CLYDE CULLINGS.

Mr. Wm. A. Band, editor of the Waynesville Mountaineer, was in Clyde last Thursday and succeeded in getting the writer to agree to serve again as Clyde's correspondent for the Mountaineer. We have already served several years in this capacity and therefore think the editor should have selected some one else. Every section of the county should have a good correspondent to write regularly the news of his community and thus make our county paper what it should be.

What has become of former correspondents, "Good Indian" and "Old Top"? And where is F. A. Justice, of Crabtree? They were all good ones. Get back on the job, boys, and let us help our good editor, if possible, make our old county paper just a little more interesting to read.

A good newspaper, like the Waynesville Mountaineer, costing less than four cents a week, should go into every home in Haywood county. Every boy and girl in the county should form the habit of reading the county paper and thus be able to discuss intelligently current events. Let all who read this article see to it that our paper shall be a regular visitor to each home throughout the county and elsewhere.

Mr. J. J. Ensley, who was 73 years old and one of Clyde's best and most respected citizens, died last Friday and laid to rest last Sunday afternoon in Pleasant Hill cemetery. During the funeral exercises at the M. E. Church very impressive and helpful remarks were made by Revs. W. G. Warren, J. M. Haynes, C. C. Williams and B. B. Jones. The masonic fraternity had charge of the body and conducted the exercises at the grave in a very profound and interesting manner as has been their custom from time immemorial.

"Old Top," (M. B. Smith) of Lake Junaluska, visited our "burg" last Sunday and conversed with this scribe quite awhile. It is hoped that he will soon decide to resume his duties as Lake Junaluska's splendid local correspondent. His former communications were enjoyed by the reading public. Get busy with your facile pen, Mark.

Captain A. E. Ward, Lake Junaluska's efficient post master, was here last Sunday and contributed $50.00 for the new Baptist church according to promise. The membership appreciates this very liberal donation and his generosity. $5,500.00 has already been expended on this modern structure and $5,000.00 more will be needed for its completion. Let others, anywhere in the county and elsewhere, follow Capt. Ward's example and help the Baptists here who have been liberal in assisting other denominations.

LOVE OF HOME AND COUNTRY IS THEME OF FILM.

"As No Man Has Loved" Exalts Patriotism—Based on Hale's Classic.

A Washington's Birthday special at the Wayneswood Theatre.

No story written within the past five generations has had a greater circulation than the classic, "The Man Without a Country," which has been transposed to the screen by William Fox under the title, "As No Man Has Loved." It is one of the sensations of the current theatrical season, having just closed a long engagement in New York. It will be seen at the Wayneswood Theatre on Feb. 22nd.

The story was written by Edward Everett Hale. It is said to have been more widely read than any American work.

The reason lies deep. The mightiest motive that ever swayed the human heart is the love of country, home and family. This picture unfolds the tale of Lieutenant Nolan, who, in a sudden rage, cursed the United States and swore he wished never to see nor hear of its again. Doomed by a court martial to have his wish, he was transferred from ship to ship for fifty-six years; never allowed to set foot on land; never permitted to get a letter; never allowed to hear these "home," "country"

"United States" nor "family." Every man was forbidden to mention those subjects in his presence.

Repentant and loving his country as few men ever did, he felt the world go by without sharing in its happenings. He knew that the country he had foresworn must have become greater, but he knew not how. He didn't even know the name of the President at Washington, nor could he learn whether the sweetheart of his young manhood lived. And that loyal sweetheart suffered as much as he, for her entire life was spent in appealing to the powers to let him come home. From the first administration of Jefferson to the second of Lincoln, she haunted the White House begging for that pardon. It remained for Lincoln to sign it and hand it to her, but it came too late. She was seventy-eight and she died while waiting on the pier at Charleston for the ship to bring him back. "The Man Without a Country," wept for joy as Lincoln's message reached him; then he died.

One of the reasons for the tremendous popularity of this epic lies in the fact that the message of love of home, country, and family is in the heart of the American people, and Dr. Hale's story had much to do with spreading that sentiment. His story was written in 1863 during the heat of the struggle to preserve the nation's unity. It was the first story ever published in this country that had a circulation of a million copies. That number came from the presses in one year. Thousands of copies were poured into the White House from all over the country, and societies caused a half million to be sent to the soldiers in the field. Millions of additional copies followed when the war was over. Every school child read it.

During the World War, statesmen realized the mighty force of this undying tale, and printing presses turned out the story "The Man Without a Country" by the millions. Italy sent 3,000,000 copies to her soldiers. Germany adapted it to her own purpose and sent 5,000,000 to her fighting men. Various American, English and French societies issue even more.
