

Ford Is Confident of Automobile Market

Says Civilization Depends Upon Exchange of Goods

When the price on the new Fords was given out Henry Ford said: "These are the cars and the prices. I think it will be granted that when an eight cylinder car can be bought for the price of a four and in some cases less, I am justified in saying that these are low prices. No profit can be expected from them unless we attain a certain volume of production. Naturally we hope to attain sufficient volume to keep the prices as low as they now are. A man asked me this morning if I thought the present system of doing business was going to last.

"I told him that since commerce and civilization depended on the manufacture and exchange of goods I was willing to manufacture and exchange under any system. The only bad system I know is one that interferes with men working and exchanging what they make. We are just one concern doing our best to start business under present conditions. Other manufacturers are directing their efforts to the same public good. I think there is field enough for any article worth the money.

"There are just two permanent satisfactions in business for me—one is designing and making a useful commodity and the other is the jobs thus created. If you do one, the other naturally follows. I don't think it possible to separate them. It seems to me a waste of time to have to urge people to buy in this country. That is not the manufacturer's business anyway. His business is to make something good at a price so low they cannot help buying."

Prices and description of the new cars are on display at Mizell Sales and Service on Main street.

BENEFIT SHOW GIVEN FOR UNEMPLOYED

A benefit show given last night for the unemployed in Waynesville, was said to be successful, with a large crowd attending. The picture for the occasion was donated by J. N. Massie, and the employees of the local theatre donated their time. The city furnished the lights. H. B. Atkins, owner of the building gave the rent, and the merchants, business men and firemen sold the tickets for the show. Everything was donated, and all money taken in last night will go directly to help the unemployed. This paper gave the hand bills.

A co-operative order for 5,000 pounds of lespedeza was delivered to Gaston County growers last week. The crop will be grown largely for soil improvement.

Rotary Club Observes Farmers' Day Friday

(By Jas. L. Robinson.)
The Rotary club of Waynesville held its annual Farmers Day luncheon on last Friday. The guests of the club were members of the central county committee for the 5-10 year program, and other leading farmers particularly interested in livestock development. Farmers present were Glenn A. Boyd, J. E. Ferguson, C. J. Francis, W. A. Moore, T. Lenoir Gwyn, J. B. Mann, T. H. Rogers, F. A. Justice, Chas. R. McCrary, D. Reeves, James Lee Clark, H. A. Osborne, and W. T. Shelton.

The address was made by Geo. Wallis, manager of Baltimore Farm, who stressed value of purebred sires. Mr. Gwyn discussed the present cattle situation in Haywood, and Mr. Reeves Nolan commended the Rotary club and the Waynesville Mountaineer for their support and interest in the farm problems.

Mr. F. L. Withers presented the status of the vocational education department, and the Rotary club went on record as asking the county to make provisions for permanent quarters for the work.

After the luncheon the farmers met as a committee to plan out a purebred beef sire campaign to culminate in the bull sale at Clyde Saturday afternoon, April 23. The county was divided into sections to be canvassed by committees to place as many purebred bulls as possible. Some townships expect to get rid of all grade or scrub sires at least for cattle within the next few months.

State Dairymen Get Over 17 Millions

In spite of prices running from 20 to 25 per cent below those of the previous year, North Carolina dairymen sold nearly 17 million dollars worth of milk and cream to creameries, cheese factories, ice cream plants, milk receiving plants and city consumers during the year 1931, according to a statement by W. L. Clevenger, dairy manufacturing specialist at the North Carolina State College. Mr. Clevenger figures it this way: This production of creamery butter in North Carolina by 21 creameries and milk plants approximated 2,216,000 pounds which was an increase of 73,000 pounds over 1930. The average price paid to dairymen for the butterfat delivered was 23.1 cents a pound. The creameries, therefore, purchased $475,000 worth of butterfat secured from 11,000 North Carolina farms.

The three cheese factories in the State produced 423,000 pounds of cheese to make which they bought $50,760 worth of milk from about 1,000 farmers located in the mountain area.

Catawba County farmers are planting pine trees this winter in reforesting certain waste areas about over the county.

