In keeping with the plan adopted at the first meet of the year, one of the features of the program was in reference to the George Washington Bi-Centennial. At this meeting, it was in the form of a vocal solo entitled, "Washington, the Man," sung by Mrs. Fred Martin.

Two outstanding papers were presented: One by Professor Paul Frye, Northern Writers," and the other by Miss Louise Beville on "Southern Writers." The first of these presented a discussion of Hawthorne.

Mrs. Grover Davis, chairman of the literary committee of the club, presided during the literary part of the program and delighted the club with a talk on American literature.

Mrs. Tillet of Andrews, district president, addressed the club on the two objectives for this year and most interestingly told of a scheme for the ways and means committee that would be instructive and entertaining also.

Mrs. J. Harden Howell presented the executive committee with the club's files since 1908, when organized. The minutes are complete except for a period of a few years, which it is thought can be recovered.

Pithy Quotations from Public Addresses of MELVIN A. TRAYLOR

President, First National Bank, Chicago

"It is time some leadership and some party called our attention to the fact there is no magic cure for the ills and the evils of human folly. We trod the grimy path of extravagance, of thoughtless and of almost criminal neglect of every sound principle of human conduct, from the individual to the government, and the individual was aided, encouraged, and abetted on that path by the government and those responsible for its administration."

"One of the biggest things was a stunted state of mind in which we all thought we were richer than we were, and were living beyond our means."

"In my opinion, no great division of human society has ever been lied to, and lied about, as much in the same period of time as has the American farmer."

"This then is my hope for our future—that we may be rich without forgetting to be righteous; that we may be powerful without being offensively proud; that we may be nationally minded without being narrow-minded; and, finally, that we may live in a world of fact without surrendering our faith."

"I would urge consideration of the complete abolishment of so-called floor trading, which, as I am informed, has about it most of the characteristics of plain crap shooting, and few, if any, more redeeming features than that of the faithful Ethiopian part-time."

"It is bad enough when the intelligent and wealthy speculate and lose, but when small home owners, wives and young people speculate and lose, simply because they can go to a broker's office and credit for small sums, the practical losses to the nation are any great."

"Out of the stress and difficulty of the situation I believe gradually we shall return to simpler thinking and simpler living. For it seems to me" that we want above everything to abandon the struggle to live up with the Joneses, and to rediscover the true purpose of life, which is the joy to be found in the simple virtues of industry, thrift and sane living. I believe in our people, in our country, and in the God who directs our destinies; and I welcome the future with confidence and unshaken faith."

"We have not failed because of ignorance of economic theories, but because of our utter disregard and defiance of all economic laws. Ambition, stupidity, and greed have dictated policies, and trouble has been the result."

"All through history . . . the nations that have been agriculturists and have included in their agricultural and domestic pursuits the breeding and raising of livestock have been the nations that have endured the longest and performed the greatest work for mankind."

"Open the door of an agricultural school and you close the door of a poorhouse"

"Relief from owing too much money does not lie in borrowing more."

"Knowledge is one thing, but courage of leadership is another."

"Falsehood and error make the headlines, while truth and fact are lost in the maze of half-point type."

"We cannot trade the hungry, the feeble voice of the sick, the empty basket of the unemployed, and the maintenance of party preference or individual advantage or personal achievement."

"I believe I am a better farmer by being shot than I am a banker."

"We must either all thrive together or all suffer disaster."
