WAREHOUSES THE SOLUTION

Cotton warehouses in every cotton growing county in the South is the only solution to the low priced cotton problem, say officials of the American Cotton Association and other agricultural leaders in North Carolina, and these warehouses will come only through organization of the cotton farmer they say. Some communities in the state have already organized warehouses and many others are contemplating the erection of these storages in the near future. The American Cotton Association, through its township and county branches, furnishes the easiest and simplest way of getting an organization for warehouse building, for in every section where the Association has formed branches, plans have been set in motion for the erection of warehouses to store all the cotton grown. The branch association provides an organization of all who are interested, the farmer who produces the cotton, the merchant who sells to cotton farmers and the banker who lends money to the merchant and the farmer with cotton as the basis of his security. What the farmer needs more than anything else in his fight for fair price cotton is organization and money. The organization will come through membership in the county branch of the American Cotton Association, and the money can be secured from any bank easily when the cotton warehouse is organized. But cotton warehouses will not

WHAT THE COUNCIL OF NATIONAL DEFENSE SAYS

After an investigation of the high cost of living problem, the council of national defense finds:
That the nation's productive powers have not been fully utilized since the armistice.
That too few goods, notably the necessities of life, have been produced, and that even some of these goods have been withheld from the market, and therefore from the people.
That the high cost of living is due in part to unavoidable war waste and increase of money and credit.
That there has been and is considerable profiteering, intentional and unintentional.
The council believes that the remedies for the situation are:
To produce more goods, and to produce them in proportion to the needs of the people.
To stamp out profiteering and stop unnecessary hoarding.
To enforce vigorously present laws and promptly to enact such further laws as are necessary to prevent and punish profiteering and needless hoarding.
To bring about better co-operation and method in distributing and marketing goods.
To keep both producer and consumer fully informed as to what goods are needed and as to what supplies are available, so that production may anticipate the country's demands.
Better standards of living are impossible without producing more goods," said the council's announcement.
"At the war's end and our allies had desperate need of the essentials of life. We have had to share our resources with them, but this drain will gradually lessen.
The process of production requires time. If production is rapidly increased, vastly improved conditions will prevail in America when the results of present and future labor begin to appear.

"Team work is imperative. The manufacturer, the farmer, the distributor must each immediately assume his part of the burden and enter upon his task.
"On American business rests a grave responsibility for efficient co-operation in bringing about full and proportionate production. On American labor rests an equally grave responsibility to attain maximum unit production and maintain uninterrupted distribution of goods if labor itself is not to suffer from further rises in the cost of living.
"The entire nation—producer, distributor and consumer alike—should return to the unity that won the war. Group interest and undue personal gain must give way to the good of the whole nation if the situation is to be squarely met."
The council is composed of Secretaries Baker, Daniels, Lano, Houston, Redfield and Wilson, and Grover B. Clarkson, as director.
"MILLIONS FOR THE MASTER"
From every section of our Association good news comes from the campaign, "Millions for the Master," is being talked and sung all over the land and the Little River people are adding their part. Our people are loyal and will do their part when they know—know the needs, know their duty. And they are coming to know. Angier sends up 27 new subscribers for the Biblical Recorder, Coats sends 28, Spring Branch 27, Bule's Creek 18 and the home to house canvass has not been completed. Hear this: Neill's Creek puts the Recorder into every home. That's fine, very fine, the best thing reported thus far in the campaign. That's the way, line up every family, every member for the Lord's work. Rev. G. T. Mills reports this good bit of news for us.

Lillington votes unanimously to raise $4,000 for the 75 Million Campaign. This in addition to the fact that they have just completed paying their church debt, having paid more than $1,000 this year. And again: Chalybeat, Springs decides to raise $6,000 and they will do that and more. It is noticeable that Rev. J. S. Farmer is pastor of both these churches. This campaign is gathering momentum every day. New friends are coming. There is no doubt about the matter that God is in it, and it is going to be done. If a doubter shall read these words, just watch and wait, or better still, come along and help to make it go. The Lord needs you, but you far more need the Lord.

SPASMODIC ADVERTISING

The Roanoke News of Weidon, North Carolina, carries an excellent editorial this week on the question of spasmodic advertising. There are a number of business men in the State, to which this editorial applies, as these men seem to think that if they insert a small ad. once a season they have done everything that should be done by way of local advertising. Other business men realize the importance of constantly keeping their goods before the readers and consistently advertising throughout the year, of course, making their displays appropriate and reasonable. These business men recognize the true value of their local paper, and use its columns because it keeps them before the public in the most efficient way possible.
The editorial in the Roanoke News is as follows: "It's just as easy for you to get enough in one day to last you a week, as it is for the business man to advertise enough in one week to last him a year. The business man who thinks he is like a camel and can make a long journey