TROUT SEASON TO OPEN APRIL 15

Anyone Fishing Outside Own County Must Have State License

Anyone who fishes outside the limits of his own county must have a state fishing license, the fishermen of the state were reminded by J. S. Hargett, assistant director of the Department of Conservation and Development at Raleigh.

The requirement, Mr. Hargett emphasized, extends to commercial as well as inland waters, the only exception being the ocean, sounds and the wide mouths of the Cape Fear, Neuse, Pamlico, Tar, and New Rivers, Wilmington, New Bern, Washington, and Jacksonville marking the inland limits of territory where no licenses are required.

The State Anglers Act, Mr. Hargett explained, exempted only the ocean and sounds as waters in which no licenses are required residents of any other counties except those in which the waters are located. The law, however, gave authority to the Board of Conservation and Development to specify additional waters in which license requirements do not apply. Under this authority, the board excepted the mouths of rivers which have been specified.

Although weather handicaps probably resulted in one of the highest Easter Monday fishing days in years, according to the conservation officials, warm spring days are expected to bring out fishermen in large numbers

Health Of Pullets Governs Profits

Where flocks are carefully culled and hens reacting to bacillary white diarrhea are removed and then careful sanitation is followed in the poultry yard there is a loss of only 4.8 per cent during the first twelve weeks of the chicks life; but where these three things are not considered, the loss runs to about 40 per cent.

"This is the result of a careful survey made in 1930," says C. J. Maupin, poultry extension specialist at State College. "Following out the results secured by the successful poultry growers as shown in this survey, we believe there has not been a time in the last 20 years when such good management methods will pay better returns than this year. The margin of profit in poultry growing will be small at best and unless good management methods looking to the health of the flock are followed, these profits will drop to zero."

If a flock owner can raise from 95 to 100 per cent of his babychicks to three weeks of age, the birds will have an excellent start in life and the first danger line will have been passed. From this time on the poultryman must be on his guard against worm and coccidiosis infections. Growing the chicks on clean ground is an excellent preventative against both of these troubles. If it is impossible to move the chicks to clean ground, a sun porch on the south side of the house will help a lot, says Maupin.

After keeping the chicks in the house with the sun porch for about ten or twelve weeks, they may be moved in a portable house to clean ground. Range shelter houses can be constructed cheaply for housing them in summer. It is then necessary to push the birds with good feed; cull closely at broiler age, and look after their health. This done, an insurance policy for profits in September, October and November has been written.

Directors of Library Held Annual Meeting Tuesday Morning

The annual meeting of the directors and stockholders of the Waynesville Library was held Tuesday morning here and reports from the various committees given. The reports showed that the library was up to the standard that there were 700 borrowers from the library last year. The report also showed that a total of 357 volumes were now in possession of the local library.

The treasurer's report showed that the directors had been able to stay on the work in an uninterrupted manner. Only 171 people subscribed to the library last year, which meant $171 received for carrying on the work. $125.00 was collected from 165 and fines during the year, while $73 was raised during the picture show fund. The librarian's report as read at the meeting Tuesday is as follows:

Classification	Circulation
Fiction	4763
Juvenile	681
Magazines	226
Poetry	52
Biography	158
Science	52
Essays	40
History	90
General Literature	33
Total number volumes taken out	6956

Total number subscribers 170
Total number borrowers 760
Signed,
LOUISE BEVILLE,
Librarian.

The report of the Book Committee is as follows:

REPORT OF THE BOOK COMMITTEE

Taking into consideration present economic conditions, it may be said that this year has been a successful one for the library even though it has seemed impossible to carry out some apparently well-laid plans. The thinking people of any community naturally read more serious books at such times, as shown by the tabulation. The White House Conference revealed that the reading public is only about 47 per cent of the population and that the average American buys two books and reads seven during the twelve months. Taking the population of Waynesville as 2100 (white) and this library's circulation as 6956, it is readily seen that approximately 2.4-5 volumes are perused by each citizen right here in our midst, exclusive of any bought or borrowed elsewhere. This fact, taken in addition to the large number of magazines and newspaper-

management methods looking to the health of the flock are followed, these profits will drop to zero."

Lespedeza is going to be obtained as indicated by large cooperative orders made by Macon and Madison recently.
