Although their dogs jumped a buck on a recent hunting expedition to Hoke county, Ed Fry and Reid Flinchum came back empty-handed.

George Carter's bark is worse than his bite. The writer learns that he recently loaned a Moore county citizen $10 with which to buy school books for his kids. Four or five others turned the distressed citizen down.

P. K. Kennedy, his many friends will be delighted to learn, has recovered from his recent illness. His doctor, however, has warned him to take things easy.

The Charlotte Observer says that the curve at the bridge on route No. 58, about a mile beyond Vase in the direction of Lakeview, is one of the most dangerous in the state. Several serious accidents, some of them resulting in fatalities, have occurred at this point, and Editor Wade Harris, of the Observer, says it should be eliminated. Another dangerous curve is near the old New McCoy place on No. 74, about a mile from Carthage.

White Hill News

Mrs. Elizabeth Cole Spivey died at her home here Wednesday at the age of 87 years and 5 months. In spite of her years she held up well until a few weeks ago, when she sustained a broken leg from a fall in her room. From this she never recovered. Her husband died 6 years ago.

Mrs. Spivey was a descendant of the Scotch Colons and McLeods and like her forefathers, she fought the battles of life with that brave, courageous disposition that they fought the wilderness of America. She has been a life-long member of White Hill Presbyterian church and as long as she was able she attended services.

Four sons and two daughters survive, Curtis Flowers, Dock and Madison Spivey, Mrs. Turner Smith and Mrs. John Holes. One brother, C. C. Cole, and one sister, Miss Nannie Cole, who is 93 years old, also survive.

Funeral services were held from the home Thursday at 10 o'clock by Rev. M. D. McNeill of Cameron. Interment took place in the family burying ground. Her grandsons were pallbearers and granddaughters flower girls.

Mr. Neil Tillman and Miss Fannie Bryant were married in Sanford last Saturday night. Best wishes for the young couple.

Miss Mary Margaret McLeod attended a medical meeting in Charlotte last week. Miss McLeod will soon return to Vanderbilt University, Nashville, Tenn., to resume her studies in medicine.

Mrs. W. H. Jackson, G. L. and Katharine Jackson and J. L. Morrison spent Sunday in Moncure with relatives.

Mrs. H. I. Ogburn was notified Sunday of the sudden death of her brother, Lattie Young, in Angier. Mrs. Ogburn had a sister to die in April, and we extend our heartfelt sympathy to her in this bereavement.

Mr. and Mrs. E. B. Harrington visited Mrs. Harrington's aged parents, Mr. and Mrs. Carlton Matthews, in Lemon Springs, Sunday. Mr. Matthews is now confined to his bed and they are both 85 years old.

Mrs. Pierce of Ashboro has been visiting Mrs. A. B. Caviness.

factor of placing second-grade fruit on the market has done much to lower the market on good fruit to a figure below what it normally should be. It wouldn't be hard to correct this difficulty could the peach grower look over the results that have been and are being experienced by the producers of citrus fruits in Florida. Some seven or eight years ago, the shippers of grapefruit and oranges had a ready market for their fancy packed goods in numerous cities and towns of the entire Southeast, including Kentucky and Tennessee. Today, one rarely finds a car of packed goods in any of the towns in this territory, and this situation was brought about by the fact that citrus packers conceived the idea of selling their cull fruit to trucks that distributed these products into the Southeastern territory.

Loss Southeast Market The packing-house managers no doubt felt that they were performing a service to the growers and shippers, in that they were realizing for them a few cents income on the sale of fruit that would otherwise have been dumped. It is now realized that this second-grade fruit has taken the markets of the entire Southeast away from the shipper of fancy packed goods, leaving only the eastern and distant markets and placing the full fruit of the growers in competition with the packed goods. Many of the forward-thinking citrus producers have reached a realization of this situation, but the movement has gained such an impetus that it is doubtful if the situation will ever be entirely corrected, and thus the Florida producer has a vast field of distribution closed against his packed goods.

And so it is with the peach growers of the Carolina and Georgia--only we are unfortunately located somewhat nearer to the principal markets. If some changes are not brought about shortly, we will be unable to find a market in which to place our fancy fruit at a reasonable figure, as this low quality fruit is now reaching into some of the principal markets of the east, with dire effects on the sale of fancy packed fruit. If we are to correct this situation, there must be unified action on the part of all growers and shippers of peaches, to the end that cull or defective fruit should never leave the packing-house destined for any other purpose than local consumption; and if this action can be brought about, the peach growers will be able to retain the principal markets of the east for their packed goods and the business of peach growing should continue to be reasonably profitable.

Sell Your Tobacco In Carthage!

Other nearby markets are stressing what they call superior shipping facilities, a very pointed thrust at the Carthage market.

The truth is, and buyers on the local markets will bear us out, tobacco shipments over our line receive the same handling as, if not quicker than those on the main trunk lines. A car is hardly sealed before it is rolling away to the re-drying plants. Tobacco sold one day is moved the next morning.

Sell Your Tobacco

WITH

B. B. Saunders, Aberdeen, N. C.

I beg to announce that I will be back at my old stand, the Big Brick Warehouse, in Aberdeen again this season. I feel that my old friends will realize that I can get them more money for their tobacco in Aberdeen than they can get elsewhere. I wish to thank all my friends for their loyalty and patronage in the past and assure my old and new customers that their tobacco will have my personal attention on sale.

It will be impossible for me to personally visit each and every grower in this section but want to assure you of my very best efforts and support on every pile brought to my warehouse.

My market is set for opening on September 19th. Prepare and bring me a load on that date. The Bank of Pinehurst, Pinehurst, N. C., will have branch office in Aberdeen to cash all tobacco checks here.
