Start a Bank Account This Fall.

Along with its campaign or bigger crops per acre and better selling methods, the Progressive Farmer expects to hammer unceasingly the overwhelming need for saving as well as making. We believe that every farmer in the South should have a bank account, however small and there will never be a better time than right now to begin. How will it belp you to put your money in the

Here are some of the ways: 1. A bank is the safest place to keep money, and it is actually dangerous to keep any considerable sum of money about the home. Doing so is simply an invitation to burgiars and murderers. Of course it is important that you put your money in a sound bank managed by officials in whom you have confidence; but there is now hardly a section of the South without such banks, and 96 per cent of all our banks are far, far safer than the practice of keeping

2. It is good business. Farming cusiness; why not conduct it as such? Other business men have their banks in which they regularly; deposit their surplus funds, with which they establish their credit and obtain losss at fair interest rates. Is there any particular reason why we should not run our business in the same way? On the othof reasons why we should,-why, as a matter of fact, it is the only sentible way in which it can be conduct-splendid attribute that we usually associate with strength and churueter. We all admire the man, who with temptations to spend wastefully all about him, can resolutely say no to them all; we know that any ation blessed with men of such a breed has in it elements of strength and power that will make it great. One of the finest things you can thrifty and strong in self-denial, and you yourself can do few things bet ter than set him the example,

4. It is insurance against a destithetic thing in the world than an old couple, broken by toil and poverty, their children gone, little to hope and live for, condemned to fight on your after year for their very bread. Let us in the summer of life and strength so work and save that when the winds of life winter blow upon us, we can face them without fear. 5. It permits buying on a cash basis. So long as we are dragged down by the credit system millstone that curses the cotton country, we must not expect any great progress, individual or collective. There is just one way to get away from this evil, and that is to put your businesson a cash basis and keep it there. This is going to mean self-denial and. t is better for a year to do without forever paying tribute to a syschildren down into the dust of hopeless goverty. Put some money the bank, and when you buy, buy for each, at cash prices. Then, if you haven't enough money to buy all you need, do without it, we say, rather than go into bondage again. Got in touch with the banker in your town, and do it now; very ofn he's a mighty good man to know. -Progressive Farmer.
