"I'LL BE THE LAST"

Read this from the Winston-Salem Journal if there's any doubt in your mind as to what your duty is with regards to the NRA campaign:
"Mr. President, if your program succeeds, you'll be the greatest President we've ever had; if it fails, you'll be the worst!"

"Wrong! If it fails, I won't be the worst President; I'll be the last!"

"The President is so sure that his recovery program will succeed that he probably has no very definite idea of the condition things would be in if it should fail.

"He has no time to meditate upon any philosophy of failure. He has faith in his plan and in the people. The country has passed other crises safely and has always emerged greater in stature and more powerful in strength.

"Yet, the President's epigrammatic prediction that he'll be the last President, if his recovery program fails cannot be laughed off. Russia, Italy and Germany, to mention only three important countries, have undergone profound and radical transformations during the past two decades.

"The underlying causes of these changes were economic in nature. Conditions in Russia, Italy and Germany are highly experimental, but the experiments are costly.

"Genuine and effective reform can be achieved in the United States now with a minimum of cost and waste if the people will cooperate intelligently and unselfishly.

"There can be no recovery for a few at the expense of the many.

"Recovery must be nation-wide and extended from the top to the bottom of society. Only one reasonable course lies ahead of the American people and that is to support Roosevelt's recovery program."

WHY MOLEY RESIGNED

There has been so much speculation about the reasons for the resignation of Raymond Moley as Assistant Secretary of State that the public is finding it difficult, no doubt, to make up its mind as to what was really back of his action.

"Enemies of the Roosevelt administration, of course, have done everything possible to convince the people that there has been a serious split in the ranks of the President's advisers," says the Winston-Salem Journal. "But the people will do well to remember that the wish is often father of the thought. There is nothing the opponent of the 'New Deal' would like better right now than bitter dissension in the official family at Washington."

As for Mr. Moley's resignation, however, we are confident that the special correspondent of the New York Times who was on the ground at Hyde Park when the resignation took place, is telling the whole truth about the matter when he writes the following:

"For some time there has been considerable discussion among Mr. Roosevelt's friends of the desirability of a national organ which would be sympathetic to the main purpose of his administration.

"Mr. Roosevelt's close friends began to feel acutely the need of a national popular magazine representative of his general point of view during his pre-convention campaign for the presidency. They felt that the political associations and philosophy of most of the publications in this category were hostile to Mr. Roosevelt's brand of liberalism.

"Except in Bernarr Macfadden's publication, Liberty, in which Mr. Roosevelt conducted a column for several months, Mr. Roosevelt's supporters experienced difficulty during this period in obtaining what they considered adequate and sympathetic presentation of his accomplishments and program.

"The one national publication with distinctly Democratic affiliations was the New Outlook, which was Mr. Roosevelt's ally in the past.

Uncle Sam Buys Nine Hundred Hogs

Augusta, Ga., Sept. 2.—Approximately 900 hogs have been sold to the government in Augusta this week by Georgia and South Carolina farmers in the farm administration's plan to reduce swine production.

About 85 per cent were below the 81-pound class and were put into tanks for grease and other by-products.

Those above that weight will be cured and distributed as food among the poor.

tense debate, Mr. Roosevelt's friends have sought every outlet possible for sympathetic interpretation. With that purpose in mind, Mr. Roosevelt gave permission to Mr. Moley and other members of his official family to write for publication and to his secretary, Colonel Louis McHenry Howe, to make weekly broadcasts on a commercial program. This departure from precedent provoked considerable criticism.

"The general prospectus issued by Mr. Astor bore all the earmarks of an expression of Mr. Roosevelt's own inspiration. The final arrangements for Mr. Moley's enlistment as editor of the publication were completed this morning at the Roosevelt home in Hyde Park. Both Mr. Moley and Mr. Astor were present."

MUST HAVE BETTER PRICES FOR COTTON AND TOBACCO

We are glad to see Dr. Clarence Poe aroused over the threatened low prices for tobacco and cotton.

"Unless something is done to boost cotton and tobacco prices right away," Dr. Poe says, "cotton and tobacco farmers are out of luck for 12 months to come. They will have no more pay days" until the autumn of 1934.

"General Johnson seems especially anxious to hold down prices until the NRA can get under way. But meanwhile the cotton and tobacco farmers' whole 1934 production is being sold. The danger is that they will sell on the basis of relatively low price levels and then have to buy everything in 1934 on the basis of very much higher price levels."

Dr. Poe said the administration appears to be trying to restore the 1924-25 price levels, but says the process is too gradual. "It is all right for factory workers, whose wages can be raised any Saturday for the next week or for factory owners," Dr. Poe says, "who can advance prices almost on a day's notice. But with American farmers as a whole and Southern farmers in particular, the situation is radically different. About three-fourths of the cotton is sold in four months' time—and tobacco is sold even faster."

The farmer has been led to believe that the plowing up of one-fourth of his cotton acreage this summer would have raised the price higher than it is today. Something is wrong with the price. He ought to be getting more than nine and one-half cents for his cotton.

The Durham Herald is bemoaning the low price of tobacco brought to the North Carolina markets. The farmer has no recourse. It does him no good to turn in his tag. He must put the weed right on the floor and take what comes his lot.

"What is the answer?" the Durham paper asks. "Curtailed production will not serve until it has reached a drastic level possible only through wholehearted co-operation between growers. A processing tax will prove only a temporary expedient since it will probably be reflected promptly in the bidding on the auction markets.

