"Old Time" Scenes Are Recalled By Daily Columnist

Haywood, came to see me yesterday. Brother Liner got to recalling old times and old scenes, and I was carried back through the years to the time that the Rev. Jim used to preach n Cove Creek and thunder his anathemas at the moonshienrs and the blockaders. They didn't allow just permission replied that he would anybody to jump them about their gladly give it if the Indians were cussedness, but Brother Jim was our kind of folks and the lanky moun-taineer, would leave their lean-shanked young 'uns to watch their stills, and would slip down out of the dark and lonely coves to listen to the curly-headed young preacher call down the anathemas of heaven upon their wrong-doing.

"And they didn't fall out with Jimeither. They would have 'fout' for him at the drop of a hat and would drop it themselves. One of the most vivid recollections of my boyhood has to do with a meeting he held at our church when some of these old moonshiners fell beneath his tiery exhortations and went to the mouners bench. There they 'rassled' in prayr in the dim light of flickering ker sene lamps, while they saints sang Some of them got religion and cut ap their stills. They may have kept a small supply of pearterin' for a snakebite or the rheumatics, but the made faithful members of the church and the best of neighbors that ever lived."

Perhaps there are some readers of The Mountaineer that remember the above instances.
