Obituary

We regret very much the loss of the dear mother of our home. There will always be a real vacancy in the home which no one else can possibly fill. However, there are many unforgettable memories of our sacrificing, and tenderly caring for mother that shall always cheer us along the pathway of life.

We wish to express sincerely our very greatest appreciation to those who ministered unto mother during her illness, also we feel deeply indebted to those who aided in her burial preparation and for the sympathetic attitude on the part of several, and for the soothing words of comfort and eternal life spoken at the funeral service.

Sincerely, I. C. Mehaffey and Family.

Grow More Copons As Farm Sideline

Nothing is more appetizing on the family table than a well grown and finished capon and they may be sold readily on local markets. Cooperative shipments by a group of growers may be made to excellent advantage especially around the Easter holidays when cash on the farm is generally at a low ebb.

Ray S. Dearstyne, head of the State College poultry department, sees in capon production one of the undeveloped industries of poultry farming in this State. He says the early Chinese and Egyptians knew about this delightful meat and practiced canning in ancient days. The Greeks and Romans learned the art and gave the industry to Europe where the consumption of capon meat is generally followed.

The surplus cockerels on a farm may be used for this purpose. However, only well developed birds should be used. If vigorous, robust, worm-free birds are used, they may be grown out into heavy capons that bring good prices. Never use a hen-horn for this purpose, he advises but use such breeds as the Rocks, Brahmas, Orpingtons, Cornish, Wyandots or Jersey Black Giants.

Taking the canning operation is necessary. The best markets exist about Europe and this avoids putting the capons into competition with turkeys at Thanksgiving and Christmas. To have birds ready for the Easter market, caponize them about July 1 to 15. This will give them time to develop large frames and to go through the intensive feeding period which finishes such a bird in from 10 to 14 days.

Mr. Dearstyne believes there is no sound reason why capon production should not become a major farm industry in this State. The man who will caponize a few birds in April, May, June and July, will find them a welcome addition to the family table in winter and he may get some money from them when cash is needed.

Restless, could not sleep

"THERE were days when I felt like I could not get my work done. I would get so nervous and 'trembly' I would have to lie down. I was very restless, and could not sleep at night.

My mother advised me to take Cardui, and I certainly am glad she did. It is the first thing that seemed to give me any strength. I felt better after the first bottle. I kept it up and am now feeling fine."—Mrs. T. R. Gibson, Fort Payne, Ala.

Government Specification Gass Produced For Commercial Sale

Production for the commercial market of government specification gasoline first refined in 1931 for fire engines, ambulances, military vehicles and other emergency equipment has been announced here by the Texas Company.

The company announcement said the new fuel, to be known as "Fire Chief" gasoline, would replace the 1926, and would go on retail sale in this vicinity today. No extra cost to the consumer will be involved in the change.

No specifications of the new product were given out, although Kenneth G. MacKenzie, consulting chemist for the company, was quoted as saying that the octane number of the new gas has been materially improved and the highest government specifications for distillation range and vapor pressure have been passed.

Dahlias Add Beauty To Any Farm Home

A soil that will produce vegetables will grow dahlias and no more beautiful spot can be had about any home than a dahlia garden. Locate it in a sunny spot with partial shade in the afternoon and protected from the drying winds of summer for best success.

These, in brief, are suggestions made by Robert Schmidt of the Horticultural department of the State College who has been successful in growing dahlias in this region. If the soil is heavy, give liberal treatment in manure when the clumps are planted, but if the soil is poor and run down, it may be wise to turn under a liberal application of well-rotted stable manure. Whatever the treatment at planting time, when the dahlia plants are about 15 inches high, top-dress them with a good potato fertilizer, but do not let fertilizer come closer than about 6 inches from the hill.

In dividing dahlias for planting, keep in mind, he says, that the eyes are found on the base of the stem or crown and not on the roots themselves. A root without an eye is worthless. On the other hand one good root with one eye is all that is necessary for a strong plant. The medium-sized roots are better than the large ones.

Mr. Schmidt recommends planting dahlias from April 1 to late June in the vicinity of Raleigh. Best average time is from May 1 to May 15. Early plantings will give blooms from July until frost. Dahlias, he says, should be planted 6 inches deep in sandy soils and not over 4 to 5 inches deep in heavy soils. Space the hills three feet apart in rows from 3 1/2 to 4 feet apart. If several sprouts come up, thin them out to one. It is also necessary to stake the plants so that they may not be injured by hard rains and wind storms. When the plants get about 12 to 15 inches tall tie them to the stakes and make later tyings as the plants grow taller.

Thirty-five crates of strawberries were shipped from Burgaw, Pender County, in early April. Indications are that the crop will be cut in half this season.
