Shall We Have Beauty Or Bill Boards Along Our Highways?

Pauline Smith, District By Anne Agent North Carolina State College

Is there no way to build up senti-ment against the indiscriminate post-ing of bills and the dumping of tin cans, rubbish heaps, and old cans-along our highways.

Bill boards are a common source full hosters They range in size from the discount of the risk and trees to the discount of the and trees are the first than the same trees are tavi a samps defaced and the tornic rows of will boards stare at to on an odes. They are seen at very turn. They speawl act - the replace stretches of country landscapes and the most conspicuous points on the highways are gleeted for posting bills. Long before we reach a town, we are told where to find places to eat places to sleep, bargain houses-and what-not. Property owners per-nut glaring signs to be painted on barks and bill boards to be erected for a small compensation. More often the signs are nailed up without per-mission from the owner who is not enough interested in the appearance of the property to have them removed. Business interests are defeating their purpose in the type of signs and advertisements posted. If every property owner would have bills removed with 257 cinners, which established a new record for England if not for the world. The old British mark was 246 with 258 cinners, which established a new record for England if not for the world. The old British mark was 246 with 258 cinners, which established a new record for England if not for the world. Where bill board advertisement is permitted, well designed boards placed with discrimination, and only with the advice and consent of the supervising andscape architect and district highway supervisor, should be permitted, there is another side to the oness
