BILLION DOLLAR TRAVEL MELON GROWN IN AMERICA

There's a billion dollar tourist melon ripening in America every year that if divided instead among European countries. And all the time travel authorities here at home shout themselves hoarse: "See America First!"

The golden vine which nourishes the travel-melon may be rightly considered as the railroads and motor highways criss-crossing the United States, yet neither these transportation avenues nor the tourist centers share to an appreciable degree in the division of these tourist dollars. Why? They're spent abroad! But all this is going to be changed, in part if not in its entirety, by the American Travel Development Association. For more than a score of influential tourist authorities from all parts of the nation gathered in St. Louis recently at the call of the American Travel Development Association and decided, among other things, to enlist the aid of the United States government in "selling America to Americans."

The matter of creating a $5,000,000 advertising and publicity fund will be put squarely up to congress, with the idea of government recognition and financial assistance, following another meeting of the association, March 21-23, next, in Chicago.

The travel directors believe that congress should be just as much interested in seeing that Americans travel through national parks, forests and other playgrounds as the lawmakers in Washington are concerned in the comfort of Americans traveling abroad through the inducements offered by the United States Shipping Board. To this end the travel experts pledge their united support in "selling" America and in re-organizing only one competitor, namely, Europe.

Railroads, coastal steamship lines and tourist booking agencies were praised for their co-operation with travel bureaus. A committee was appointed and empowered to confer with these transportation carriers in drafting suitable recommendations looking to the government for financial aid, and the publicity committee will enlist the co-operation of the national press, magazines, news wire associations and other mediums, in "keeping the home dollars in circulation among Americans" through travel attractions that in themselves are superior to the sights in foreign countries.

The association recommended that all auto camps be placed under state regulation, that an entrance fee be charged, and that whenever possible, adequate provision be made for hotel accommodations for motorists. It was urged that the Interstate Commerce commission recommend to congress the enactment of legislation for the regulation of the motorbus industry and for adequate protection to the traveling public during interstate travel of this kind.

The Old Reliable

CORN, that "old reliable" among vegetables, is one of the body's best sources of heat and energy. Its large content of starch, sugar and fat makes it a valuable carbohydrate. Also, corn is a good phosphorus and iron food. So it behooves the housewife to include plenty of corn in her daily menus. She can easily do this, because of the excellent canned product always ready for her use. She is rapidly learning that commercially prepared corn is not only safe but decidedly economical. In addition to the fact that it saves her time and labor, she is coming to realize that there is no waste in a can of corn, as there is in fresh corn. And she finds that it is frequently purchasable at a considerable reduction, at

Many tasty and nourishing dishes may be evolved from corn, thereby providing that variety which whets the jaded appetite.

Corn Souffle is worth trying. To one can of corn chopped fine, add 1 cup milk and simmer ten minutes. Stir in one teaspoon cornstarch blended with cold milk. Season, and cook a few minutes. Then whip in the yolk of one egg, and, lastly, the stiffly beaten white. Bake in a well-greased baking-dish, 20 minutes.

Corn Oysters are equally delicious. Chop the contents of a can of corn, after draining off liquor. Beat two eggs very light and add two tablespoons flour and 1/2 teaspoon salt. Beat all together and drop by the spoonful into deep, boiling fat. When done, lift out with skimmer and serve.

Beans Are Body Builders

RAPIDLY growing young bodies demand body building foods. Lanky frames must be covered with muscle and fat and given the fuel on which to function. Few foods are better calculated to do this work than beans. One may buy these in seven different prepared forms. First there are stringless beans, needed for their tonic and cleansing properties. Then there are wax beans, much the same as stringless beans in particular food values. Again, lima beans, baked beans, beans with tomato sauce, beans with pork, and, too, red kidney beans of which health experts tell us we should eat more. It is baked beans, lima beans and red kidney beans which are particularly important bone and muscle builders. They are as rich as white potatoes in carbohydrates, besides containing proteins and minerals. What satisfying lunches they make for school days, particularly now, when the cool autumn air sharpens young appetites! In casserole dishes they are fine for any meal. Try them baked with onions in this wise. Melt two large tablespoons of butter in a fireproof dish, then fry three large chopped onions in it until a light brown color. Sprinkle in a heaping tablespoon of flour, salt and pepper to taste, pour in a can of beans and add a cup of water. Bake in a casserole until thoroughly hot. This will make a delicious and energizing meal. A quickly prepared and satisfying lunch has for the main dish kidney bean salad. Brown rings of sliced onion in bacon fat. Divide can of kidney beans in portions and put on leaves of lettuce. On top of each portion put the browned onion and serve without dressing.
