Jr. is a North Carolina native and former reporter with the New York Herald Tribune. His book contains some 3,000 quaint sayings we have heard most of our lives.

Members present were Mrs. James Story, Mrs. Frances F. Ramsey, Mrs. Wade Huey, Mrs. J.L. McElroy, Mrs. J.L. Baker, Mrs. Walter Ramsey and the hostess, Ruth Gregory.

MARCH 24 IS THE FINAL DAY to order shrubbery from 4-H members.

Retirees

Continued From Page 5 who is charged with administering an efficient program with a minimum of waste of public funds. For this reason, current emphasis is on the prevention of overpayments.

If you work, you are urged to take the time now to assess your work plans for the year, if possible. You may compare last year's estimate to get an idea of the effect your estimated work will have on your benefits. If you need help, the nearest Social Security office will be glad to help either by phone or in person.

Another good way to prevent overpayments is to report any change in earning levels as soon as they occur. Some people wait until the next earnings report is due. Their report of earnings results in a discovery of a significant overpayment caused by the lower level of earnings estimated earlier.

The annual earnings limit changes each year with increases in national wage levels. In 1984, it was $6,960 for people age 65 and over and $5,160 for people under 65. The earnings limit does not apply once people reach 70. In 1985, the earnings limit is $7,320 for people over 65 and $5,400 for people under 65.
