

TO FIGHT WEEVIL BY CULTIVATION

vil the world will have to pay more for cotton to induce the farmers to make it. If the necessities of mankind call for cotton the people who want it will have to pay enough for it to make it pay the farmer to make it under weevil conditions. No, I have no idea about prices, and am not giving that much thought. Prices will be fixed by the cost of making, for even if most farmers do not know how much their cotton costs to make a number of them drop out when the margin between cost and selling price is too close. Cotton will cost more to make next summer than ever. But it will have to sell high to induce farmers to make it at the increased price, and the high price will stay. Not enough farmers will stay in the game to make the big crops we have made in the past, if I am any judge. I will plant about 80 acres of tobacco next summer as a side line, and will in other ways modify my system. We have been planting tobacco successfully, so up in all operations so that we can have our campaign as firmly in hand as possible, and expect to make money right along raising cotton. But we are not going to farm by the old methods and get away with it." "Then you don't incline to the man who would cut out the growing of cotton for a year?" I ventured. "I don't favor cutting out the growing of cotton for a year, nor for any time, for the cotton crop is already short," he answered, "but I do expect to cut out forever the old way of making cotton. And I further expect that the man who does not cut out the old customs will cut out cotton for a year, and continue to cut it out. It looks to me as if we are to make cotton henceforth like the peach men make peaches. But we are going to make it, and I believe a better day is in front of the cotton farmer."

"FATHER ON HIS VACATION"

After having been henpecked, mansplained, abused and traduced all these years, Jiggs Mahoney, of "Bringing up Father," has decided to assert himself. He is going to take a rest far away from Maggie, his termagant "worsehalf" as he chooses to term her; Dinty, and the rest of the Mahoney clan. In other words he intends to find himself. If you can surmise or imagine just what "rest" can or might be, how he proposes to spend it, what vicissitudes and other disturbances he inevitably is bound to encounter, and its ultimate denouement, the deduction of the outcome is apparent. Fan of the instating, rampant, infectious kind which permeates the entire offering from start to finish is promised. The piece bears the title of "Father on His Vacation" and will be seen at La Fayette Theatre, Saturday September 30, matinee and night.

STEPHEN GAINEY ON RAMPAGE

From Newton Grove township comes a story of a rampage of Stephen Gainey, which is true to the old time form of that notorious branch of the Gainey family, Stephen being a son of the late Bill Henry Gainey. Stephen Gainey, it is related, went to the home of Mr. W. J. Warrick Sunday evening and asked for some cider for his boy. Mr. Warrick told him he had no cider and invited him into supper. Gainey, however, was in no mood for anything but a row, it seems. After cursing and smorting about a while he was asked not to use profanity in the hearing of Mrs. Warrick and the children, whereupon Gainey knocked Warrick down and turned and did the same thing for Linn Lee, who works with Warrick. Then Gainey went to his own home on an adjoining tract, got his gun, and started back firing one time after another. The last shot was so near that some of the shot hit the Warrick house.

Mrs. Warrick and the children left and spent the night with the widow Bot Barefoot, while Warrick and Lee also left home. Monday morning early they returned to feed the hogs and were fired upon from ambush by Gainey, whom they discovered in the bushes after the first shot and about thirty yards away. A few of the small shot struck the men, but no harm was done. The two men left the field for Gainey. Later they reported the matter to the officers, and Deputies Blue and Jackson were sent to arrest Gainey, but he could not be found.—Sampson Democrat.

TREASURY CERTIFICATES TO ADVANCE SEPT. 30TH

The United States Treasury Department announces that after September 30, 1922, the $1 Treasury Savings Stamps will not be on sale and the purchase prices of Treasury Savings Certificates will be advanced from $20 to $20.50 for the $5.00 certificates, from $80 to $82 for the $10.00 certificates and from $800 to $820 for the $1,000 certificates.

Postmaster Holland, who has just been advised of this change in prices of savings certificates, states that it will be possible for persons to make purchases at the present prices of $20, $80 and $800 respectively, until the close of business September 30, 1922.

DENNING HOTEL PROPERTY AT AUCTION ON Wednesday, October 25, '22

This last available business property in West Broad Street offers investors an opportunity for which they have looked for years. Many times during the last decade effort have been made by others to buy this property. Not until now, however, was there any possibility of its sale.

Dunn's business section must grow. There is not now a vacant store building in town and there is a strong demand for others. All of the space between Clinton and Fayetteville Avenues on Broad Street is filled. Now the district must jump across Fayetteville Avenue—and there is only one spot on which it can be built. That is the Denning Hotel Property.

This property—90 by 140 feet—is at the corner of Broad and Fayetteville, both paved with asphalt. One street leads to the Durham and Southern Railway Station four blocks to the north. The other to the A. C. L. Station one block away. It fronts Young's Hotel and the new Marvin Wade Company Store. On the property is a 22 room dwelling constructed of the finest heart timber and equipped with electric lights, running water, baths, sewerage, etc.

The plot is to be divided into six business building lots—four of them 25 by 90 feet and two 25 by 140 feet. Two of the 25 by 90 feet lots will be 25 by 90 feet and front on Fayetteville Avenue. The whole plot with and without the building will be submitted to sale.

This Sale Will Start Promptly at 2:00 o'clock
The Terms will be Announced at the Beginning of the Sale
