LIGHT RATES REDUCED BY TOWN

County Tax Rate Might Have To Be Boosted 40 to 50 Cents

Increased Demands On County Treasury Indicate Higher Rate For Next Year

Present indications are that the tax rate of the county for next year will be increased by about forty or fifty cents, according to tentative figures prepared by T. J. Cathey, county auditor.

Mr. Cathey, however, cannot work out exact details of the 1937-38 budget for submission to the board of commissioners until the tax office completes the new revaluation of property, which is now underway.

According to John Hipps, in charge of the new revaluation, the work will be completed within two weeks. All townships have finished with the exception of Waynesville and Beavertown. To date there is no way of knowing what the assessed valuation of the county this year was. The valuation of the county this year was estimated at twenty-two and a half millions, with a tax rate of $1.06.

Mr. Cathey explained that two new bonds, and the additional burden of the social security set-up would result in an increase in the tax rate to point that it might reach $1.60. The present rate is $1.06.

The state social security board has estimated that this county will have to raise $12,500 for social security. Local officials believe that it will be $25,000 from the county.

Under the plan, the state will provide the same amount as the county, and the federal government provides the sum. If Haywood requires $100,000, the state will provide a fourth, the county a fourth, and the federal government half.

Last year the board of commissioners reduced the tax rate 25 cents. In 1935 the rate was $1.31.

Of course, as Mr. Cathey explained, the belief that the county tax rate will be increased from forty to fifty cents is based on a general survey made by the board of commissioners before the budget is adopted. It was learned from good authority, at the new revaluation in all probability show an increase of about two and a half millions. One official said, judging from the townships that are completed, it looks as if we will have a gain sufficient to bring the assessed valuation to twenty-five millions for next year.

2,133 Fish Caught In Sherwood Forest

Many sportsmen took advantage, both locally and those visiting in the section, during the first week in June, of the three days the streams of Sherwood Forest, government lands, were opened to the public. A total of 406 persons fished in the forest and 2,133 fish were caught during the three day period.

On the Big East Fork of Pigeon 94 persons tried their luck and had to their credit 533 fish. While other streams were fished by 312 persons with a catch of 1,600.

One interesting catch of the week was made by Boss Burrell, who planted fish in the Big East Fork on May 10, 1934, where there were practically no fish left. He went back during the recent open season and caught his allotment fifteen, and they were beauties, measuring from ten to sixteen inches, evidencing how well he did his work in 1934.

The streams in Sherwood will again be opened to the public for three days in July, namely 2nd, 3rd and the 4th, which will close the fishing season for the government lands for this year.

The law passed in 1934 is entitled, "An act to protect owners of property along the state highways of North Carolina," and reads as follows:

Max Bryant Estate Contributes 12,000 Books To University

Announcement of local interest was the recent presentation to the library of Washington University, of St. Louis, of the 12,000 volume library of the late Max Bryant, scholar and musician, of Waynesville, and St. Louis.

The library was given the college by his widow according to his wishes. It consists largely of classics and philosophic works and contains many rare editions, and is considered by the university one of the most valuable academic collections ever received by the institution.

Noteworthy groups in the library are the 2,000 volume collection of French works, an equally large German collection and about 600 volumes in Italian.

There is also a large collection of the works of Horace. The oldest book in the library is a vellum bound Latin folio dated 1448. A seven-volume set of Beaumont and Fletcher contains book plates of "the most notable Duke of Bedford," dated 1736, Wolburn Abbey.

Mr. Bryant, who was well known in this section, his parents having maintained summer home here for more than forty years, had spent much time in this section. His death occurred in 1935, and Mrs. Bryant, his widow, who also often visited here, has not been to Waynesville since that date.

Aldermen Working On Plans To Give Rates Like Carolina

Residential Rates Will Be Considerably Reduced, New Rates Effective July First

A decision was made Tuesday night at a special meeting of the town board of aldermen and the mayor, to reduce the light rates in Waynesville. This action came after the board had gone over the situation with a rate expert of the Carolina Power & Light Company.

The biggest reduction will be made in the residential rates, Mayor J. H. Way stated. The officials are working on plans which will put into effect in Waynesville the same rates as now charged by Carolina Power & Light Company in this area.

"We hope to adopt the Carolina schedule of rates from start to finish," Mr. Way said.

"The minimum charged by Carolina is $1, while the town has a minimum of $1.20. The town also has several different schedules, but under the proposed plans, there will only be one rate, and that on a sliding scale. The more a resident uses the cheaper the kilowatt hour rate.

"Under this new plan we believe that many homes will install electric ranges, and other appliances because of the reduced rate. Under the new rates it will be to the advantage of the consumers to use more electricity, and get advantage of the low rates offered on volume.

The explanation was made that the new rates would not go out on this month's bills which are now being prepared. The board plans, however, to figure these bills under the Carolina Power rates and make a comparison. After this comparison is made, then the final rate will be adopted, and it is believed the residential Carolina rate will be used.

The industrial and commercial rates now being charged by the town are lower in many instances than the Carolina rates for the same classes.

The town officials are taking every precaution against reducing the rates to a point where it would cause a deficit in the light department. Enough profit has to be made to pay for the up-keep of the system, which is rated as a $250,000 system.

It was also pointed out that the street lights are provided without cost to the taxpayers of the town. In towns the same size of Waynesville the taxpayers have to provide as much as $10,000 a year for street lighting.

"We have every reason to believe that the Carolina rates will be adopted as of July first," Mr. Way said, "and if that be true, the taxpayers will be getting the same rates as other towns, and in addition, will save the extra tax on their property for the street lights."

The new rates will be announced at an early date, but in the meantime, the officials are working towards the Carolina rates throughout.
