

IN WASHINGTON

By
ROBERT R. REYNOLDS
United States
Senator

The visit of Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, wife of the President, to North Carolina, where she will be the honor guest of the staid citizens of the Eastern section of the state, at Wallace, is more evidence of the part women are playing in public affairs. Like her distinguished husband, Mrs. Roosevelt utilizes every opportunity to meet and mingle with people and her many visits to the state are evidence of her keen appreciation for North Carolina, where she is always given a hearty welcome.

Therefore, the great gathering scheduled for Wallace on Friday, with the First Lady as the guest of honor, gives me a long-postponed opportunity to commend the part that women generally have in civic and political functions. No longer do they just attend banquets and applaud the words of mere men; they now have an active part in the arrangements and share the responsibilities. And their activities are having a wholesome effect on these affairs. The hands that keep order in the home and office are truly exercising a beneficial effect on public activities of every character.

The part that women are playing in national affairs is no better evidenced than in the records of our great national conventions. In this connection, it is interesting to note that at the Democratic National convention of 1912—the first attended by President Roosevelt—there were only two women delegates. But at the convention of 1932, which nominated our illustrious President, there were 208 women delegates and more at Philadelphia in 1936. And everyone concedes that the presence of the fine women who are leaders in the affairs of their respective states has meant more orderly and pleasant gatherings of national leaders.

It is all evidence that our country is beginning to make a greater use of the variety of abilities possessed by women, and many of the limitations which were characteristic of the position of women in our earlier order are now being overcome.

Except for an aged lady from Georgia who held office for one ceremonial day, no woman had been either appointed or elected to the United States Senate until the autumn of 1931, when Arkansas elected the widow of a statesman to succeed her husband for the unexpired term. Since that distinguished lady, Senator Hattie Caraway, has been elected in her own right and is now serving with honor. Her daily presence in the Senate is an inspiration to her colleagues. In addition to being chairman of a committee—the committee on Enrolled Bills—she also serves on the committees on Agriculture and Forestry, Commerce and the Library. It is needless to say that she bears her share of Senatorial responsibilities.

In the House of Representatives are a number of active women who merit their offices. It is a far cry from the future created in 1916 when Montana elected the first woman to the National Legislature.

But whether serving in public office, at a desk, in the home or on the farm, women are proving their right to assume greater responsibilities and have greater recognition. And the visit of Mrs. Roosevelt to North Carolina, where the First Lady will mingle with Carolina women who are first in the hearts of their communities, is some evidence of the part women have and deserve in our affairs, national, state and local.

Peace Officers To Sleep In Police Headquarters

To insure prompt investigation of crimes the Central American Republic of Guatemala last week ordered its justices to take turns sleeping at police headquarters.

Miss Eccles to Wed

Eleanore Eccles

An engagement of note in Washington circles is that of Eleanore May Eccles, daughter of the governor of the federal reserve board, who will wed Harold J. Steele of Houston, Tex., in September. They will be married in Ogden, Utah, home of the Eccles.

Waynesville Group To Participate In Asheville Festival

Waynesville will participate for the fifth consecutive year in the tenth annual Rhododendron Pageant to be presented in the McCormick Field on Wednesday night, June 16th. Twenty-four girls and boys, garbed in the lovely costumes symbolizing the Rose of Persia will present for Waynesville's scene, a Persian Slave Market feature. Twelve girls dressed as Persian slaves will enter, dance for their master and be sold at public auction to the twelve young men who are dressed as merchants.

Professional costumes are being rented to lend more color and glamour to the scene, and two professional dancers will participate in the Waynesville skit as an added feature. Contributions from local citizens and clubs have made possible the rental of the costumes and the cast includes the following:

- Josephine Cabe and George Keller, Bobbie Jean Truesdale and Bill Prevost, Elizabeth Henry and Kenneth Steeley, Johnnie Russell and Milas Ferguson, Blanche Medford and Fleming Ewins, Ruth Green and Joe Shipley, Sarah Welch and Leon Killian, Fannie Pearl Felmet and Joe Welch, Corine Alley and Jack Cooley, Drama Lampkin and Hugh Shelton, Dollee Marsh and Robert Hugh Clark, Louise Francis Lupton and Clyff Lupton.

The dance routine is directed by Miss Mary Soari, of Asheville, who will dance as "Rhodora" in the pageant this year, and rehearsals are under the supervision of Miss Edith P. Alley and Miss Ila Greene.

Home Water Cooler Introduced

This young miss thinks it just heaps of fun drinking glassfuls of water several times a day, but mother knows it's an exceedingly healthy habit. The youngster likes to do it because she gets water refreshingly cold directly from a new type automatically refrigerated water cooler designed for the kitchen by Frigidaire, makers of the famous refrigerator of the same name. It looks like the prospect of cluttering up the food refrigerator with water bottles is going to be a thing of the past.
