Every hunting season hundreds of game creatures fall before the guns of the hunters. Thousands of rounds of aniunation are fired, yet many more hundreds of game anim 1s and birds get by the skill of man and remain to produce another crop of the r species "ver com-for the following year's hunting senthe camp fires; and every utizen of the state should construct his equity in this wonderful resource that Nature bus provided.

Catefully devised game laws are administered by the State Deportment of Conservation and Development forough the Division of Game and bound Fisheries and the state agency is doing much to inclusive the game supply through precoming illegal hooting and excessive bag limits and the game is on the percase

Game sanctuaries have been established and these breeding grounds are producing game which overflows into open hunting grounds. The State borest Service has forest fire control organizations of trained, full time wardens furn short with the most wardens rurn shed with the most modern fire fighting equipment, in 44 counties. Over fifty fixed backart towars, hundreds of miles of telephone fines are established for detection and reporting fires. Fully equipped fire heating trucks and trailers are availlighting trucks and trailers are available for suppressing forest and woods State Forest Service. The best that the state can offer with it- limited funds, is being given to propagate game and make this natural resource available to the sportsmap. But, man's effort to protect and encourage the propagation of wild life in North Carolina is futile unless the natural guns of all the hunters in the state. To entirely remove the causes of all these losses is impossible, but-the loss directly attributed to fire IS pos-sible and can be eliminated because they are man-made. Fires in the woodlands forests and fields regulate the number of game birds and ani-mals available for the hunters' gun for more than the average hunter realizes. Fires consume more quail nests and young quail than one im-agines. Hundreds of turkey nests are detroyed every spring. There are are records of this through photo-graphs taken of burned nests of both these fast burning bay fires. Bear A STATE OF A
