MALARIA

THE cause of malaria is a microscopic animal parasite called the plasmodium. Like the butterfly and the common house fly, this little intruder passes through different forms during different stages of its development. Flies lay eggs which develop into larva, the larva develops into pupa and the pupa into the full grown moth—fly. The beautiful butterfly was once a wiggling worm.

The malaria plasmodium must live part of its life in the human being and another part of its life in the mosquito. Malaria cannot be "caught" from another person sick with malaria but always it must pass from man to mosquito and then back from mosquito to man. If the person who has malaria could be absolutely protected from mosquitoes there could be no spread of malaria. The particular mosquito which carries malaria flies almost entirely after sun down, hence it is especially important that no person sick with malaria be allowed to sleep outside of mosquito netting. One lone mosquito biting a malaria person might later infect a dozen persons. The mosquito that has not itself become infected by biting a malaria patient is perfectly harmless. While it is important to protect all persons from mosquitoes to avoid the possibility of being bitten by an infected mosquito it is much more important to protect all malarial persons from mosquitoes in order to avoid the certain infection of mosquitoes which can later carry the infection to many others.

Many persons carry living plasmodia in their blood without showing the typical symptoms of chills and fever. Only a microscopic examination of the blood will prove the presence to these parasites.

Quinine will kill these organisms but sometimes they hide away so securely in the blood cells and deep tissues that the blood must be constantly saturated with quinine for a long time before they come out where it can get to them.

Malaria can be completely eradicated by preventing mosquitoes, screening against mosquitoes and properly using quinine.

FUTURE BECKONS YOUNG AMERICANS

Achievements of Past Only Show
Great Opportunity Ahead.

Great events of the past quarter century which lead some young men to complain that all the big things have been done, leaving no opportunity for them, as a matter of fact only go to show that even greater opportunity today lies ahead of them. F. N. Shepherd, Executive Manager of the American Bankers Association, recently told members of the American Institute of Banking in New York. After reviewing the outstanding accomplishments in science, industry and finance during the last twenty-five years, Mr. Shepherd emphasized the reward given men of achievement in America, especially in the financial field.

"The achievements of the past are the groundwork for the opportunities of today and tomorrow," he said. "There never was a time when so great were the potentialities of the individual. The world was never so ready and able to pay well for what it wants. For superior service to society under competitive conditions, whether through invention or production or organization or distribution of useful articles, no reward is begrudged, particularly here in America."

"Adding to human comfort and human needs, these things make life finer and better. The world has shared, but it is in America that they have reached their highest development and utilization. The American spirit of useful enterprise, however, does not confine itself within our own borders. It permeates the entire world and renders great service to peoples other than our own."

"Let us pass over America's service to humanity in the war and consider what is being done now. Largely to rebuild the economic life of a world shattered by the war and its devastating after effects, America has, since the war, loaned other peoples over ten billion dollars. Last year alone a billion and a half in foreign financing was consummated in the United States. American financial genius has so far readjusted our banking machinery to meet enlarged international obligations that stupendous foreign loans, such as the $100,000,000 Dawes plan credit to Germany, are concluded and the books closed after being open to public subscription only a few minutes."

"With our new world viewpoints we in America have many great things yet to do. These things are typical of the broadminded world viewpoint of American finance. It shows the vision necessary to the men who guide our business affairs today. Certainly there is an inspiration in this and the great opportunities which await us."

Suffered
weak, nervous

"I WAS in a very weakened, run-down condition, surely in need of a tonic and builder," says Mrs. J. R. Wrenn, of Anna, Texas. "I was so weak I had to go to bed, and kept getting weaker."

"I suffered with my back so much. I was very nervous, couldn't rest good at night. I couldn't eat anything—I just wasn't hungry."

"I had read so much of Cardui, I thought best to use it. I took seven or eight bottles, and by the time I had taken them I was stronger than I had been in several years. I can highly recommend Cardui."

Thousands of other women have found that the tonic effects of the purely vegetable ingredients of Cardui were just what they needed to help restore their appetites, to help bring them easily and naturally back to normal health and strength. Its action has been found to be of great benefit in many common female ailments.
