THANK YOU

The special Court House edition recently published by The Mountaineer has been given quite a bit of publicity recently and several letters of congratulations have been received.

The Hendersonville Times-News, a daily paper in our neighboring county of Henderson had the following to say in regard to the edition:

"A splendid 24-page edition of The Waynesville Mountaineer, celebrating the completion of Haywood County's new court house, has been received by this newspaper. The new county building, which it is said cost $240,000, is evidently one of the finest in the State. The special edition of The Mountaineer not only presents a record of the courthouse construction but makes an impressive showing for the town and county."

Harvey Holleman, director of public works at The American Enka Plant said the following about the edition:

"The Enka Library has received a copy of your special Court House edition of The Mountaineer, which is wonderful. Goodwill and prosperity premeate the pages and it reminds one of the good old times in Western North Carolina."

Bruce Webb, promotion director of the Asheville Citizen-Times, and also the most prominent figure in the sponsoring of the 5-10 year farm program for Western North Carolina during the past few months said in a letter:

"I have just finished reading your Court House edition, and congratulate you on it. The breadth of reading matter is most noticeable and should do much to convince 'Haywoodites' that they have a fine old county."

The Rutherfordton News had the following editorial:

"Haywood county has just completed a $240,000 modern new court house at Waynesville. The Waynesville Mountaineer issued a 24-page edition last week on the county and new building which was full of interesting facts. That county was in dire need of a new court house and we congratulate the county and The Mountaineer. It's a good court house, in a good county and is being boosted by a good paper."

We are not printing the above quotations because we feel that we are worthy of them, but because we want the writers to know that we appreciate them and pass them on to our readers.

In publishing the special edition we spared no time, money or extra trouble to get together a paper of which the citizens of the county are worthy. We appreciate the telephone calls of congratulations and the personal ones. If there is anyone that wishes a copy of the edition, we still have a few left and they may be secured either from this office or The Waynesville Book Store.

WATCH YOUR HEALTH

It is a known fact that here in Western North Carolina living conditions are far better than anywhere else east of the Rockies and south of the Mason-Dixon line. Even with all the blessings of nature bestowed upon us we sometimes drift into a habit of neglecting our health and letting it look after itself only after we have gorged ourselves with the things that are really harmful to our bodies. During the summer time the body is usually unable to throw off the many disease germs that the average person is thrown in contact with, which makes it more important that we watch our food, and also keep ourselves alert to the dangers of catching these dreaded diseases.

In speaking along this same line The Rutherfordton News says:

"In times like these when we encounter such strong competition in the professional and business world it behooves us all to keep our physical vigor. Being in the proverbial 'pink of condition' today is a requisite to success.

"Maintaining our health imposes no difficult task upon us. If we get plenty of sleep, exercise moderately, keep out in the open in our spare time relax occasionally and forego needless worry we will have gone far toward keeping in shape.

"So far as foods are concerned, the simpler the diet the better. Plenty of vegetables and fruits, liberal quantities of water, and not too much pastry and heavy desserts are recommended by physicians. We should not neglect a nourishing breakfast consisting of our favorite beverage, a cereal which contains cellulose, to add elimination, some fruit-juice and, if we have sufficient appetite eggs or sausage—this is an ideal morning meal.

"It will pay all of us to follow such simple and easy health rules. If we want to keep up with the other fellow and outdistance competition we can make no better start than to get in good physical condition and keep that way."

CANNON AND POLITICS

Bishop James Cannon, Jr., of political and stock market fame, to say nothing of church activities, is against an insurgent against the great political party to which he paid allegiance for so many years. His address at the Lake Auditorium Sunday morning left no doubt in the minds of his hearers as to just where he stands politically this year. To what extent he will go in his efforts to herd the Methodist of the country into the folds of the Republican party with his cry of prohibition cannot be predicted at this time. It is safe to say, however, that his influence is nothing like what it was four years ago. Then those who followed him did so mostly for the reason that they balked at voting for a Catholic and not on the ground that Smith was wet.

