BAPTIST MEETING TO BEGIN SUNDAY

A two weeks' evangelistic campaign will begin at the First Baptist church next Sunday morning, is Rev. C. Oscar Johnson, pastor-elect of the First Baptist church of Tacoma, Washington. Mr. Johnson is a rare combination of orator, humorist, conversationalist and humility. He has remarkable natural ability which is augmented by the best of training and experience. For five years after graduation at Carson-Newman college, Tennessee, he was pastor in Los Angeles, California. From there he came to the Southern Baptist Theological Seminary, Louisville, Kentucky, where he graduated in the full course. During his stay in Kentucky he was pastor of the Campbellburg Baptist church which he led in a most remarkable way. The church in Tacoma to which he goes in July is a great downtown church in a large city—the largest Baptist church of the city.

Rev. Mr. Johnson is an old friend of pastor Eugene Olive, of the First Baptist church. For nearly three years they were students in the Seminary together and were co-laborers in several evangelistic campaigns. It is through Mr. Olive's invitation that he comes to our town, and he assures us that we have had no evangelist within recent years who has done more substantial and satisfactory work in every respect than we may expect from Mr. Johnson.

The services on Sunday will be at 11 a. m., and at 8 p. m. Beginning Monday morning, the day services will begin promptly at 9 o'clock, closing within one hour. The evening services throughout the week will begin at 8 o'clock.

Members of choirs of the different churches are earnestly invited to assist in singing with the large chorus choir each evening, and a hearty invitation is extended to all to attend every service during the campaign.

MEXICAN BUSINESS LIFE NEEDS REORGANIZATION

Currency System Retards Commercial Development—Economic Laws Disregarded

(Washington Star.)

At the present time business life in Mexico is a curious affair. The country is on an absolute gold basis—that is, practically no paper money and no subsidiary coinage is in circulation. The smallest gold piece is 50 cents and these pieces are few in number and difficult to handle. The two-dollar gold piece is the real unit of money and any changing of this into smaller denominations is done by means of postage stamps, street car tickets and any other substitute for cash which the public can be induced to accept. The result is, of course, a chaotic condition so far as the carrying on of business is concerned. Various issues of paper money have been put out by the Carranza treasury authorities, but repeated repudiations have taught all Mexicans to be wary of paper money, and nothing but hard cash is now current. The silver content of the subsidiary coinage was so large in Mexico that Great Britain's law came into operation comparatively early in the price rise which silver experienced, and, as a result of its value as bullion being greater than its value as a circulating medium, silver money entirely disappeared from Mexico.

Mexico might have triumphed over the political mistakes of Carranza if economic laws had been allowed to take their course, but the leaders of the outgoing administration have insisted on an attempt to put into effect a mass of socialistic and poverty devised measures which rendered abortive the plans of the country's business leaders. The greatest need has been a banking system in which the people would have confidence, but every plan for such a system has been vetoed by Carranza. With natural resources of unparalleled value, and with every necessity at hand for a rich and happy development of that country, the lack of governmental and business machinery has been a great that Mexico has not only failed to advance during the past eight years but has actually fallen backward.

Needs Financial System
It is to be hoped that one of the first acts of the new leaders in Mexico will be to establish a financial system for their country by means of which business will be made possible and the development of the country hastened. The problems that will confront Mexico's legislators in devising a monetary system for their country will be far different from those now facing the legislative assemblies of Europe. Nearly every country in the world is seeking a way to introduce public confidence and true value into huge amounts of paper money issued during the war and since the armistice. No such problem faces Mexico; it is on a sound metallic basis and the problem now waiting to be solved is more like that in the United States before passage of the law creating the Federal reserve system. The United States had a large stock of gold, plenty for the needs of the country, but it lacked the machinery for stabilizing it in times of emergency and had no machinery for producing sufficient amount of currency for the carrying on of the nation's business. Likewise, it was not able to get full value for it because the market at this time is limited to transactions which are actually settled in metal. Credit is, to a large extent, nonexistent. While this remains so, business and development must proceed with halting steps, but when a sound banking system is once inaugurated and the people again secured the possibilities of growth for this rich nation are boundless.

Financial Note: The debenture bonds of certain organizations are high-grade investments, but the Debt of the Socialist Party can not be recommended to conservative citizens.

YOUNG PEOPLES' RALLY

The young people of the Presby-terian churches of Cumberland and Johnston and Harnett counties will hold a rally at Galatia church, near Swain, N. C., on Wednesday June 23. The exercises will begin at 10 o'clock and continue all day. Picnic luncheon will be served on the church grounds. A social program is being prepared. It will consist in part of the following:
Devotional.
Reports from Young Peoples' conferences at Red Springs.
Address: "The Choice of a Lifework."
Address: Rev. G. E. Henderlite, Missionary to Brazil.
Reports from Societies in each church.
Address: Sr. Antonio Almeida, Native Pastor, Pernambuco, Brazil.

Churches that have no Young Peoples' Societies are especially urged to send representatives. Reports of the year's work will be made by a delegate from each society. Every young person in the Presbyterian church in the above mentioned counties is invited to be present.
