Your Horoscope

JULY 8, 9—You are just, regarding the feelings and opinions of others. You are generous, charitable, have a sympathetic nature, very sensitive and easily offended. Your aims are high, and you are certain to reach them. You are not always satisfied with your surroundings, and many people with whom you come in contact disturb you.
JULY 10, 11—If you were born July 10 or 11 you are gentle, thoughtful, but determined. You would succeed as a physician, or lawyer who confines his work to office practice. Your efforts could have perfect confidence in your ability and integrity. Ordinary court practice would be distasteful to you. If a woman, you are active in church or society work.
JULY 12—You have a somewhat critical nature and can be burning in your criticism. You have quite a bit of temper but as a general rule, are quiet and think deeply. Your judgments are just and impartial. You love home and try to make it beautiful. You can be relied on, are capable and deserving.
JULY 13—You have some combativeness, which you use to good purpose, and you do not prolong a fight after you have gained the object for which you fought. You do not seek inferior positions. If a woman, you desire to make a good impression.

 Everybody cordially invited to all our services.

LUSITANIA SINKING IS STILL MYSTERY

Evidence Buried With Great Liner in Sea.

London.—Twenty years ago, on a sunny spring afternoon, a German submarine torpedo sent the crack British liner Lusitania to her doom in 240 feet of water ten miles off the Old Head of Kinsale, Ireland.

Two decades after one of the blackest pages in the history of the World war was written, the sinking of the Lusitania remains one of the greatest mysteries of all time. It may remain a mystery forever.

Evidence that, some historians say, might have kept the United States out of the World war lies now buried deep in the ocean.

1,189 Drowned.

The Lusitania left New York on her last voyage on May 1, 1915. At 2:30 p. m. on May 7, while the vessel was proceeding through calm waters, she was struck amidships by a torpedo. The lethal weapon hit between the third and fourth funnels. In 18 minutes she was lying at the bottom of the ocean and 1,189 passengers had been drowned. Among these were 124 Americans. Among them also were 103 children less than three years of age.

To this laconic account, survivors could add but little. There were some who told of a terrific explosion. There were some who thought two torpedoes hit the boat.

The Lusitania's passengers were at luncheon, resting in their cabins, or sunning themselves on the deck when the fatal blow came. Hundreds had never a chance for their lives. There were famous names in the list of dead—Charles Frohman, Alfred Gwynne Vanderbilt, Elbert Hubbard, Justus Miles Forman.

Captain Is Dead.

The Lusitania's master, Capt. W. T. Turner, who might have told more than any other man about the tragedy, died late in 1933, broken in mind and in health, with nothing to add to the story he told during the investigation which followed the sinking. He insisted the Lusitania was not armed.

But that she carried munitions there is no longer any doubt. The Germans charge she carried 5,470 cases of ammunition and that the remainder of her cargo was chiefly contraband, consisting of cartridges worth $200,000 and copper and brass to the value of $735,000. The Cunard line admitted she carried 4,200 cases of cartridges for small arms and 1,250 empty steel shrapnel cases.

The twentieth anniversary of the sinking of the Lusitania finds many questions unanswered. It also finds plans still being made to send diving expeditions to the spot where she sank in an effort not only to locate the $6,000,000 in gold bullion which she carried but also perhaps to settle once and for all a never-ending controversy. For 20 years after, horror and mystery remain the legacy of the Lusitania.

Dethrones Champion of All Needle Threaders

Ottawa, Ont.—J. Serrell, Ottawa tailor, who threaded 250 strands of cotton thread through the eye of a needle, has been dethroned as "world's champion needle threader" by an armless "wonder" in Britain.

Serrell has received a letter from the new champion, E. G. Alason, forty-seven-year-old news agent of West Hartlepool, England, telling him how he broke Serrell's record.

Alason has no arms or legs, but that didn't stop him. Sticking a needle in a piece of wool, Alason threaded 270 strands through its eye, using only his tongue in the difficult task.

Serrell admitted he couldn't do better and vacated the throne, which he won in an international competition last year with a United States housewife, whose name has been long forgotten.

Ready Market For Late Fall Tomatoes

Farmers are being urged by T. A. Rogers, field manager of the Hazelwood Cannery, to make another planting of tomatoes for late fall marketing. Excellent plants may still be obtained. Mr. Rogers suggests where space is an item, that the plants be grown on the ground, on which the first crop of beans was planted. He states that a satisfactory fertilizer may be gained from the use of 100 pounds of 7-5-5 with about twenty pounds of nitrate of soda added.
 If the plants are paced with the stem half under ground, with plenty of water applied, and the above mixture used, under ordinary conditions, a rapid growth is assured. The feasibility of the late planting of tomatoes in this section has been thoroughly tested, by some of the leading farmers of the county.

One farmer who gathered a good crop of green tomatoes last year just before frost, sold them as late as December. A crop, however, grown at this time, will of necessity, demand a more careful handling. This fall planting will fill a certain gap in the local markets, which if properly handled in this section gives promise of profitable results.

 violations than on any other phase of the charge. It was in his usual manner in which he led up to the conditions in Waynesville and Canton, by saying: "Millions of good citizens are opposed to prohibition in any form. Millions, recognizing that liquor is an ever-present evil, sincerely believe that real temperance would be promoted by legalizing the liquor traffic and placing it under strict regulations and control."

After his charge during an interview with this paper he stated: "It seems that the growing sentiment in the state would mean an overwhelming majority voting wet, since seventeen counties out of eighteen have voted thus. To me there are two choices—regulated by law or by outlaws."

He continued his charge by saying: "The highest concern of the grand jury and the court is the proper and honest enforcement of this law and the enforcement of all other laws as they are now written in the books. The failure to recognize this duty and to discharge it would not only stultify us, but would bring the court and jury and the law itself into disrepute."

"It is not for us to pass upon the wisdom or unwisdom of the laws as are called upon to enforce. We must enforce them as they are, and leave the consequences to those who have the power to change them."
 "Every good man will agree that the liquor evil is an ever-present one, everywhere, and is perhaps more far-reaching in its ruinous and demoral-

 "It is the great withering curse of the human race, and serves but to destroy. Those who surrender to it have sealed their doom already, and set the date for their overthrow. It is a vice that casts its dark shadows athwart the sunniest souls, blasts the fairest youth in our land, fills homes, once happy, with broken hearts, turns large estates into streams of waste which for a time flow on in merry glee, but turn to shoals and cataracts, and end at last in swamps of misery."
 The grand jury named last February is as follows:
 F. M. Byers, chairman; Carl Medford, R. H. Morris, Reeves Rathbone, Glenn Tate, Charlie Paxton, J. B. Hill, John Russell, J. W. Teague, R. G. A. Campbell, Gaston Burnett, W. A. Moore, Joe Howell, D. H. Taylor, Fred Gibson, G. G. Leutner, Z. Noland and James M. Harlan.
