BEWARE OF SIGNS

From now on, I am believing in signs: I am not superstitious, but I am going to be careful. I have had too much trouble during the past four months not to wake up.

On February 4, I saw the new moon thru some telegraph and telephone wires and did not throw a handful of dirt over my left shoulder to ward off bad luck. The following afternoon, some guy in a car stole my (un-insured) automobile and I have not heard hair nor hide of it since. Loss, $600.00.

On February 13, I walked under a painter's ladder on my way home to lunch. When I arrived, I found that a covey of my wife's kinsfolks had come up to spend a few weekends, and furthermore—a water-pipe had busted in the basement, and that required the help of a plumber and a helper and a pumper. Loss, not counting meals and beds, $725.

On March 2, two black cats spend across the street only 15 feet ahead of me. The very next day, I was being assisted to a platform at one of our warehouses, and my foot slipped, and I almost broke one of my legs. It was bruised and skinned and perforated and burned up from my knee on down. After paying the doctor and 4 drug stores for plasters, antiseptics, and so forth, I was out exactly $25.25, and I ain't near well yet.

I knocked over the ash-tray on a dinner on the evening of March 15, and failed to catch a pinch of the salt over my right shoulder, but never thought anything of that. Three days later I sold a man a ball of wool on credit. He said, "No, thank you! I can't take any more wool." I had a little idea of what was in the U. S. but I now living in. Total loss, not counting punitive and loss, $122.75.

On March 29, I got a letter from my wife, asking me to bring her a pair of shoes. I did not, but the next morning I found up against a wall of my house a building that had been recently burned, and that I have been called back to the office for several months. I am in the office of a dealer in the city, and I am dodging ever all year and all winter that I am applying for a job. When I broke my shaving mirror this morning, I did every thing known to healers to set off the bad-luck that always follows such an event.

MIKE DEMANDS A FEW MINOR CORRECTIONS
That rock, C., May 7, 1934.
dear Mr. Editor:
Please correct some mistakes you made in my column last week. I am your regular correspondent, but if you don't print facts like I send them in, I am assured that I will get into trouble about some.

On Monday, I said that the otter-moiled which formerly belonged to ebbie wilkins had been traded back to you brown of the "used car company" but you said I said that otter, wilkins had his runabout a few days ago when it was took away from him under count of he had skipped 7 payments. He is taking brass knuckles for me, so I heard.

You also said that I said that the wider pekkins is making eyes at tom motts, and her husband has been dead only 4 weeks. I said mrs. pekkins was kind enough to let mr. tom motts ride home with her Friday p.m., when he was ketching walking up the road by her. her brother has been to me and he wants to see your correction in print at once. he weighs 245. tom does not mind the mistakes but she does.

in sundays that rock news, you said that I said that the mad dog which bit mrs. jennie sue buckett on the front leg had been killed and was announced by our local veterrenary as mad with the rabbits. I said the dog which bit mrs. buckett's milk cow on the front leg turned out to be a real mad dog by our veterrenary. please change her to the cow at once.

Mr. ben sliak says he could not expect to better of you than to get his name mixed up so's it read—"sliak ben" and his oldest daughter did not marry as stated in last week's column; her husband never did show up as promised, but she is and complaining very much. she is going with a new feller now by the name of ed, hostick and it looks like she will land him.

Kind Friends: "I'll give you a penny for a kiss, Elizabeth." Elizabeth: "No, thank you! I can't take any more takin' ood-liver oil."
