WAYNESVILLE FAST GROWING TOWN IN WHICH TO INVEST.

professions. One large property development, known as "The Hood Development," creating a scenic highway to Jones' Knob unparalleled in beauty in Western North Carolina. An electric power project involving an expenditure of nearly $12,000,000. Bonds sold for the erection of a county hospital that will cost approximately $175,000. Belle Meade, the sub-division development. And many other improvements under consideration. During the year of 1925 building permits for issued to the amount of $176,609; already the first six months of 1926 has doubled the entire building of 1925. Therefore, "Watch Waynesville Grow." We have a steady population of 3,000, which increases to 6,000 during the tourist season. During the past six months we have added 600 permanent residents to the population. Therefore, "Waynesville, the Growing Town in which to invest." We have not had "A Boom" here, and don't want the wild-catter. Investigate our property values. If you are a sane investor your verdict is bound to be that real estate here offers advantages that cannot be competitively met with anywhere in Western North Carolina. Consider the vast speculations in other sections, get down to concrete facts. Then, buy in Waynesville. The golden opportunity of the Twentieth Century is within your grasp. And, a man's grasp should always exceed his reach.

In the future, Waynesville will grow and blossom like an irrigated area. We want a modern tourist hotel, with golf course and swimming pools and other features for pleasure and amusement. A commercial hotel that will keep the transient here, and not compel him to ride to towns where good hotel accommodations are available. A municipal building that will properly house the business of the town administration, and render service to the townspeople in proportion to the demands of growing conditions. A fire department that will reduce our insurance rates more than enough to pay for the equipment. A Chamber of Commerce that fills the intentions of the organization to 100% efficiency. And, an awakening of public pride and consciousness to the fact that Waynesville must have the highest type of business men in the administration of our public affairs, and as representatives of all the future ideals of the community.

On several occasions, I have heard unfair statements about the real estate man. In defence of my own vocation, and of men whom I know are striving to accomplish greater things for a greater Waynesville, I ask you to investigate the sections of this country that have known rapid growth and development? You will find that the so called real estate man is the power that will make your community quicker than any other group of enthusiasts in existence

We only ask you to realize that we are giving the best of our talents, and nearly all of our earnings, to put "Waynesville the Beautiful" before the world in the proper light. We must have your support in all our efforts to keep the town growing. Rome was not built in a day; but, our task is to build greater towns and cities than those erected in the days of antiquity.

To those of you who delight in our summer climate, our scenery and our hospitality, we trust that you will enter into every phase of our life, and give your support to make your interests the same as ours.

MRS. McFAYDEN HONOREE.

The McFadyen home, "Rinaldi," was the scene of a pretty party given for Mrs. Henry McFadyen whose marriage occurred last month. Bridge was played in the living rooms and on the porch, which were elaborately decorated in summer flowers. The bride was given, as guest prize, a babyhood picture of the groom beautifully framed. Delicious refreshments were served. Among the guests present were: Mesdames Henry McFadyen, Moss Salley, Hillard Atkins, C. F. Kirkpatrick, Odin Buell, Fawcette Swift, de Neergaard, Rufus Siler, Bonner Ray, Roy Francis, George Taylor, Edgar Storey, T. L. Gwyn, Charles Quinlan, Edwin Bjorkman, Misses Nannette Jones, Alice Quinlan and Sara Thomas.

MRS. HANAHAN HONORED.

Miss Braxton Kirk gave a very pretty bridge party Tuesday afternoon honoring Mrs. J. Ross Hanahan, Jr. of Charleston, S. C., four tables being in play. A color note of pink and white was carried out in every detail. Cut summer flowers and potted plants served as decorations for the party.

As guest prize Mrs. Hanahan received a dainty pink satin handkerchief case containing two handmade linen handkerchiefs. Miss Grace Hipps held top score and her prize was a dainty piece of pink lingerie. In cutting for the consolation prize Miss Shelly Semmes was lucky and she received a fancy powder puff.

Miss O'Neal Kirk assisted the hostess in serving a delicious salad course.

Those enjoying Miss Kirk's party were: Misses Virginia Welch, Margaret Blackwell, Dorothy Thomas, Janet Quinlan, Eleanor Bushnell, Elizabeth Holmes, Salisbury, Shely Semmes, Grace Hipps, Nora Ashton, Caroline Ashton, Marceyn Viglini, Louisville, Ky., Wilda Crawford, Mesdames J. Ross Hanahan, Jr., William T. Hannah and Hayes Alley.

LOUISE HUNTER HAS PERSONALITY.

