Enging Poultry Feed May Destroy Profits, Said

It is a plan to use home-grown poultry but it is a poor way to substitute poorer feeds in order to keep down expenses.

Poultry has suffered along with other crops but due to the drop in feed prices in proportion to the high received for eggs and meat, the cold winter permitting a late start at level poultry production has much encouraged to start with their work.

Spray Now For Scale Gives Poison Mixture For Tobacco Pests

Before new growth begins in the orchards of North Carolina, growers should determine the amount of scale on their trees and give the orchards a thorough spraying.

The tobacco flea beetle may be controlled by dusting the young plants with a mixture of Paris green and arsenate of lead...

"Scale insects increase at a rapid rate and will spread over the orchard in large areas before any increase is noticed if the owner is not so servant," says C. H. Brannon, extension entomologist at State College.

C. H. Brannon, extension entomologist at State College, reports a wide prevalence of the flea beetle in the last fall and the unusually early winter. The insects are appearing in large numbers over a wide area of the State.

Good results from spraying are usually depend upon three factors: 1. Proper material used. 2. Proper application. 3. Proper timing.

Those growers who are using the Paris green bed are pleased with the results and are not troubled by such pests as the flea beetle. "We have not had any trouble with this pest from various parts of the State and if possible, nearby growers should visit such a bed and be prepared to build one like it next year."

Mr. Brannon recommends the use of one pound of Paris green and five pounds of arsenate of lead mixed together thoroughly and dusted on the young plants dry.
