MOUNTAIN JOE

Well, friends, I hate to always be talking about the weather, but what in the sam hill else is there to talk about? 'Cept, maybe, about the farmers. They are all behind with their work, and one thing is sure this spring, all of us will start farming at the same time. The lazy ones and the smart ones all together.

I have built so many fires this winter I can build 'em with my eyes shut—and I can also go to these Burgin Boys and buy stuff with my eyes shut, and still know that I get my money's worth.

Never do I have to worry about getting full weight, or the best goods when I trade with these boys.

The Webster game will be played at an early date; the Waynesville game will be played Tuesday night, February 18, on the Clyde court.

Thirty-eight years and half million miles of automobile driving without an accident, a ticket, or even a bawling-out from a traffic cop, is the record of Joseph S. Cortelyou of Hayworth, N. J. As a reward he got a complimentary letter last week from the Acting Motor Vehicle Commissioner of his state.

GENERAL AGAIN IN THE LIMELIGHT

Brigadier-General Mannus McCloskey, 42-years an artillery man, now commander of Fort Rucker, N. C., who spoke the historic World War words, "retreat—hell no, we just got here!"—is again in the news. Senator Bob Reynolds accused the secretary of War of discriminating against the general by failing to recommend him for promotion, but later withdrew his protest when the army regulations of such promotions were explained.

It was June 3, 1918, when the Germans had launched a mass attack against the French line. McCloskey's battery took a position to relieve the French Field Artillery, right in plain view of the German observers, under a heavy shell fire. The Commander of the French Regiment remonstrated with Colonel McCloskey.

"It is impossible to remain here," he said. "Surely you are going to retreat."

"Retreat—Hell No—We just got here," answered the American artilleryman.

Ivey, founder, was presented a handsomely bound book of signatures of the Ivey employes and executives. The presentation was made by the oldest employe, Mrs. Annie Long.

LEGISLATURE

Eventually it may be necessary for the Governor to call the Legislature in special session, as some have remanded but Congress must get a bit further along before the Governor will be able to see any such necessity. He is of the opinion that the time to consider enactment of a State law to coordinate with Federal acts on social security will be after Congress has completed the Federal set-up—not while it is working on it, amending here and adding there.

Ance Phillips Gets 18 Months To Three Years For Murder aisles, trying to catch every word of testimony about the 35-year-old murderer.

Several times Judge Alley had to call the court attendants to give more fresh air. Not at any time did order have to be called.

During the entire hearing, Ance sat in shirt sleeves—wearing a kahki shirt, new suspenders and new shoes. He was well shaven except for his neatly trimmed moustache. Not a gray hair could be seen in his head, and he showed signs of being in bad health.

He showed no signs of emotion or concern during the hearing, often mumbling something to himself and twirling his thumbs. Once or twice he spoke to his lawyers, but for the most part just sat listening to every word—but looking neither to the right nor left.

The sentencing of Phillips brings to a close, one of the most unusual cases to be tried in a Haywood court. He came back here in December to see his brother in Pigeon township, and was recognized by Will White, and later arrested. Solicitor Queen found that a true bill, charging Phillips for murder had been returned by the grand jury in the February term of court in 1901. But Phillips had never been arrested for the murder until last month. He left immediately after the fatal event on Christmas eve in 1900, although he is said to have returned to the county several times during the past few years. He had been in 14 states since leaving here.

Tuesday morning when sentence was passed, Phillips sat motionless, while Judge Alley reviewed the case. During the past few days Phillips has been bothered with stomach trouble, and was showing signs of having suffered when appearing in court again Tuesday.

Final argument was made by F. E. Alley, Jr., and William T. Hannah for the defense, and Grover Davis for the state.

JUDGE OFFERS TO PAY

A case in which the judge offered to pay the sum at stake to end the litigation was disclosed in a Spartanburg court this week. Circuit Judge J. Henry Johnson, of Allendale, said the issue over an acre of sandy Lexington County land valued at $10 took three days to try at a cost of approximately $500. He finally sent word to the litigation that he would pay the price of the land if one of them would deed to the other.

MR. MORGAN'S FAREWELL

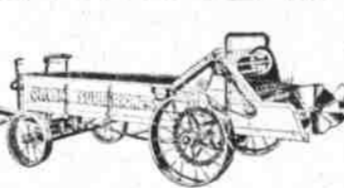

Before leaving Washington, after the weeks of grilling at the hands of the members of the Senate Munitions Committee, J. P. Morgan remarked, when he told them good-bye—"I have had a fine time—and I would not have missed this investigation for the world."

"KING OF HOBOES" ANGRY

Jeff Davis, "King of Hoboes" said this week, that he is all "hot up" about "this business of trying to keep hoboes out of California."

"Why, say," he exploded, after the recent ordinance of Los Angeles against the indigent transient, "it was the itinerant men and women who made California what it is right now." Davis contends that a hobo may be idle but he works when there's a job and that a bum or a tramp won't work.
