HERE and THERE

Hope you had a satisfactory Christmas... sometimes we find ourselves all set for the best one we ever hoped to have... and something happens to completely throw us off our balance... and often it isn't a matter of such grave importance... but we are apt to view the incident cut off from everything but Christmas, and proceed to make a mountain out of mole hill... what if so and so did remember us... and this year we failed to have them on our list... what are a couple of handkerchiefs or a neck tie... in the matter of the friendship of a lifetime... why stop and think of the months ahead in which we have to prove our eternal sentiments anew... But we all... just will get positively panicky over such things... and what if so and so didn't appear to think as much of us as we did of them... and maybe forgot to send the usual Christmas greeting... don't worry the world is full of friendly people... start all over again... and maybe between us... we didn't deserve their thinking of us this year...

Leaving personalities... When we think of the great anniversary that has just passed with its message of "Peace on Earth, Good Will Toward Men"... we must all feel bewildered and powerless... as we read the news items of the past week... "Labor troubles widespread"... and growing more acute... Curtailment of output in the booming automobile industry... threatened by strikes... A grim Christmas for Madrid defenders, foreshadowed by the crash of shells around the city on the eve of the holidays... Christmas in the Holy Land this year had little in it appropriate to the celebration of the birth of the Christ Child, came to bring peace on earth... It was marked by the presence of men of war come to protect the Jews from the blood-thirsty Arabs... "Every Christmas since the World War came to its bloody close, Christendom had rung anew with its anthem of Peace on Earth... but there is no Peace"...

"We honor this week"... in this column... Evander Preston and the Waynesville Choral Club... who have brought the beauty and spiritual uplift of the Christmas carols on many occasions in the past week... to the people of this community... they have spent hours in practicing to be able to render them in such perfect harmony... these songs, that never grow old... and at this busy season of the year when we are all rushed with our own plans... they have given hours of their time... They have helped to bring Christmas in a very beautiful way to the town... and in behalf of the community I express our appreciation...

The best of luck for 1937. Mr. and Mrs. Horace Coughlin and son, Horace, Jr., of Jacksonville, Fla., were the guests during Christmas of Dr. and Mrs. N. M. Medford, and Mr. and Mrs. E. V. Osborn, at their home in the Cleveland Apartments.

Ready for Winter!

Ruth Dryer When pretty Ruth Dryer assisted at making ready for winter the Admiral Byrd polar exploration ship, City of New York, at Cleveland in preparation for reopening of the Great Lakes exposition next year, she wore a fur parka which was practical as far as it went, but it doesn't seem to go far enough.

Number Of Christmas Trees For Unfortunates Held

From the number of Christmas celebrations with trees generously laden with gifts, it is to be hoped that no child in this section missed Santa Claus this season.

The annual community Christmas tree which has been sponsored by the town and the Woman's Club for the past several years, was as usual placed on the court house lawn, and the gifts were distributed with appropriate ceremonies at four o'clock on Christmas Day.

Dr. R. S. Truesdale, pastor of the First Methodist church, held a short religious service. Mr. and Mrs. J. Dale Stentz had charge of the music.

Between three and four hundred toys, and the same number of bags, containing candy, nuts, and oranges, were distributed among those in attendance which numbered several hundred.

The names of the children were called by Oscar Briggs, and the following members of the Woman's Club helped with the distribution: Mrs. John M. Queen, Mrs. C. F. Kirkpatrick, Mrs. Grover C. Davis, Mrs. Frank Ferguson, Mrs. Rufus Siler, and Mrs. James W. Killian.

The various departments of the Sunday schools of the town, also held Christmas trees, as well as provided for the underprivileged children of the community.

Captain Cecil Brown, in charge of the Mountain Circle Chorus of the Salvation Army, had Christmas trees at Shelton, Laurel, Hurricane and Poplar Gap communities. She also distributed gifts to several other communities in the county. The Christmas activities of the Salvation Army in the county were sponsored by the army throughout the South with many large boxes of clothing being donated, as well as toys, candies and fruits. The citizens of Waynesville and Canton, also contributed to the Christmas cheer fund of Captain Brown.

With the assistance of local Sunday schools, Miss Lillian Odum had a Christmas tree for the children of the Big Bend section.

Miss Patsy Hill, who is now residing in New York, was with her grandmother, Mrs. Charles R. Thomas, for the Christmas holidays.
