July. There was no discussion regarding the dismissal of former acting police chief David Lankford during Monday's meeting, although the former chief was in the audience.

Town manager Larry Sprinkle, who dismissed Lankford, said he has interviewed four or five candidates for the department, but no decisions have been made as yet.

Several residents asked for increased police patrols at night.

The councilmen set a $5 filing fee, the legal minimum, for candidates filing for office in the November municipal elections. Filing dates in Weaverville run from Sept. 13 until Oct. 4 for seats on the five-member council.

The council also approved a franchise agreement with the Carolina Power and Light Co. to provide electric power to the town. A previous agreement signed in 1915, expired earlier this year.

Mayor Sprinkle noted that his grandfather, William Sprinkle, signed the 1915 document as the town's mayor. The present mayor's father, C.N. Sprinkle, also signed the agreement as a member of the town council.

The meeting was adjourned at 8:10 p.m. Next regularly scheduled meeting is set for Sept. 16 at 7 p.m.

two paintings by Earl about the harms of smoking.

In the gallery are several eye-catching pieces. One is a large set of wooden keys, with one in a lock. Another is a carving of a tree trunk with a man's face in a hollow, called "Trapped." Lou said actor Lorne Green once considered buying the piece.

One interesting collage is about the state of mankind and our future. It shows many of our problems, such as hunger and pollution. The collage, called "The Veil", is aptly named, for a veil covers most of it.

One of Earl's "Keep America Beautiful" paintings was done in Islip, N.Y. During the daytime, Earl crossed the street to Hutley's Bar on the town's Main Street and sketched the trash there. During the night, he watched from where he lived as the people gathered, and used them in his painting.

The series is a tangible offshoot of their dislike for pollution and littering. They often pick up trash from the road near their driveway.

The Stressings are planning to build a sculpture garden in a newly-landscaped area in front of their home. The garden will hold metal sculptures that are able to withstand being outside.

On the extent of their success in the area Lou said, "We sell some pieces. I wouldn't say it's a big amount, but the main thing is letting people know we're here. Getting some money is like icing on the cake."

"We're having some people from the nursing home over Friday. And we've invited Madison High School to come out on field trips once school get started again."

The Stressing Art Gallery is open from 7 until 5 p.m. on Sundays, or visitors may call for an appointment and directions. Their telephone number is 689-2212. The gallery is
