Shingles, Paints and Building Things

There is a strong market for all of the things we carry for building purposes, but we are still fairly well stocked and can supply immediate orders with little difficulty.

This is the building season. Construction and reconstruction are going on all over the country. There is not near enough material to supply the demand that will come with the full opening of the season.

The goods we have in stock will be sold as cheaply as the price we paid will permit. When we get more, the price is bound to be higher.

For these reasons we are advising our friends to place orders now. Every delay will cost you money.

Give us lists of the things you will require. We will do our best to get for you all that you may need.
