STRAIGHT TALKS WITH AUNT EMMY ON "BAD LUCK"

"The Brownes are the unluckiest people I ever saw," remarked Emma, as she and Aunt Emmy walked by their house. "They were just getting on their feet after James lost so much money in stocks. Maud told me only last week that he was putting his savings in government bonds now. Yesterday his office was robbed and the bonds stolen out of his desk. Five $100 bonds gone. It's the only money they have been able to save since he lost his savings in that radio stock."

"That certainly is bad luck, if you call it bad luck," commented Aunt Emmy. "I call it stupidity, myself."

"Stupidity! why Aunt Emmy, how could James know that thieves would get in his office?" exclaimed Emma. "It doesn't seem stupid to me."

"I don't want to be too hard on James, my child, but if he had only used ordinary precautions, he need not have lost what was for him a large amount of money on that radio stock and he surely need not have had those bonds stolen."

"Why Aunt, James isn't a mind reader or a fortune teller."

"No, of course he isn't. But neither is every successful business man a seer. Luck is ninety per cent common sense. If James had gone to his banker and asked him to look up the radio company whose stock he was thinking of buying, the chances are that he never would have bought it after he got the bank's report. Banks can get the record of any company issuing stock and if the company is not well financed, if it has not been paying dividends, if the officers of the company are not men with clean, honest records, the bank can find that out. The radio company that James invested in made a disgraceful failure a month after he bought his stock. If he had taken the trouble to find out something about it first, doubtless he would have that money today."

"Well, Aunt, that may be true about the stock, but who in the world could anticipate thieves?"

"Anybody who reads the papers to-day knows that thieves are pretty active," said Aunt Emmy dryly. "Why ignore them? If James had kept his bonds in a safe place, at a bank, he would have had them yet. James has been careless, if not actually stupid. His bad luck is mostly James himself."—Anne R. Aymes.

CINCINNATI PLANS TO ENTERTAIN GATHERING OF RETAIL MERCHANTS DURING FASHION SHOW AND CONVENTION FEBRUARY 8 TO 12

An elaborate program of entertainment has been arranged in connection with the Market Week and Spring Fashion Show to be given in Cincinnati, Feb. 8th to 12th, under the auspices of the Wholesale Trade Department of the Cincinnati Chamber of Commerce. The many local retail merchants who expect to attend the affair in response to the invitations that they have received will have their visit to Cincinnati made pleasant by the Cincinnati wholesalers and manufacturers. Word has been sent out by Chas. J. Nelson, Chairman of the Market Week activities, that merchants should not wait to receive formal invitations to attend the affair, but will be welcome and are urged to share in the big program that has been arranged for the occasion.

In many ways the Cincinnati Spring Fashion Show will surpass the Fall Fashion Pageant held last August and September at the Cincinnati Zoological Gardens. This Spring Show will be held on the Hotel Gibson Roof Garden, the largest and conceded one of the most beautiful in the country. The Show will commence at 8:00 P. M. and run until 10:30, following which all attending are invited to participate in dancing on another part of the Roof Garden until midnight, as the guests of Cincinnati wholesalers and manufacturers. Since it is the desire of the Committee to prevent overcrowding each evening the seating capacity for each performance has been limited and a demand for reserved seats has already manifested itself. Tickets for the Show are to be obtained through Cincinnati wholesalers and manufacturers participating in the activity.

Announcement has been made by Laurence R. Ach, Chairman of the Fashion Pageant Committee, of the list of stars who will take part in the Show in addition to the 40 models who will show off the new designs in women's apparel for the coming Spring and Summer. Theodore Ritch, brilliant young Russian tenor who has created a sensation in leading roles with the Chicago Civic Opera Company, opposite Mary Garden, will be one of the leading features on the program. Another will be Jan Van Bommel, a distinguished Dutch baritone, formerly of the French Royal Opera Company at The Hague. It is a coincidence that both Ritch and Van Bommel have enjoyed the acclaim of European royalty. Ritch was summoned to the box of the King and Queen of Spain at the conclusion of an opera at Barcelona and warmly congratulated; and Van Bommel was invited a number of times to appear before Queen Wilhelmina of Holland in recognition of his genius.

With the appearance of Theodore Ritch and Jan Van Bommel on the same program, it marks the first time in the history of American or European style shows that two grand opera stars of such magnitude participated on the same program in a style show or fashion pageant.

Helen Doyle, young and beautiful soprano, who is popular with radio listeners because of her recitals through Stations WSAI and WLW; Grace Ellen Hopkins, a popular "Blues" singer; Fan Ware, an exceptionally clever dancer, who has tripped her way to fame on the Keith vaudeville circuit; Marian LaCour, former premier danseuse at New York Hippodrome and her twelve dancing girls; the Gypsy Strollers, a delightful instrumental and vocal quintet; and Larry Grueter, accordionist, who is popular with thousands through his vaudeville and radio entertainment, are some of the special features to be presented as part of the Fashion Show. In addition Francis Vanthe, who will be the stage director and who is one of the best known ballet masters in the country, will present a ballet of his own, and in addition there will be a sketch, "Why Sales Fail," written by Howard S. Greene.

Walter Esberger's Orchestra, which made itself popular throughout the Cincinnati trade territory when it accompanied Good Will Tours arranged by the Cincinnati Chamber of Commerce, will provide the music.

The 40 living models to be used to introduce the new spring and summer styles will appear in five different scenes. The first of these will show boudoir apparel, conveying the new ideas in intimate apparel associated with that feminine retreat. Then will come a display of house dresses and other attire associated with the household routine. In another scene sport wear, including the newest designs in bathing suits will be shown. A fourth scene will introduce street apparel, and a concluding scene, evening gowns, party dresses and the like. In all of these the idea represented will be carried out throughout from shoes to hats.

The committees in charge of the show promise a complete line of every article to be shown. There will be an especially big and interesting assortment of new millinery.

The visiting merchants will also have an opportunity to view the latest designs in piece goods, notion, furniture and other merchandise. One of the unique features of the Pageant will be the jewelry display which the models will wear in their various scenes.

Coinciding with Market Week the United Retail Merchants Association is holding its semi-annual meeting in Cincinnati, Feb. 8th to 10th, inclusive. An interesting and elaborate program has been arranged in this connection and notable speakers on various phases of retail store management and merchandising are to address the sessions of that convention to which not only the members of the Association, but visiting merchants as well are invited.

A special rate of fare-and-a-half on the certificate plan has been secured for members of the United Retail Merchants Association who attend this convention in Cincinnati. All such members should consult their local ticket agents for further information or address the Manager of the Wholesale Trade Department, Cincinnati Chamber of Commerce, who is also the Managing Director of the United Retail Merchants Association.

Arrangements have been made to refund to visiting merchants, their railroad fare under rules formerly employed by the Merchants & Manufacturers Association which has consolidated with the Cincinnati Chamber of Commerce. Howard S. Greene, Manager of the Wholesale Trade Department of the Cincinnati Chamber of Commerce, will be glad to furnish any information to those who write him.
