SECURING SECURITY

NORMAN PLOTT

Ed. Note—Norman Plott, of Bethel high school, will represent Haywood County at the district declamation contest which is being sponsored by the Building and Loan Associations of North Carolina...

Two hellish bloodhounds—fear and insecurity—have terrorized thousands into suicide and dogged the footsteps of ten thousands in despair to the grave. To escape the direful influence of these pursuers, and be able to face the stern realities of life with a reasonable measure of certainty is an end devoutly to be wished.

This desirable and necessary frame of mind may be obtained by the cultivation of the habit of thrift. As one of our wisest men has said: "Thrift is such a simple thing, and yet it means so much. It is the foundation of success in business, of contentment in the home, and of standing in the community."

That thrift is the foundation of business success is forcefully illustrated by the lives of hundreds of Americans from Franklin to Ford. The case of F. W. Woolworth is typical of hundreds of others. He started in business as a clerk in a department store, and adopted the homely philosophy of Poor Richard—"If you take care of the pennies, the dollars will take care of themselves."

In contrast, we all know of men who began a business career under most fortunate circumstances and recently gone into bankruptcy. The high cost of living and the exasperating expense of unwise investments had sapped the vitality of their resource before the crash in the financial situation came.

Another thing that gives the individual dignity and assurance in the face of all opposing forces is home ownership. No family can be contented, always, in a rented house. In a home where there is worry, there cannot be happiness, worry is part and parcel of a rented house. Money spent in the buying of a home is money invested in contentment.

Reliable firms are ready and willing to finance home building, making it possible for the investor to pay for his home in small amounts, covering a period of years. These payments are investments not only in real values, but also in contentment, confidence, and security—the stuff out of which happiness is made. Again, thrift is the basis of standing in the community. One's position in society depends largely upon such things as financial independence, permanence of residence, and community service.

Neatest girl, Ruth Gossette. Cuttiest girl, Annette Chambers. Most dignified girl, Nesbit Wines. Sweetest girl, Hazel Rogers. Most dignified boy, Carl Henline. Best personality, Sarah McCracken.

Most typical girl, Marie Swayngin. Old Maid, Gladys Medford. Bachelor, David Shook. Most capable, Levi Haynes. Class musician, Edwina Brooks. Laziest girl, Grace McCracken. Baby, Carroll McCracken. Teachers' pet, Emily Smathers. Best all-round, Jeanette Chambers. Class sissy, Francis Kirkpatrick. Class monkey, Cora Lee Haynes.

The last two depend mainly upon the first, obviously, and the last one depends upon the second for its reason that one must be a permanent resident of the community before he will have an appreciative interest in it, or before he can be one of the group.

Thrift is the basis of every sort of happiness, whether we realize it or not. Happiness is impossible without reasonable success in business; it rests upon contentment; and is proportionate to one's community standing. Therefore, it is not desirable enough and important enough to challenge our most serious consideration?

Arkansas Judge Flays Divorce Law

Little Rock, Ark.—Arkansas' 90-day divorce law, which has caused thousands to come to the "wonder state" to seek freedom from marriage vows, was flayed by Chancellor Frank H. Dodge.

"Only by enactment of rigid laws," Judge Dodge said, "can Arkansas or any state hope to overcome the growing evils of divorce."

These laws, according to the judge, should embrace the following points: 1. Publication of bans prior to marriage. 2. Prevent remarriage under one year. 3. Require physical examination before license is issued. 4. Make it a violation of the law for persons of widely different ages to marry.

were interpreted to mean the marriage racket" uncovered here several weeks ago. Two instances revealed at that time were:

Where a couple announced intentions to wed, they got a license (it was published) but they began living together.

The "racket" was exposed recently in the case of a prominent St. Louis woman who married in Arkansas and the marriage was annulled after seven weeks.

This kind of case, he has been frequent in Arkansas since enactment of the 90-day divorce law which has opened up "freedom" to a degree where a divorce can be obtained in as little as two minutes, unless it is a contested divorce.

Judge Dodge voiced his views before friends and members of the Pulaski juvenile court.

"Yes," said the lordly young man, "I write poetry."

"How truly devastating," she exclaimed, "Did your poetry yield any returns?"

"Yes," said the young man sighing heavily, "It practically all returns."
