How to Find a Bargain Indeed

Who are thoughtful to use the Want Ad column to buy and sell things are people who are very pleasant and fair to deal with. We found this out over a period of time.

When you answer a Want Ad just as it is represented, when you have an answer to your Want Ad, and incidentally you do immediately, you can be sure that it is someone you are glad to deal with.

NEWS BRIEFS

MARCH 2

HOPEWELL, N. J.—Charles A. Lindbergh, Jr., 20-month-old baby of Colonel and Mrs. Lindbergh was seized from his crib where he lay ill with a severe cold last night and taken away by kidnapers of whom no trace has been found today.

The kidnapers left a note in the crib demanding $50,000 ransom. Colonel Lindbergh has taken personal charge of the vast search for the kidnapers and it was understood he was attempting to negotiate directly with the kidnapers.

Troopers and police search for the kidnapers extended over the entire Atlantic coast, the searchers spurred by knowledge that exposure may add to the child's peril.

New Jersey state police broadcast the following message relative to the kidnaping of Charles Augustus Lindbergh, Jr.

"Col. Lindbergh's baby kidnaped from Lindbergh home in Hopewell between 7:30 p. m. and 10 this date. Baby is 20 months and a boy. Is dressed in a sleeping suit."

The baby is blue eyed and has fair curly hair.

SHANGHAI—Chinese defense troops evacuated their fortifications around Shanghai under a withering fire from the Japanese today and re-established positions miles to the rear for another dogged stand.

Chinese commanders of the 19th Route Army, principal defense unit, declared "the fight is just begun" as troops completed an orderly retreat to second defense lines.

SYLVA—A jury of 12 Jackson county citizens at noon today began deliberating their verdict in the case of Jim Bryson, 23 charged with first degree murder. They also had under consideration the fate of Ansel Leopard, who is charged with being an accessory.

RALEIGH, March 2.—Warning that many residences of North Carolina who never before had to make an income tax return were required to do so this year was made in a statement issued today by A. J. Maxwell, Commissioner of Revenue.

ASHEVILLE, March 2.—With between 12,000 and 15,000 acres, including acres on valuable estates, burned over in Polk county, and with the Linville gorge, Upper Catawba river and other sections an expanse of smoke, flames, and charred trees, western North Carolina today was battling against forest fires which threatened to attain the proportions of the costly conflagrations which swept mountain forests last fall.

Waynesville Teams In Two Tournaments

The boys' basketball team is scheduled to play the strong Christ School team in the annual Western North Carolina Conference in Asheville Thursday at 5 p. m.

Coach Weatherby announced the probable line up as follows: Forwards: Murray, Ross, Center, Helmick, guards Davis, Wyatt. Both teams will journey out to Cullowhee for the tournament. The boys play Andrews Thursday night at 9:30 and the girls play Robinsville at 9 a. m. Friday morning.

Honor Students Receive Reward

Each year at the end of the first semester Dr. E. W. Gudger of New York City awards a one-half year membership to the Waynesville Library to the six students at the Waynesville High School—three boys and three girls—who have the highest average in their work. Each of these must be taking the full regular course.

This year the winners of the Library Memberships were Kathryn Queen, Mary Medford, Annie Peck, Ernest Withers, Griffin Hayes, and Ralph Moody.

Supt. Cane Tells How To Handle Prisoners Successfully

Contrary to the general belief of the public, convicts can be controlled more easily with kind words and a kind understanding heart than with guns. This is the method used by J. F. Cane, superintendent of the new state prison at Macleod, which was completed about 20 days ago.

The prison, was opened February 10 and during that time has received 50 prisoners. Most of the prisoners, confined to the counties of Swain, Buncombe, Jackson, Henderson, Haywood and Madison counties. During the short time the prison has been open, Superintendent Cane, called Capt'n by the convicts, has won his way into the hearts of the "country" unfortunates," as he calls them.

Mr. Cane has taken a personal interest in each man and has found that they obey the rules set down by him more readily than if he did not mix with them and be their friend.