Louise Hunter, leading lyric soprano of the Metropolitan Opera Co., who sings here on Tuesday, August 17th, possesses one of the strongest personalities of any singer before the public. To this has been added a really beautiful singing voice.

Miss Hunter began her career in very small parts at the Metropolitan, but her ability as an actress and her remarkable voice soon attracted notice, and now she is one of the most valuable singers in the company.

The Atlanta Constitution says of her: "Miss Hunter is the coming singer of the grand opera stage. If ever a girl was blessed with all the attributes of personality, charm, beauty and voice to carry her at one sweep to the heights of stardom it is Louise Hunter."

A Dollar Dinner for Four

The daily dinner menu in warm weather is often a problem. Here is one containing foods both nutritious and palatable. Its total cost is $1.00, and it will serve four people.

- Pea Soup
- Shrimps Baked with Tomatoes
- Corn Sauté
- Bread and Butter
- Shredded Pineapple
- Demi Tasse

A GOOD pea soup may be bought for 10 cents a can. Two small cans of shrimps, at 15 cents a can, are required for the casserole suggested. A small 9 cent can of tomatoes is sufficient. This dish is prepared as follows: put a layer of bread crumbs into a well buttered casserole, then one of shrimps and another of the solid part of canned tomatoes. Season with a little salt, pepper, butter, and 1 teaspoon sugar. Add alternate layers of crumbs, shrimps, and tomatoes until the dish is full. Cover with crumbs, dot with butter, and brown in moderate oven. A can of corn to sauté in bacon drippings costs about 12 cents at this season. A small loaf of bread costs 10 cents. A can of shredded pineapple may be had for 17 cents. Enough coffee to serve four people, at an average cost of 40 cents a pound, comes to about 4 cents. The total of these food items is 92 cents. 8 cents may be allowed to cover the cost of butter and sugar for the meal.

The Buffet Supper

A COLD buffet supper is a simple and very pleasant way to serve a large group of people who may be gathered on a Sunday or holiday evening. Everything may be prepared in advance, guests take care of their own wants, and the host and hostess are not preoccupied with serving.

When done with the aid of canned foods, the preparation of the supper is very easy. Cold or jellied consommé, easily made from canned soup, is a good first course. The piece de résistance should be a salad. Lobster is delicious but a choice of tuna or tomato aspic would be wise since some people do not care for the flavor of the shellfish. Canned lobster renders the salad making very simple. Mix with celery and mayonnaise and garnish with watercress. Aspic is delicious made with canned tomatoes. With the salads, small sandwiches are good, and there might also be relishes such as pickles and olives. A frozen fruit dessert that is unusually good may be made by packing cans of peaches, pineapple, raspberries, salad, fruit, and, in fact, any canned fruit, into a bucket of ice and salt where it is allowed to stand for three hours. When the cans are taken out, plunge into hot water an instant, punch a hole in the bottom of the can. An improved can opener will take the top off clean, leaving no jagged edges to spoil the frozen fruit. Slice and serve with whipped cream. Honolulu tea is an easily made punch. To two quarts of strong cold tea add the juice of six lemons, a can of crushed pineapple with syrup, one cup maraschino cherries with syrup and additional syrup of two cups sugar boiled for five minutes with one cup water. Chill and serve with cracked ice. These proportions will make twenty cups.

New Notes on Peas

TEN centuries ago, more or less, a common penance imposed on erring monks was a pilgrimage afoot with peas in their shoes. They paid for their sins with a thousand painful steps. But monkish records go on to tell of one such penitent, sharper than his brothers in affliction, who cooked his peas before he started on his way!

More recently some one still more clever thought of cooking the peas before starting them on their long journey from the fields to the housewife's larder. To her, peas have come to mean a great convenience and comfort. Canned peas are already shelled and cooked and she need only add seasoning to her taste and heat them. The expert housewife can always devise a new way of serving peas, even if it is only a matter of adding a sauce or trimming from one of the numerous cans on her shelf.

But a delicious summer dish, suitable as the main dish either for a luncheon or a light dinner, are pea croquettes. The recipe follows:

- 1 can large size peas
- 1 tablespoon butter
- 1 tablespoon flour
- 1/2 cup milk
- 1 egg
- Salt and pepper
- Bread crumbs

Heat the peas in their own liquor, drain and press through sieve. Blend the flour and butter together, add milk and stir until boiling. Season, add yolk of egg, turn on plate to cool. When cold, form in neat croquettes, brush with beaten egg, roll in bread crumbs, and fry in hot fat. Serve hot with tomato sauce.
