THE "POOR MARRIED MAN"

If you are a married man, don't apply for a teaching position at Northwestern University, at Evanston, Ill.

Evanston, Ill., is a "social center" or so the university authorities think. The salaries paid instructors are so slim that they can not maintain a wife and a family upon them.

because of the "social demands" upon the time, strength, and pocketbook of the professor. Wives of married instructors have had to take jobs in stores, and as telephone girls, and waitresses in restaurants (horrible thought), in order to live!

Wherefore the university authorities say "no more married instructors."

A baldheaded man complained of a fly on top of his head. The town fool killed the fly with an ax. That he killed the baldhead, too, didn't appear to him to matter.

Did it not occur to the authorities to interfere with the unnatural, not the natural process? To eliminate the false standards of "society" and keep the true standard of human life? For it is not good for man to live alone; the unmarried instructor is sure either to marry or to wish to marry. If he does the first, he is fired; if he merely wants to and can't, he worries as much as the professor already in chains of debt and small salary and "society observance"—heaven smite the mark!

The best teacher, other things being equal, is the happiest teacher. The laborer is worthy of his hire. Let Northwestern ban the "society" expenses for Northwestern reduce its expenses.

and the ingrained habit of the human race for more powerful than the voice of the board of directors. Either Northwestern will change its ruling or Northwestern will go down, down, down in educational ability . . . not to mention desirability!

INTRODUCE BIBLE TO HOME There are those who cry "Education, education!" believing that it is the panacea for all ills, the means of ending all evil.

There are those who venerate "Religion, religion!" equally sure that in the pulpit and its teachings are the seeds of the millennium, and that we need but to "believe" to end all our troubles, and solve all our problems.

Finally, there are those who mix their demands and ask for "religion in education" or "education in religion." These are they who want the Bible taught in public schools; these are they who insist the pulpit is a forum for political, sectarian, scientific and sociological discussion.

They forget, these enthusiasts, that an absolute separation of church and state is an American fundamental. Exclusive of Sunday, there are 144 hours in the week. In the usual public schools 30 hours a week is devoted to education. Why take from the 90 time to speak of the Bible? Why not take from the 114 hours not devoted to education, for study of the Word? What is Sunday for? For what is a Sunday School?

Men go to church one, two, three hours in a week. Why use those precious three hours to discuss books, men, politics, war, crime, sex . . . all the scare-head stuff the radical "preached," as opposed to the sincere minister of God, uses to "attract" people to the church?

There is a time and a place for everything; a time and place for education, and for religious instruction. The school is no place to teach the Bible, or religion; the pulpit is no place to teach geography or politics.

Leave education to the school, reintroduce religious training to the home, give the church a chance to do its work and the school opportunity for theirs, and we will all be better off, better educated, and more honestly and sincerely religious.

A COLLEGE EDUCATION IN AGRICULTURE OF GREAT VALUE TO N. C. FARM BOYS

By C. B. Williams

No one can doubt that one of the greatest factors in bringing about the high standing in Agriculture of North Carolina in the list of states of the Union is the work of the State College of Agriculture and Engineering. Since its feeble beginning thirty-three years ago in training young men to help man the agriculture of the State, there has been a steady improvement in our agricultural practices, until today North Carolina is known far and near as a State that has progressed and is moving forward rapidly along all agricultural lines. As the years have come and gone, young men trained in Agriculture at this college have gone back home into different lines of farming, and are doing good farming, themselves and are lending their efforts in many ways to help improve the agricultural and other conditions of the communities in which they have located in order that all of their farm neighbors may live fuller and more fruitful lives.

Many are serving the people in county agent work; in teaching vocational agriculture to farmers' sons and daughters in rural high schools; and in many other ways they are rendering service to their fellowmen and to their State which has had foresight to provide facilities for their special education.

Without the efforts of these men, much that is known and in practice at the present time with reference to soil improvement, livestock feeding, breeding and management; hog and poultry raising; the value of food seed of different crops; proper gardening and trucking methods; fruit growing; cultural methods; disease pests and their control; rotation of crops; beekeeping; dairying; kind of farming implements best suited for different purposes; use of commercial fertilizers and lime; marketing; credit, etc., would not be in practice. Not only are these men rendering valiant service but are finding it possible to provide far better for themselves and families than they would otherwise have been able to do, because of their increased worth and earning power.

They are not only serving the State more efficiently than they could possibly have done without the special training, but at the same time are receiving more nearly their just proportion of the comforts and other good things of life.

An education that actually trains in and for life's duties is always an efficient and common sense training.
