

Judge Winston Puts Questions To Citizens

Asheville in gayety and
As an all-round sum-
home for the whole family, Way-nessville is at the top. It is not necessary to stress this obvious fact.
Therefore, here are two or three simple ideas:
First, the impression prevailing all over that Waynesville's hotels are "rotten" is the word used by some rival towns; should be corrected. If the eating is as good as elsewhere in Waynesville as at my home it can't be beat anywhere.
Second, the White Sulphur water should be utilized. If this water were put on Main street, at a free fountain it would draw many visitors.
Third, Waynesville's altitude and its pure water, also its abundance of fruits and vegetables and dairy products, its fine scenery and superb roads, its past history as the very center of political influence and the home of so many judges and congressmen and the like. Rivaling if not surpassing any thing possessed by any city in America. All these advantages should be made known.
"Fourth, last and above all, your library should be kept at high speed.
When one is going off for the summer, he is likely to ask, 'Is there a library?' Waynesville's library is a drawing card. Now that it is open in the mornings visitors frequent the building.
It seems to me that every family
in Waynesville should pay the small sum of one dollar to the library. If indeed, you should close your library
I fear you would lose many visitors.
"Fifth, next year, no doubt, will be the greatest Western Carolina ever had. The eyes of the world are fixed on the Great Smokies and the incomparable advantages, which the United States, with millions will make available. What will Waynesville's citizens do to utilize these opportunities?"

Grange To Meet At Farm Convention

The first organized school for Grange lecturers will be held at State College during the week of the State
Farmers' and Farm Women's Convention, July 24 to 29.
Plans for the school have been made by Harry B. Caldwell of Greensboro, State Lecturer, cooperating with Charles A. Sheffield, secretary of the convention. As announced by Mr.
Caldwell, the school begins on Monday, July 24 at ten o'clock with the lecturer first attending the afternoon conference of the American Institute of Cooperation. That evening the grangers will take part in the general meeting on Riddick Field
when Secretary of Agriculture Henry
A. Wallace, is scheduled for an address.
The program then continues through Thursday afternoon with many vital matters pertaining to Grange activities discussed by State and national leaders. Among those on the program are L. J. Taber, National Master; Dr. Clarence Poe, past State Master; W. Kerr Scott, master, and other prominent Grange members.
Along with these members, of the Grange family, Dean I. O. Schaub,
Mr. Jane S. McKimmon, Prof. G.
Horace Hamilton, Prof. T. E. Browne and others of the State College faculty will have a part on the program.
The lecturers will also hear one of the prominent agricultural leaders who will be on the program of the Institute of Cooperation.
Mr. Caldwell announces that the semi-finals in the State Grange debate will be held Monday morning.
The college is offering rooms in its dormitories free of charge as long as they last and meals may be obtained in the college dining hall at cost prices.

VERDICT OF FIRST DEGREE MURDER GIVEN H. BROWN

Brown left with his wife and a little later was seen struggling with her down the road. He threatened to shoot her if she went to the home of neighbors. Mrs. Brown's mother appeared on the scene and was cursed by Brown, who later went to his father's home.
Brown was seen later coming through the field with a shotgun. Mrs. Brown with her parents started for their home. Mr. Lowe saw Brown standing behind a bush and then Brown raised up, aimed a Mrs. Brown and fired the gun. The loud striking her. She was picked up by her father and brought to the Haywood County Hospital where she died several hours later.
Brown was arrested some hours later near the scene of the shooting and brought to jail here.
Brown had told a Mrs. Clark that he was going to kill his wife. Neighbors stated that the Browns had had a number of struggles previously to the date of the fatal shooting.
It was also stated that Brown had made threats to shoot the entire Lowe family.
Early in the morning of June 10th, Brown had gone to Shelton Laurel and bought a quart of liquor and took several drinks before meeting Mrs. Brown and her family.
Testimony by Brown was that he did not remember anything from the time he took the drinks until he was arrested some time later in the evening.
The defense tended to show that he was a boy of low mentality, and subject to fits until he was 16 years of age. He had had pneumonia during recent years and this brought on the fits again. He never got out of the first grade at school because of low mentality. He was shy and would sit with his face in his hand, and not mix with people.
The state brought out that he was capable of making contracts with people for work and capable of carrying out these contracts.
Dr. Griffith, of Asheville expert in treatment of mental diseases examined Brown here and also in Asheville and stated that the boy did not have enough mentality to determine right from wrong. He had a mind of an average 7 or 9 year-old boy. And was in such a condition now. Neighbors stated they did not believe he could distinguish right from wrong. Others said he was of low mentality, but that he knew right from wrong.
The state also contended that he courted and made arrangement for their marriage in Tennessee, and was mad with his wife because she left him.
The state also contended that he had planned the act.
The defense contended that he was intoxicated and had a relapse of memory and therefore could not deliberate or meditate, or even distinguish good from evil, and asked for a verdict of not guilty.
"Drunkenness is no excuse of crime," the jury was told by Judge Alley.
The defense also brought out that members of Brown's family had suffered from fits and Dr. Griffith stated that fits might indicate insanity. Dr. Griffith said he had treated three or four thousand patients for insanity.
The state offered Doctor, Sam Stringfield, W. L. Kirkpatrick, and Dr. Davis, who observed him while in court and stated that of heavy the boy was of low mentality that he knew right from wrong.
The case was attended by a large number of people during each of the sessions. Saturday night when the case went to the jury there was a good crowd present, including a number of women and summer visitors.
The defendant was represented by W. T. Hannah and C. H. Sathers, counsel appointed by the court. Solicitor John M. Queen for the state was assisted.
The jury was composed of 1 carpenter, 1 blacksmith, 7 farmers and 3 employees of Champion Fibre Co.
COMMISSIONERS MEET
The Board of County Commissioners met for their regular Monday meeting last Monday. Other than the regular routine of disposing of business, no other matters were acted upon.
Mrs. Joe Doggett, who has been the guest of her sister, Mrs. Woodson Jones, and Mr. Jones for several days, is leaving today for her home in High Point.
Mr. and Mrs. Watson Scott and little daughter, of Winston-Salem were week-end guests of Mrs. S. T. Neal. They returned to their home Sunday accompanied by Miss Anna Leak Scott and Miss Bell King who have been guests of Miss Martha Neal for two weeks.
Mr. W. C. Russ, editor of The Mountaineer, left Tuesday to attend the annual meeting of the State Press Association in Manteo this week. He will return home Sunday. Mrs. Russ is spending this week in Hendersonville as the guest of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Foster Bennett.
Mr. and Mrs. R. E. Wood and Bob Wood, of Elizabethton, Tennessee, Mr. George Toncray and George Toncray, Jr. of Johnson City, Tennessee, who arrived Tuesday for the occasion of Mr. Shoobred's birthday, returned to their homes today. They were guests of Mr. and Mrs. John N. Shoobred during their visit.

A DREAM

Last night I dreamed that I returned And saw my Waynesville friends again, The ones for whom my heart had yearned. Yes, memory brought them back just then.
My dream though pleasant was untrue, For when I reached to clasp your hands Your faces vanished like the dew. Or sparkling sunbeams in the sands.
Now how could I my spirit soothe, Or ease the pain within my breast. Are so called friends, but painted truth And flee as birds from their nest.
Ah memory, go your way tonight, Leave me alone and free my mind Go dreamland from my haunted sight That I may peaceful slumber find.
