

Size And Finish Controls Turkey Sales

An extra big turkey, undeveloped and poorly fattened, stands a poor chance in the general markets against a medium bird that is fat and well finished.

Bryan Nesbit, turkey expert for the poultry department at State College, believes that some turkey fanciers have gone too far in trying to grow out the largest birds possible.

The average turkey grower of North Carolina finds it almost impossible to grow out a well finished bird of large size between April, the time of hatching, and Thanksgiving, the time of selling.

Mr. Nesbit says people have learned in buying their turkeys for Thanksgiving dinner that the hens are fatter and better developed than are the toms.

"While there will always be certain markets which will pay a premium on the extra large birds that are fat and in good finish, it will be impractical and unwise for the commercial turkey grower of this State to attempt the production of large numbers of such birds," says Mr. Nesbit.

Washington's Farm Success Based On Stock Growing

To his other virtues, add that of being a livestock farmer as one of the reasons why George Washington was generally credited as being the leading farmer of his day.

"When Washington came into possession of the beloved Mount Vernon, the fertility of the soil had been impoverished by a century of almost continuous cropping to tobacco and corn," says L.L. Case, animal husbandman at State College.

Mr. Case says Washington not only grew livestock of all kinds, but he received a thrill from the breeding of pure strains.

Finally, he was convinced that improved agricultural practices were vital to the future of the young Nation which he had helped to found.

According to Mr. Case, this advice which any farmer in North Carolina could well apply in 1932.

Dr. Allen, Of State Board Of Health Tells Value Of Milk To School Children

Special to The Mountaineer

Dr. A. T. Allen, State Superintendent of Public Instruction, not only gave his endorsement to the Milk-for-Health campaign recently conducted by the State Board of Health, but he urged "all the workers in the field of education to discharge their obligation by spreading abroad the information that milk is pre-eminently a health food."

Dr. Allen's interest in milk as a health food is well founded. According to the Live-at-Home bulletin issued from his office there is a direct relation between mental alertness and a well-fed body; between undernourishment and backwardness in school.

The bulletin gives this interesting study: "The physical condition and mental state of all the children in the eight grade in one of America's largest cities were recently studied, and it was found that those children who had been accustomed to drinking milk averaged two years younger than the group in the same grade who were being deprived of milk during their growing years.

"Milk is the only food known that contains all the elements that growing children need, namely, protein, energy, and vitamins. Thus, there can be no substitute for milk."

To encourage interest on the part of school children in knowing more about the food value of milk, Dr. Allen is offering a silver cup to the graded school boy or girl who makes the best rhyme on the subject of milk. The closing date for this contest is April 25th.

Maggie And Jiggs At The Golden Gate

(By special Request)

With changes based on the original "Saint Peter at the Gate," J. B. Smiley.

St. Peter stood guard at the Golden Gate, With solemn mien and air sedate, When up to the top of the Golden Stairs, Maggie and Jiggs ascended there Applied for admission and came and stood Before St. Peter so great and good.

In hope the City of Peace to win And asked St. Peter to let them in,

Maggie was tall and dark and thin, With a scraggly beardlet on her chin; And his stomach was built so it rounded out;

His face was pleasant and all the while He wore a kindly and genial smile, The choir in the distance the echoes woke And Jiggs kept still while Maggie spoke.

"Oh thou who guardest the gates," said she, "We two come hither beseeching thee To let us enter the heavenly land, And play our harps with the angel band.

Of me, St. Peter, there is no doubt, There's nothing in heaven to bar me out, I've been to meeting three times a week, And almost always I'd rise and speak.

I've told the sinners about the day When they should repent of their evil way; I've told my neighbors, I've told them all,

'Bout Adam and Eve and the primal all; I've shown them what they'd have to do If they'd passed to heaven as the chosen few;

I've marked the part of duty clear; Laid out the plan of their whole career.

I've talked and talked to them loud and long, For my lungs are good and my voice is strong; So, good St. Peter, you can clearly see

The gate of Heaven is open to me, But Jiggs here, I regret to say, Hasn't walked in exactly the narrow way;

He smokes and swears and grave faults he's got, So I don't know whether he'll pass or not.

"He never could pray with earnest vim, Or go to revivals or sing in a hymn; While I the sins of my neighbors bore He gabbed about with Dinty Moore; He made a practice of staying out late,

Which is a sin you know all women hate, But at last when he did come home, The rolling pin went straight to his dome.

"I know him, St. Peter, know him well, To escape from me he will go to hell, But St. Peter, I need him badly here and hope you can see your way quite clear;

On earth I bore a heavy cross, I've brought my rolling pin, plates and jars To keep him dodging among the stars.

"But say, St. Peter, it seems to me This gate isn't kept as it ought to be; You ought to stand by the opening there

And never sit down in an easy chair; And say, St. Peter, my sight is dimmed, But I don't like the way your whiskers are trimmed;

They are plucked too wide, with an outward toss; They'd look better narrow and straight across."

St. Peter sat quiet and stroked his staff, And in spite of his office he had to laugh; Then he said to the woman with a flash in his eye,

"Who's tending this gate, Maggie, you

SOME TYPIST

"Just what is a typist?" "A typewriter is one who typewrites on the typewriter and the typewriter is a machine on which the typewriter typewrites. Now, the typewriter typewrites on the typewriter until there is no more typewriting to be typewritten on the typewriter on which the typewriter who typewrites on the typewriter typewrites."

The recent freeze almost wiped out the beet, radish and garden pea crops of Carteret County. About one-third the early Irish potato crop was covered with salt water and the cabbage crop was damaged about 25 per cent from wind and cold.

A number of Bertie County farmers have found it necessary to replant their tobacco and tomato seed beds due to the recent freeze.

Alamance County farmers continue to plant pastures and legume grazing crops for their dairy cattle. They have purchased co-operatively about 15,000 pounds of lespedeza and 750 pounds of red clover seed so far this season.

IT IS NOT EASY

To apologize To begin over To take advice To admit error To face a sneer To be charitable To keep on trying To be considerate To endure success To avoid mistakes To profit by mistakes To think and then act To forgive and forget To keep out of the rut To make the best of little To subdue an unruly temper To maintain a high standard To shoulder a deserved blame To recognize the silver lining. BUT IT ALWAYS PAYS.

or I?" Then he rose in his stature, grim and tall, And pressed a button against the wall. And said to the angel who answered the bell:

"Escort this female around to Hell."

Slowly Jiggs turned by habit bent, To follow wherever Maggie went; St. Peter standing on duty there, Saw the top of his head was bare;

He called the old boy back and said: "Jiggs, how long hast thou been wed?"

"Thirty years," he answered with a weary sigh, And then he thoughtfully added, "Why?"

St. Peter stood silent with his head bent down, He raised his hand and scratched his crown;

Then seeming a different thought to take, Slowly, half to himself he spake; "Thirty years with that woman there,

No wonder the man hasn't any hair; Swearing is wicked and smoking's not good;

He smoked and swore I should think he would. "Thirty years with that tongue so sharp!

Ho! Angel Gabriel, give him a harp, A jeweled harp with a gold string. Good sir, pass in where the angels sing."

And Gabriel gave him a seat, alone, One with a cushion up near the thorne. "Call up some angels to play their best,

For Jiggs has surely earned his rest."

"See that on finest ambrosia he feeds, He's had about all the hell he needs; It's certainly not the thing to do To roast him on earth and heaven too!"

They gave him a harp with golden strings, A glittering robe and a pair of wings And Jiggs looking from his high level Thought of Maggie and felt sorry for the devil.
