Having Company is Formed
Coming at a time when it is so needed the company formed by Granville M. Tighman and his associates to build, sell and rent homes is a very welcome thing. Need for it has been felt for many months. Dunn could not continue to grow so fast as it should without it.

Dunn Spirit Shows Itself
Added by the women of Dunn the new Chamber of Commerce did its first job Tuesday afternoon in a manner that argues well for its future when it entertained the four officers and fifty men of the field artillery platoon temporarily quartered here, with a basket picnic. It was warming to the hearts of those who love Dunn to witness this occasion. It was a welcome thing to the soldiers, too. It is not often that the dough-boy on duty is permitted to enjoy such things, and when 500 of the fairest women and best men of the Old North State visited with these boys and gave them a touch of Dunn hospitality it created within their breasts a regard for the town that will stand for many years.

Chamber of Commerce Becomes A Fact
Dunn's Chamber of Commerce has started on its journey to aid in the future development of the community. Backed by the best business men of Dunn, offered and directed by some of its most energetic members, and adequately financed, there is no reason to believe that the institution will not accomplish all that has been predicted for it. The field is here. The opportunities are before us. The organization is, or will be when all details are completed, as perfect as the most eminent organizers of the country can make it.

The only danger the institution faces is that which has disrupted so many of its kind. This danger is that members will become impatient through ignorance of the body's activities and become unpleasantly critical of those who are directing its work. This danger will be overcome if all who should be interested will take the time to keep interested—if they will attend all meetings and give to the officers that degree of cooperation they have every right to expect. The organization cannot make Dunn over in a day. It has no Aladdin's lamp whose gem it can summon to erect giant industries and create new enterprises. It must work for what it gets—must have the aid and advice of its members always. Results will come slowly—but they will be sure if the Dunn Spirit manifests itself at the proper time.

Ellis Goldstein Town Builder
It was the fitting and the proper thing—that election of Ellis Goldstein to the presidency of the Dunn Chamber of Commerce. No better choice could have been made. Mr. Goldstein has worked much for the community. Often he has neglected personal business to put over something for the benefit of the community. In the organization of the Chamber of Commerce it is doubtful that anyone would have come so soon and so large a measure had he not been here to keep alive the spark kindled by the community's desire to organize.

No man of Dunn who would give so much of his time to the commonwealth could have been found. Few there are who possess that rare combination of desire, willingness, determination and ability to do that is his. The Dispatch congratulates Mr. Goldstein that his service has been recognized. It commends the Chamber of Commerce for its choice.

Along with Mr. Goldstein the organization placed in office ten men as officers and directors who will prove of incalculable value to him in whatever he undertakes. These are Mr. D. Holliday and Granville M. Tighman, as vice-presidents; D. C. Fausch, as treasurer, and A. L. Newberry, V. L. Stephens, Robert L. Godwin, Marvin Wade, Marvin Butler, Dr. J. E. Butler and J. Lloyd Wade as directors. If, with this galaxy of energy and ability, the president fails to make a showing, the Chamber of Commerce idea lacks much of the good that we know it possesses. No Carolina town can show their equals.

SHORE MEMORIES
Laugh, little ripples, sing!
Refresh me with your joy.
What though these hours too swiftly wing?
Short bliss can never cloy,
I taste my sweets with deep delight:
Can not a memory mock Time's flight?
Dear beach, your sands of gold
Shall glisten in countless flow
Through my life's glass. Right dear I hold.
That ridge where dark pines grow
To make your brightness seem more bright.
As day is fairer for the night.
And, oh, you waves, swell high!
Weave wild, melodious spells,
Whose vibrant echo shall not die,
But, like deep-chiming bells,
Ring through my dreams by night and day.
And bid them charm my cares away.
So, sands, and curling waves,
I voice no sad farewell;
The "joy of living" which you gave
Within my soul shall dwell;
And if, forgetful, I am sad,
Ring out your chanson; make me glad.
—Marie L. Eginton, in The New York Times.

FEW PROTESTS INDICATE FIGHT ON LEAGUE WANES

Senators' Mail Evidences Lessening of Opposition
Washington, D. C.—Proof that the people of the country favor adoption of the covenant of the League of Nations and the ratification of the treaty submitted to the Senate by the President is furnished in mail received by Senators on either side of the question. It is a truism among legislators that opposition to any man or measure is always more vigorous and persistent than advocacy; that those who fight against are usually more zealous than those who fight for a great proposition like the League of Nations. Even Senators who have figured most prominently in the attempt to amend or defeat the treaty and cripple the League of Nations are receiving very few communications from their constituents or other persons to urge them to further efforts. They admit that there is nothing like the response they had expected from the elements which have been reported as working for rejection of the treaty and the League. In the earlier stages of the battle against the treaty, Senatorial opponents were the targets of many telegrams and letters inspiring them to continue their opposition, but these came as the result of two or three waves of propaganda sweeping across the country under the stimulus of much money. Subsequently the surges of interest became less violent and less frequent, until within the last two months the Senatorial mail has brought relatively few demands for the obstruction or defeat of the League. Senators of long experience point out that this comparative silence on the part of those who at first manifested enmity to the League indicates that they have forsaken the view that it was "detrimental to America and American rights and interests." These Senators say they know from observation that this is a significant development, and that it means a general recognition that the treaty and the League are not the evils perfervid orators have pictured them to be.

GOES UPON HIGH

Wealthy Chinese Has Naval Trip From This Life to Next
There was a pretty custom among some of the ancients when a prominent citizen died, to send his valet along with him on the road to Paradise, and it was oftentimes necessary to resort to extreme methods to insure this company for the departed. But in the territory of the China-American Trading Company, Ford dealers in Tientsin, China, they have discovered a much better aid to the deceased over the rough places on the trip to the Promised Land. It is a custom of the Chinese to burn various kinds of effigies at the funeral ceremonies of the rich, the more wealthy the departed the more elaborate the figures burned over his grave. These effigies represent every manner of thing such as human figures, horses, sedan chairs, tables loaded with money, etc. The figures usually conform to some of these stereotyped fashions, but at the funeral of a Mr. Li, who died a short time ago in Tientsin, and who was a very wealthy man, the bereaved family outdid themselves and made an imitation of the deceased gentleman's Ford car to be burned at his grave. This Ford effigy was made entirely of strong Chinese paper stretched on bamboo and reed frames. The car was complete in every detail, the pedals accurately placed, and all made of paper and bamboo. The interior of the car was also accurate in detail, being carefully upholstered in paper. The effigy of the driver as shown in the photograph, was a work of art. The car was carried about three miles through crowded streets to the graveside where a match was applied and it was consumed in a few minutes. This is the first time a motor car has been burned at the grave of a Chinese, and there is every reason to believe that the deceased went up "On High."

tion will be completed by a committee composed of H. L. Brothers, Mayor John Underwood, Sheriff N. E. McGeehy, W. C. Downing and E. W. Herring. The object of the memorial association was stated by A. L. McGeehy, who presided. Addressed in furtherance of the movement to honor the former President were made in local theaters tonight by D. M. Stringfield and Dr. J. Y. McGeehy.
