Hampshire Hog Sale.

FRIDAY, NOVEMBER, 14th 1919

Sale to be held three miles east of Dunn on G. R. Lee Place

30 head, bred sows, gilts and boars

ANNOUNCEMENT

In announcing my first sale I wish to say that my herd is of god quality and breeding. While there are herds better advertised there are very few with more good quality animals than will be found in this herd.

The sired sows in this sale are being sold because I cannot keep hogs to any extent for a while in my new location and am compelled to let go of stock that I have tried to produce for several years, and am sure they will suit the most particular buyer.

ROOSEVELT ASSOCIATION FORMED AT FAYETTEVILLE

Fayetteville, Oct. 27.—A branch of the Roosevelt Memorial Association was formed here today at a meeting held at the courthouse. Organization will be completed by a committee composed of H. L. Brothers, Mayor John Underwood, Sheriff N. H. McGeachy, W. C. Downing and R. W. Herring. The object of the memorial association was stated by A. L. McCaskill, who presided, Ad-

SENATORS DISREGARD PRESIDENT'S ILLNESS

Republican Partisans Continue Nagging—Friendly Paper Rebukes G. O. P.

Washington, D. C.—It must be evident to all fair-minded people of the country that the Republican leaders of the Senate are conducting a campaign of hate against President Wilson. Such men as Senators Penrose, Brandegee, Moses and Norris do not quit when he is ill. They try to create suspicion in attacks that he cannot answer while under the care of a physician. They insinuate that he is acting President through others. There is bound to be a reaction, Democratic Congressmen believe, and it will hurt the men and party guilty of offenses such as these.

In the Senate, Penrose and Brandegee conducted a sort of musical performance at the expense of the sick President. Senator Brandegee had been trying to prove that the President had not himself made answer to a resolution on the Chinese railroad situation, although the response from the White House bore his name. The debate seemed designed to bring out the insinuation that the President was too ill to attend to the affairs of state, and somebody else was acting in his stead.

Mr. Brandegee had plainly intimated that he did not have President Wilson personally considered the request of the Senate, or signed the refusal to transmit the report.

"I wonder how many Senators think that the President of the United States has read that report or given it a 'thorough consideration,'" said Brandegee.

Then Mr. Penrose, the interlocutor, said:

"I did not quite understand whether the Senator stated that it was actually the President's own signature on his communication to the Senate. I am a little curious to know whether he signed it himself, and when he read this communication in the multitude of matters engrossing him, and in view of his lamentable condition when he returned."

Mr. Brandegee answered: "I will state that I am not an expert in handwriting and I am not familiar with the signature, or signatures, of the President, or the signature of the President's resolution. I do not know whether it is the President's signature or not. A message came in here yesterday or day before from the President of the United States and I did not see that. I do not know whether it contained his signature or not."

That is the kind of petty statesmanship one finds on the Republican side of the Senate nowadays under the leadership of Mr. Penrose. It was so apparent to the public what the Republicans were trying to get in the Congressional Record that a Washington paper which is not a supporter of President Wilson, was constrained to rebuke Mr. Brandegee.

"There is an innendo in this statement that the public will believe to be entirely unjustified," said this paper. "It is an imputation of bad faith of which, manifestly, nobody about the President could be guilty. The author of this statement, one of the aggressive and militant opponents of the movement of the League of Nations, perhaps already has regarded his utterance and realizes the injustice of the natural inference."

Representative Champ Clark has reminded the Republican leaders of the House of their pretensions to economy. He warned them that they were fostering legislation that "appeals to the sensibilities of men." He was speaking of a wildcat vote-baiting scheme to provide money for all the crippled people in the United States. Having promised a great deal more than they could give or had any intention of giving to the soldiers who fought in the world war, the Republicans are now running about at the eleventh hour bidding for support at the ballot box.

"It is a great pity that every one who is crippled cannot be doctored," said Mr. Clark. "It is a great pity that everyone who is sick cannot be taken care of, but the United States Government is not an eleemosynary institution."

"We have come to a pretty pass," said Mr. Clark. "The chairman of the Committee on Appropriations says—and he ought to know something about it—that there is going to be a deficiency in the revenues of the Government this year of $3,500,000,000. Why go on rolling up that deficiency? The gentleman from Wyoming (Mr. Mondell, leader of the House) says that the proposition will cost a million dollars. Every dollar that is appropriated by this Congress means sweat and toil and labor somewhere, and you are loading the backs of the taxpayers of the country until you have bowed them up. It is said that the United States Government gives only a dollar and the State gives a dollar. Where does the United States get its dollar? Out of the United States? Where does the State get its dollar? But of taxation—and the taxes are high enough now. If we do not cut down these taxes and the expenses you are piling up here, these places that know us now will know us no more."