"After all, it seems the only permanent solution lies in a new marketing system. So long as the product is marketed through a system which is entirely controlled by the buyers and in which the seller has virtually no voice, a fair price for the producer will be difficult.

There must be better prices for farmers' products, else the whole scheme of the NRA is going to fall through.

Man Charged With the Burning of Family

Lafollette, Tenn., Sept. 2.—Floyd Johnson, filling station operator, Saturday was charged with murder in connection with the burning to death of his wife and three small children in their home Wednesday night.

He was arrested Friday night and taken to Knoxville where Police Chief Bryor Baird, of Lafollette, said he would be questioned and held for safe keeping.

District Attorney General Jesse L. Rogers said charges were placed against Johnson on the strength of evidence gathered during an investigation.

"We can't tell all we know now," he said. Johnson was the only one to escape from his burning home. He said he jumped through a window.

"Smoke and fumes filled the room," he related. "I didn't have time to do anything but grab a child."

The charred bodies of Mrs. Johnson and her three children were found in the ruins near a hall door. They were buried in a single casket Friday.

ARMS AND LEGS FOUND

The arms and legs of a woman, hacked from the body, were found in a field near Detroit yesterday. Now they are looking for the body.

Through finger prints they have identified the woman but have not found the body.

Short Items of Late News

PACOLET PROCESSED
Pacolet Mills, at Pacolet, S. C., a large concern, is closed down this week. The management says that they have caught up with their orders and cannot afford to pay the process tax and store stuff without orders. They hope it is to open up soon.

PRESIDENTIAL SHARK
A twelve-foot shark was caught from the yacht on which President Roosevelt was sailing Sunday.

MACHADO'S THREE MONTHS
Former President Machado who was driven out of Cuba and has been sheltering in the Bahamas, arrived in Montreal, Canada, Sunday, with leave from the Canadian government to remain three months.

WEBB IS DRY
A rousing dry meeting was held in Charlotte Sunday, at which Judge Webb and Jake Newell spoke. Judge Webb, who while in congress, got the Webb-Kenyon act through prohibiting shipment of liquor into dry territory, called upon the people of the state to vote against the repeal on November 7th.

A SPOT IN CAROLINA
S. H. Williams was murdered in Charlotte Saturday in what appeared to be a case of putting on the spot. He had been accused of running a lottery. He was sitting in a car on Myers street, between Ninth and Tenth, with his driver, Ches Crawford, colored. Two men came up from behind, both of the colored, one with a stick and one with a shot gun. One called to Williams not to move and as he rose, the negro with the shot gun fired upon him and he fell dead out of the car. One of the negroes, Roscoe Campbell, is under arrest. Officers believed that Williams was lured to the spot by angry gamblers of rival lottery games.

TIME BY THE FORELOCK
Jimmie Brown of Miami, Fla., takes the bright side. Jimmie was arrested for stealing a battery from a filling station where he worked but in which he did not have his heart enlisted. "I am glad they got me," he said. "If I had got away with this I would probably have tried something bigger and got into real trouble."

FEDERATION FIGHT
William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, is facing opposition for reelection on the ground that he did not get enough concessions out of the government for labor in the many codes. His friends claim that he got a great deal. In all codes except the automobile industry, there may be unions represented by their own elected officers. The automobile code is not so favorable. In it, while unions may exist, employers have the right to hire or fire without interference by the unions.

BAILEY IN FIGHTING MOOD
Senator Bailey, who has pressed upon President Roosevelt the idea of more currency inflation, is warning North Carolina that the state will have to pay its part of the three billion public works funds and that he had better stir along and get all the building that can be had under it.

SLEEPING SICKNESS MENACE
Sixty-three deaths have already occurred in the neighborhood from sleeping sickness which has been raging for some time. The cause of the disease is not known and intensive efforts are being made in trying to find the cause and the cure.

PIED PIPER IN HOODLUM TOWN
The clean-up campaign in Chicago is said to be resulting in a general exodus of gangsters and hoodlums from the city. They are arresting all they can lay hands on on charges of vagrancy. Seeing that it is jail or get out, the boys are leaving.

YOU CAN LAMBAST THEM WITH CIRCULARS . . . (We'll be glad to print them—double pages, single pages, four, six or eight-page circulars.) YOU CAN SCATTER HANDBILLS ABOUT TOWN . . . (We print them, too, black and white, or on colored paper.) YOU MIGHT USE SOME WINDOW CARDS . . . (We print them, any kind, color or combination.) —But a lot of people don't like to have their homes all cluttered up with circulars and handbills, and they put your message in the wastebasket, just like they do the other fellows. Consequently— WE RECOMMEND NEWSPAPER ADVERTISING . . . BECAUSE . . . Like Col. Wm. Prescott said at the battle of Bunker Hill, you can do like his marksmen did and "Don't fire until you see the whites of their eyes." Meaning, of course, that your advertisement in our newspaper columns isn't thrown away, because people buy the paper to read it . . . and they read your advertisement if it is in the paper. BECAUSE . . . If your business is like most other businesses in this section, you don't have any ammunition to waste. Marksmanship, therefore, is important. That's where the newspaper comes in. You know it goes into the very homes you want to reach . . . and you know they read it. BECAUSE . . . There is no skim milk in the market reached by your newspaper. Newspaper subscribers have money to spend, or they wouldn't be spending it to buy the paper. The newspaper market is the cream of the buyers . . . and they buy an average of 20 per cent more home town products than people who don't read the paper. THE MOORE COUNTY NEWS