Superintendent Cane was sheriff of Haywood county for 5 years, has been handling prisoners for over 30 years, and finds that the best policy is never to treat a prisoner mean. To take the position if a prisoner is decent and is treated mean it makes him mean, and if a prisoner is naturally mean and is treated mean it only makes him worse. Treat them nice and always keep them in a good humor and you'll have little trouble, is his slogan.

The Capt'n believes in using common sense and his tongue more than his pistol. He mixes with them and always has time to listen to their troubles and in many instances, he carries them to the office and gives them advice that will prove profitable after they finish serving their term.

When asked what was his advice to young men, Mr. Cane remarked that there was one thing to be remembered: once a convict, you can never live it down. No matter what the nature of the crime, a convict is always looked down upon. No matter how far a convict goes from home after serving his time, it always comes out sooner or later that he is a convict.

No prisoner is ever given any privileges without first showing that he deserves them. Then their privileges are limited. When given a foot, the average convict usually takes a mile.

The superintendent does all the locking up himself and every precaution is taken to see that no escape is made. The prisoners are allowed visitors. All visitors are watched closely by the wide-awake guards on duty. Marty convicts receive packages, but in every instance they are carefully inspected before being handed to the prisoners. All cakes are cut open several times before the convicts receive them, to see that no saws or weapons were used in baking the gift.

All mail I read that is sent or received at the prison. Quite a number of romances are being carried on through the mails, it was said.

One of the most impressive features of the prison is the sanitary condition. Capt'n Cane, remarked that he was the best "dirt finder" in the state. He insists that every prisoner takes pride in his personal appearance and cleanliness. The barracks are equipped with modern shower baths which the men are required to use often. There happens to be a good barber in the prison now and he keeps the boys "trimmed" and he seems to enjoy his "inside" work immensely.

The prison laundry is kept going full time. Everything is laundered quite often, even to the mattress slips which are furnished clean each week. The mess hall and kitchen would be a credit to any average restaurant; although the "boarders" have no choice of food, they get all the wholesome food they want.

Being a guest for supper, the writer had the opportunity to see that they lost no time in eating practically all that was put before them; which proved that they had put in a hard day's work on the roads. Their supper consisted of beans, boiled cabbage, half an onion, a large slice of corn bread, and a cup of coffee. No sugar or cream was served with the coffee. The guards eat in a small room adjoining the mess hall.

To get a vivid idea of the life of a prisoner it is only necessary to mingle among them for a few hours, because every day to them is the same; with the exception of Sunday and rainy days. Rainy days to them are holidays. The day begins by arising at 5:30 every morning. A thirty minute period is allowed for dressing and preparing for breakfast. Promptly at six o'clock they march from the barracks to the mess hall, two and two, and always under heavy guard. In the mess hall they remain standing until the blessing is asked, then they sit down to a plate which has been served

Poultry Car Will Be Here Second, Fourth Fridays

The poultry car which has been running through Waynesville every second and fourth Saturday has been changed and will come through here every second and fourth Friday.

This change was made in order that the car might stop in Asheville and finish loading before going on to the northern markets.

Jas. L. Robinson, county agent, reports that the local patronage to the car has been good, although there was room for hundreds or more of the fowls in each car. Prices are holding up fine, it was reported.

Small Crowd Attends Prohibition Talk By Congressman Small

Less than fifty people were present at the courthouse Tuesday night to hear Congressman John H. Small discuss the prohibition question.

Mrs. W. A. Hyatt, chairman of the woman's organization for prohibition reform, introduced the speaker.

The speaker went into detail and discussed the different phases of the 18th Amendment and set forth his reasons for an appeal.

"Public opinion voted the 18th Amendment into the Constitution, and it will take public opinion to appeal it," he said emphatically.

He read many statistics and figures relating to the amendment and his reasons for the reform.

John Wilkes Buried Tuesday Afternoon

Funeral services were held Tuesday afternoon for John Wilkes, of Sunburst, 42, who died Sunday afternoon at the Haywood County Hospital here.

Interment was made at Green Hill Cemetery.

Mr. Wilkes had been in ill health for several years. He had been to the hospital about six months prior to the last time and was thought to be on the road to recovery when stricken with a relapse.

The deceased is survived by his widow and two children.
