MRS. JAMES R. THOMAS ENTERTAINS FOR MRS. LOVE OF RALEIGH.

Mrs. James R. Thomas delightfully entertained at her home on Church street on Wednesday of last week, in honor of Mrs. Hugh A. Love of Raleigh.

The lower floor of the home was thrown en suite and was artistically decorated in dahlias and zinnias. Three tables were arranged for bridge. After several progressions Mrs. William A. Band was awarded a set of bridge score pads for holding top score. Mrs. Ashton, who cut the consolation, was presented a dainty powder puff. Mrs. Love received a hand-made handkerchief for guest prize.

Mrs. Thomas served her guests with delicious salad and ice courses. Those playing were: Mesdames Hugh A. Love, William A. Band, James L. Stringfield, Robert H. Mitchell, Robert Osborne, Rufus L. Allen, J. F. Abel, Thomas Semmes, Branner Gilmer, Charles R. Thomas, Herbert Ashton, William T. Hannah and Miss Lena Altstaetter.

MOSQUITOES.

Mosquitoes are universally classed as one of the most insidious insects which infest the air.

They have almost uncanny means of invading the most carefully screened porches and homes, and they always make their presence felt.

Like the fly, they carry contagion. The most effective means of control is to destroy the egg deposits as much as possible, and to use a liquid spray against the mosquito which invades the house or porch.

This spray is a crystal clear fluid which evaporates quickly after being sprayed about the room. It leaves no muss or dirt. It will not stain the finest fabrics. It is harmless to humans and animals. Spray a cloud into the room. It lingers just long enough to kill the household insects. It is harmless to mankind.

To get the best results the hand sprayer is recommended. It sprays a large fine mist. This liquid is obtainable in convenient sized bottles at retail stores.
