Jack Dempsey Is Now Father Of A 7-Pound Daughter

New York—Joan Hannah Dempsey weighed in Saturday at the Polyclinic Hospital at 7 pounds 3 ounces.

She is the daughter of Jack Dempsey, former heavyweight champion of the world, and his wife, Hannah Williams, of the stage.

Jack, nervously pacing the hospital corridors prior to the birth, had said:

"I sure hope it's a boy. I want to match him with Gene Tunney's kid as soon as they're big enough."

The minutes passed, as if hours. A baby father. Then out came the nurse.

"It's a girl, Mr. Dempsey."

For a moment, Jack's face was puzzling. Then a beam, a grin, that proud possessive look.

"Hurrah," he cried out: "I love little girls."

The former champion couldn't see his wife for an hour. So he hastened to the lobby, spread the news around the lobby—and around town. So completely did he dominate the scene that a cynic champion asked:

"Who had this baby, anyway?"

The mother and baby were doing fine. She was divorced in Reno from her first husband, Roger Wolfe Kahn, son of the late Otto Kahn, international banker. Dempsey's first wife was Estelle Taylor, actress.

"We had agreed," Dempsey said, "that whether it was a boy or a girl, Hannah could choose the first name and I'd choose the second. So Hannah said 'Joan' because it sounds like me, I guess, and I said 'Hannah'."

Dempsey said the baby had his black hair. Mrs. Dempsey's eyes and mouth are "a very pretty baby, indeed."

Timely Questions And Answers On Farm Problems

Question: What grain mixture should be fed the freshening cow?

Answer: The first day after freshening, the grain feed should be limited to bran mash. For the next four days the feed should consist of equal parts of wheat bran and ground oats.

On the fifth day the animal may be started on the regular milking ration and gradually brought to full feed over a period of three weeks from freshening date. The time required to bring them to full feed should be regulated by the physical condition of the animal and the owner must be the judge. The time given is a general average and will serve as a guide.

Question: When should the laying flock be culled for low producing hens?

Answer: The most rigid culling should be done at the close of the laying season which usually occurs from July to November. However, the flock should be closely watched through the latter part of July and all of August. It is at this time that the non-paying hen goes into a molt and these should be culled from the flock and disposed of as soon as production ceases. Get rid of all early molters.

Question: Can tobacco mosaic be controlled by plowing in the stalks after the crop is harvested?

Answer: Removal of the diseased plants or cutting up the land and plowing with a disk soon after the crop is harvested will greatly reduce the disease resulting from soil contamination. Results of experiments in control of this disease together with recommended practices are contained in Extension Station Bulletin No. 257, copies of which will be sent free upon request to the Agricultural Editor of State College.

Question: Why, hello, Shad-belly, I have not seen you for several years. What are you doing—working for the same outfit?

Shad-belly: Yes, a wife mother-in-law and bunch of kids.

Restaurant Patron (crossly): Waiter, what are these black specks in my milk?

Waiter: I don't say; unless they're some of dem vitamins dey's talkin' so much about.

Lower Tobacco Tax Would Help Farmers

A graduated tax on cigarettes that would raise the sales of 350,000,000 packs was suggested by Farm and Home work at State College by J. H. Hutson, chief of the AAA tobacco section.

Such a tax would increase the sale of inexpensive cigarettes and thereby stimulate consumption, as well as bring more competition into the manufacturing end of the industry, he said.

Greater consumption will enable the growers to sell more tobacco, he pointed out, and greater competition among manufacturers will tend to bring wool prices up.

He suggested the present tax rate of $1 a thousand on cigarettes to retail at $4.25 or more a thousand. Into this class would be packages of 20 cigarettes selling for 12 1/2 cents or more.

Next would be a tax of $2 a thousand on cigarettes to retail for between $3 and $4.25 a thousand. This would include packages of 20 cigarettes selling for 19 cents each.

The lowest bracket would be a tax of $1.40 a thousand on cigarettes to retail for less than $3 a thousand. In this group would be packages of 15 cigarettes to sell for five cents.

Mr. Hutson said he was aware that some people were afraid that such a graduated tax would tend to reduce the price of the better quality weeds but he said it was his opinion that the increase in consumption of cheaper cigarettes would not materially affect the sale of the better grades.

The cheap cigarette, he said, will draft many recruits from the smoker who have been selling their own from various mixtures, many of which are of the cheapest grade.

Hugh Johnson Ends Active And Eventful Twelve Months

Washington—Entering his 53rd year General Hugh S. Johnson has just ended one of the most eventful and active twelve months ever lived by an American. This birthday found him in a situation that contrasts strongly with that of his last.

Then he had a mammoth job staked out ahead; organization of all industry under the extraordinary NRA law. Now his future—and that of NRA itself—is a question that time alone can answer.

Then his critics were few, as he rallied for the blue eagle reemployment drive. Now he has been smarting under criticism for months.

He woke for that birthday exhausted. Slight sleep had been snatched upon the hard floor of an airplane that sped him back to Washington after a Hyde Park conference with President Roosevelt. He had just settled the Pennsylvania coal strike, and threw himself into more sleepless hours of code conferences.

Now he has had most real rest of the year. Forty thousand miles of flying is behind, dozens of speeches have been made by him who was a novice at it last summer.

More conferences with the President are being awaited, conferences that may govern his future. Strikes still are troubling him, by code formulation practically is completed.

NRA estimates that 22,000,000 of the nation's 24,000,000 employees in industry are working under codes. Johnson estimates that 800,000 of these, have their jobs by virtue of codes, added to purchasing power by codes.
