Porcupine's Quilla

Not being equipped to do any shooting, it is impossible for the porcupine to toss its burbs from its shin. The only real weapon he has is a mighty dangerous tail, which whips around to slap an enemy if the latter is foolish enough or ignorant enough to get too close, This tall is armed with many quills. These are held in place in a normal manner, providing the animal is not intucked. When disturbed, it has the ability to release them to the extent gligt a swish of the full cut plant them in the shin of the attack the option woulds, they only but tons ush here entrance by three the Porcelain knobs are used more often by telephone companies in cities and the glass insulators in the country. One company explained that the glass insulators are cheaper and also that since the light shows through them, birds are not so likely to build their nests in them.

Dogs Indispensable Perhaps most widely known of all animals for his faithful devotion, the dog constantly performs acts of bray-

ery and courage, sacrificing his life when necessary for his master. Man can in no practicable way be hundled other than by the dog. When a pole-is to be discovered, there must be-dogs. Despite all modern inventions, expeditions into the Arctics are never attempted without them. In many European countries they are still employed for draft purposes. Ills war dogs were in service at the front at

England at War in 1761

Against France, Spain England, in 1761, declared war ngninst both France and Spain. She lost no time in renewing hor attentions to the spanish colonies. On an October day in 1762 a British fleet under Admiral Samuel Cornish reached Manila with troops of whom General Draper was in command. The entire force numbered about 6,000 including 2,000 Sepoys. There was then no Spanish enptain general, so the demand for surrender was made on the Roman Catholic archbishop. Manila was little prepared for resistance. What fortifications she had were built to keep off the Mores or the Chinese pirates, not a heavily armed European fleet, with what were then considered powerful batteries, General Draper made a landing and advanced on the city under cover of artillery fire. A picked native force which was sent against him was driven back in wild disorder. The archbishop, deploring the shedding of blood, surrendered the city. For three hours Manila was given over to pillage and the Sepoys committed all the excesses forbidden under the rules of civilized warfare. On the protests of the prelate the English commanders made the troops desist, An outstanding figure at this crisis was Simon de Anda, a judge and patriot leader. He maintained that the archbishop had no authority and should not have surrendered if he had it. He notified the English that the people of the Philippines repudlated all terms of the surrender, especially the promise to pay $4,000,000 in gold. He had escaped to a neighboring island with certain government records and a stock of official printed stationery and there he issued orders and decrees as the captain general. The war between England and Spain was ended by the Treaty of Paris in 1763.
