DISTRICT ROTARY MEETING IS HELD IN WAYNESVILLE

from the crowded section of the country. Mr. Jackson told of a recent visit to the northern market and what he saw there in the way of machine improvements. "Machines are taking the places of the great winners of our homes," he said. "I saw in New York one machine that was turning out more work than 50 men ordinarily turned out, and only one man was operating this machine."

"There are at present twelve million people out of work in this country, and it seems that little can be done to create jobs for them. We now have a surplus of everything, we have got to adopt a new way of living," the speaker continued.

President Hunter, of Cullowhee, said in the course of his address that the Great Smoky Mountains National Park would mean more to this section than anything that has come this way in the history of the state.

F. Roger Miller, of Asheville, a past president and now serving his second term as chairman of the inter-city relations committee of the Asheville Rotary club, told the council that four new industries have definitely decided to locate in Western North Carolina and are now considering sites.

"A dozen or more important new business enterprises are in prospect for the near future," he said. "Prospectively, purchasers are considering two large resort developments which will add greatly to our present facilities for the entertainment of tourists. More than a million tourists will visit the Great Smoky Mountains National Park in 1935."

Advertising Needed
"Western Carolina's greatest development as a tourist center is just ahead," Mr. Miller declared, and he urged the importance of national advertising for the region as a whole.

"In 1931, a year of great and general depression," he said, "the men and hotels of California reported more than 12,000,000 tourists, guest days and a revenue from these sources as more than $20,000,000."

He said that "competition is maintaining competition among the communities of Western North Carolina, and this, the most important thing that has happened in a generation, is already the achievement of the civic organizations."

Advocates Regional Body
Mr. Miller advocated the organization of a regional planning council to embrace representatives to all the groups and agencies interested in the social and economic advancement of the mountain section as a whole. He argued that this method is needed to co-ordinate the activities of various agencies engaged in special endeavors by operating independently, to plan an orderly program of development, and to give definite direction to ideas generally accepted as logical and desirable but now languishing for lack of support.

"Western North Carolina lacks regional entity," he said, "unity of plan and purpose, co-ordinated initiative and activity, a working and effective organization devoted to the advancement of the region as a whole. We have unlimited resources and opportunities too numerous to catalog."

Soco Gap Road Survey By Highway Official on Wed.

change of the survey, said that his survey shows that a road from Delwood to Soco Gap, a distance of eight and a half miles, with a thirty foot road, will not cost an excessive amount of money in fact the cost of such a road will not be above the average, but so rough as the Smokemont road and will be a better road and also difficult of construction. He said that there would probably be about 200,000 cubic yards of dirt to be removed in the strictly mountainous part of the road, that is from about one mile above Maggie to the gap, a distance of three and a half miles. He said that his report will be ready to be made next week, there being only a few details to be worked out.

This road, Mr. Marsh said, will be a very beautiful one, for the most part straight, no sharp curves, and the purely mountainous part of it about a seven per cent grade. He stated, however, that it will be incomplete if the road does not go on through the Indian Reservation to connect with Highway 107 at Cherokee, a distance of eleven miles. Mr. Marsh said.—Written by W. C. Allen.

Give them the Gift of Communication... A TELEPHONE

As a Christmas gift, a telephone is unusual, and most useful. When you give your family a telephone, you give a service that will run errands anywhere, any time, in all kinds of weather.

You give your family ready access to friends, which means many pleasant social gatherings that might otherwise be missed.

You give a certain protection in emergencies, for who knows when it will be necessary to call the doctor—the police—the fire department?

You give your family a priceless gift—quick, easy, two-way voice communication for every day of the year.

Think how much it means to have that familiar instrument—the telephone—forming a link between your home and the outside world, and you will agree that the telephone has all the essential qualities of the ideal Christmas gift.

And the cost is so small that it doesn't begin to compare with the value. It is wise to order now, so that Christmas day will find your telephone in place, ready to serve.
