Faulty Wiring From Pole determined As Cause Of Blaze

W. C. Boutwell, occupant of the Garrett home on Pigeon street, which caught on fire last week, was in the office to correct the article regarding the fire as appeared in the last issue of this paper. The article stated that the fire was caused by pennies being placed behind fuse plugs. That was the information given this paper by a person of authority. Mr. Boutwell said that the blaze was caused by "an error on the part of the city electrician in connecting wire on the pole in front of the house. It was faulty wiring from the pole," he said "and not because of pennies back of fuse plugs or anything else wrong with the house wiring." The city electricians were working on the line at the time of the blaze, and the pole wires had to be cut out in order to extinguish the blaze, it was reported. The Mountaineer gladly makes the correction.

State Advertising Fund Will Mean Much To This Section, Says Ramsey

Ashville Newspaperman Tells Civic Clubs This Section Destined To Prosper

Speaking at the joint meeting of the Rotary and Booster Clubs last Thursday night, D. Hidden Ramsey, general manager of The Asheville Citizen-Times, pointed out that no other section of the country could be developed more profitably than Western North Carolina. "We should be happy that the North Carolina Legislature has appropriated a quarter of a million dollars with which to advertise North Carolina. No advertising campaign can be put on for the state without making Western North Carolina the background. "Because of this advertising on the part of the state, we can raise our estimate of tourist business as that fund goes in to action." Mr. Ramsey said during his remarks, that he did not believe there was a more alert and progressive community—consisting of Waynesville, Hazelwood and Lake Junaluska—in all of the state. "I envy you for your fine progressive spirit and development in the past few years." "If this section of our country is worth living in and worth loving, it is worth developing," he continued. "A lot of work has been done, but much remains to be done." The speaker dwelled briefly on the history of the park, and what remains to be accomplished before the Federal Government formally takes over the area for further development. Mr. Ramsey pointed out that tourists were not everything Western North Carolina could boast of, but that the industries in this area had thrived even during the depression. "The Champion Fibre and Paper Company has been a God-send to Haywood county, as have the other industries. We should be proud of the way Western North Carolina industries have come through the depression. The average curtailment in man-hours by industries in this section was less than anywhere in the nation." Getting back to further developments of this area, the speaker said further: "With the coming of the Social Security Act, we are going to find more people retiring than ever before, and this is going to mean a material increase in our population." He concluded his address by saying: "We should be more sectional in our thinking, and we need to corroborate more among ourselves, because Western North Carolina should become the 'garden spot of the South.'" The meeting was presided over by Dr. C. N. Sisk, president of the host club, and he in turn introduced the president of the Booster Club, Rufus Gaddis. The Booster Club program committee was composed of L. M. Richeson, C. N. Allen and Whitner Prevost. The Rotarians were introduced by William Medford, secretary and Dr. Stuart Roberson introduced the Boosters. The speaker of the evening was introduced by W. Curtis Russ.

BIG CREEK MAN DIED FROM NATURAL CAUSES

Dr. J. R. Westmorland, Haywood county coroner, found that Nick Hannah, 50-year-old farmer of the Big Creek section, came to his death apparently from a heart attack, and not foul play as was first suspected. Hannah died late Wednesday afternoon, and his wife, who found him, reported that she suspected foul play had caused her husband's death. He died a short distance from the house. He leaves besides his widow, a small child.