"We have got to cut down these appropriation bills. I was in favor of the soldiers' vocational education bill because we will never be able to repay the debt that we owe the country in the great world war. But this is not a parallel case at all. The United States cannot do everything. It is utterly impossible. The best thing for Congress to do would be to pass a resolution here directing the States to resume their governmental functions, and let us alone. "Our duty is plain. We must do the people all we can. The Republicans should save money. We must make up for what the war cost us."

ELLIS-BECKER

Roanoke, Va. Times. On Tuesday evening at 8 o'clock in the St. John Episcopal Church Miss Helen Mary Becker, of Roanoke, was married to Mr. John Alston Ellis, of Raleigh, N. C. The church was beautifully decorated with autumn leaves, and the altar with tapers and white chrysanthemums. The bride had as her maid of honor, Miss Virginia Caldwell, of this city, who wore a bridal gown with tulle, and carried lavender chrysanthemums. Mrs. Charles Blake, of Detroit, Mich., was matron of honor. She was gowned in rose velvet, and had an arm bouquet of white chrysanthemums. The groom was attended by his brother, Mr. W. Caswell Ellis, of New York, as best man. The ushers were Messrs. Ringgold Davant, Edward Davant, Robert Allen, Dr. Spencer Speed, Messrs. Robert Churchill, Lucian Cooke, Chester Markley and Dr. Hugh J. Hagan. Before the bridal party entered the church Mrs. John M. Horton played a violin solo, Schamus Cavatine, with exquisite sympathy. After this, the wedding hymn, "Oh, Perfect Love," was sung, richly interpreted, by Miss Emma Cook. Mrs. M. R. Paville played the wedding march and other musical numbers. The beautifully impressive marriage ceremony of the Episcopal Church was performed by Mr. J. W. Chatley Johnson, rector of St. John Church. The bride was given in marriage by her father, and was lovely in white satin and embroidered georgette, with tulle veil fastened with orange blossoms. She carried a bouquet of orchids and bride's roses showered in swansong. Mrs. Ellis is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ethelbert Saunders Becker, of Roanoke. She is a graduate of Randolph-Macon Woman's College, and since her graduation has done student association work with the Young Women's Christian Association. During the past two years she has been engaged in the excellent activities of the hostess carried on under the War Work Council of the same organization.

Mr. Ellis is the son of Mrs. J. W. Ellis, of Sanford, N. C. He was graduated from Wake Forest College and later from the Louisville Baptist Theological Seminary. During the war he was chaplain of the Third Hundred and Thirty-third Infantry, stationed at Camp Taylor, Camp Sherman, and with the Expeditionary Forces in France. He returned to America in August of this year and is now pastor of the Fullen Memorial Baptist Church in Raleigh, N. C.

The out-of-town guests who attended the wedding were Mrs. W. S. Becker, Mrs. M. A. Bosworth, Mr. and Mrs. Rucker Jenkins, Master Becker Jenkins, of Bluefield, W. Va.; Mr. W. Caswell Ellis of New York; Miss Margaret Vesey, of Fort Wayne, Ind.; Mrs. Charles Blake, of Detroit, Mich.; Dr. Spencer Speed, of Baltimore, Md.; Mrs. Robert Miles, of Davidson, N. C.; Mr. Ringgold Davant, of Bluefield, W. Va.; Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Spratt, of Baltimore, Md.; Mrs. W. W. Hughes, of Welch, W. Va.; Miss Mary Lura Sherrill, of Greensboro, N. C.; Dr. N. A. Pattillo, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Winfree, Dr. and Mrs. T. M. Campbell, Miss Mabel K. Whitehead, Miss Gillic Larow, Miss Alice Holding, Miss Lella Forbes, Miss Hilda Lichty and Miss Ada Bramble, of Lynchburg, Va.

After the ceremony, Mr. and Mrs. Ellis, with Mr. and Mrs. Becker, received the wedding party and the out-of-town guests.

Mr. and Mrs. Ellis will be at home after November 1 at Raleigh, N. C.

WAFELES?

"Waffles this morning" is always welcome news. Even the busiest of housewives can serve them as often as the family wishes. If she uses Occo-nee-chee Self-Rising Flour, it already contains baking-powder, soda and salt—the economical flour. For these ingredients cost more if bought separately than in Occo-nee-chee. It's easy to make biscuits, waffles and hot-cakes with Occo-nee-chee just mix with water or milk and bake. Results are always perfect because Occo-nee-chee Self-Rising Flour contains the extra ingredients in right proportions to insure perfect baking.