In spite of the fact that the Bishop refuses to answer when asked the direct question as to whom he would support for President, his sermon left no doubt in the minds of his hearers that he will give his strength to the reelection of President Hoover. His comparison of the Democratic and Republican platforms in the matter of prohibition made it perfectly plain that of the two he considered the Republican platform dry as compared with the wetness of the Democratic plank, in his opinion. Not only this but his comparison of the last utterance of both Mr. Hoover and Mr. Roosevelt on the prohibition question left no doubt in the minds of his audience that he considered Mr. Hoover a dry and Mr. Roosevelt a wet, based on his interpretation of these utterances.

Naturally Bishop Cannon strongly urged and advised that all church people make it a point to discover where each candidate from that for the presidency to township constable stands on the matter of prohibition and then vote for the man who is dry or the driest. All of which leaves the thinking citizen unable to form any opinion except that the Bishop will support the Republican ticket and do what he can to lead his church followers to do likewise.

After all there is nothing in the Bishop's attitude to surprise any one. He bolted the party four years ago and has never yet been brought to the point where he was willing to return home. It is unfortunate that he even now fails to see the trend of public opinion and to realize that he is fighting a futile battle that only in defeat renders his cause more and more hopeless regardless of its moral points.

There are larger things at stake this year than prohibition intolerance. Upon the victory or defeat of the Democratic party this year rests the economic fate of this nation for the next four years. Regardless of which party is elevated to power the question of the eighteenth amendment will come to the people as a whole for a decision. Neither party can change the constitution otherwise and after all when the people speak a majority must and will rule. Therefore the blame cannot be attached to the Democratic party because it is only fair that the people now have an opportunity to speak their minds and whatever their decision shall be it will be for the temperance leaders to begin anew a fight for the outlawry of the whiskey traffic not alone by laws of the state and nation but through the actual desires of the people themselves.

FRANK NASH

In the death of Frank Nash there passes from the stage of action in North Carolina one of the ablest lawyers of his generation. To few men of his profession has it been given to labor for so many years. The happy thought in this connection is that by far the most of his labors were spent in an effort to serve his state and his fellow men.

Frank Nash was a man trusted by the public as will be shown by his record as a public servant. From the mayor of his home town he rose by rapid strides to the office of Senator and later to that of assistant attorney general of the state, an office which he ably filled for many years. Recently he had been discharging the duties of the clerk of the supreme court.

To Mr. Nash it was given to live through that period when North Carolina, his native state, struck her stride and came into her own, and no one rejoiced in her development and her progress more than did he.

In his passing the state loses a citizen who played his part and played it well. North Carolina is a greater state because of his life and activities.

The grading of the court house grounds has made a decided improvement and it now begins to look like some of the government buildings in Washington. The huge shovel, during the past few days has tackled the job and made much headway in leveling the surplus dirt on the front into terraces in the rear of the building. When the walks are laid in front the looks of the building will be improved 100 percent.

We have noticed that during the past few days many tourists have stopped in front of the new court house and gazed at its beauty for some time. It is truly a building of striking beauty that any one can't help stopping and admiring.

One of the outstanding things that has been done during the past few weeks in the national political circles was the immediate acceptance by Governor Roosevelt of the Democratic nomination for president in order to save expenses. It seems that he has got right down to the trend of the day to save every penny that he could, and certainly the old custom of being officially "notified" several weeks after the convention is out of date, and certainly an added expense that is worth nothing. We believe that if Mr. Roosevelt will practice that brand of economy throughout the coming three months that he will have little trouble in being elected.

HAZELWOOD SWAMPS DIMENSION

Hazelwood traveled to Black Mountain last Saturday and overpowered the Dimension club by a score of 19-4. The local boys went on a hitting spree, collecting 19 hits for a total of 27 bases off the offerings of Hall and Stevens. Fox, Fisher and Burrell led the Hazelwood batters with four hits each. One of Burrell's hits went for a home run. Putnam hurled good ball for seven innings, when owing to an infected hand he gave way to Collins. Price, Hazelwood's strong arm catcher, occupied the mound in ninth inning, with Fox on the receiving end.

All indications are that a good game is in store for the local fans when Saturday of this week will see Enka in combat with Hazelwood on the local grounds. The game will be called at 3:30.
